CHICAGO FEELS SURGE OF WORLD FAIR BUSINESS

Rail Traffic Booms; Stores Thronged.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.

Henry Henderson, red cap at the Union station, hoisted a couple of suitcases into a taxi, took his tip from a lady traveler, and wearily wiped the moisture from his forehead. For the first time in years Henry was getting all the exercise he bargained for.

A special had just steamed in over the Milwaukee road, bringing 305 passengers from Madison and Janesville, Wis. Unloading of this special was just one of a series of episodes which had added to the red cap's weariness through the day. The enormous waiting room, which used to be as quiet as a barnyard on a mid-week afternoon, swarmed with people.

Visitors Pouring Into City.

"Man!" sighed Henry, "we haven't had to handle crowds like this since—let's see—since the Christmas of 1929. All day and half the evening for the last ten days they've been pouring in on the Burlington, the Pennsylvania, the Milwaukee, and the Alton. This World's Fair has them coming.

A visit to other passenger terminals yesterday and inquiry at railway traffic offices confirmed the truth of the red cap's observation. Not in the gate receipt figures alone are to be found the indications that "the World's Fair has them coming."

Extra Section Is Revived.

Transcontinental limiteds, which used to pull in a string of two day coaches and four or five half empty sleepers, are now hauling trains of twelve or fifteen sleepers, loaded to the uppers. That pre-depression institution, the extra section, is being revived on a triple scale.

Several of the eastern roads are running one extra section on every express and three or four extra sections on their crack limiteds. The western roads, too, are going in for extra sections, and lower berths can be had only by reservation.

Railroad lines are being burdened with day coach specials of the sort the red cap sighed about—from Richmond, Ind.; Oskaloosa, Ia.; Oshkosh, Wis., and from more distant towns that Chicagoans seldom hear about. There are Pullman specials, too, as indicated by the layover of 500 sleepers in the Pullman yards last Sunday.

They're Here to Spend.

Moreover, according to reports from the police and from State street merchants, the visitors are here to spend. The loop, according to Capt. David Flynn of the traffic police, is humming with crowds as it hasn't done since the Eucharistic congress.

"The supervising captain and I took a downtown tour this noon to size up the out of town traffic," said Capt. Flynn. "Cars from other states were so thick that we lost count, but they seemed to run about 30 per cent of all we saw.

"The visitors were standing four deep at restaurant counters on Wabash avenue and State street. We have 160 extra men detailed to handle the crowds pouring into the loop from the depots by day, and to keep traffic moving among the night motorists to the Fair on Roosevelt and Cermak roads."

State Street Stores Crowded.

State street merchants are not saying much for publication. They merely point to the crowded aisles, busy clerks, and overflowing restaurants, and explain that they are unable to determine how much of the business revival is due to restoration of national confidence and how much to the Fair.

"Our business started to show a gain early in May," said the manager of one of the largest State street stores. "Now it's growing daily. The store has been crowded every day since the Fair opened, and everybody is beginning to feel it's just like old times. We're reserving publication of our sales figures for our quarterly report."

"All the stores are looking good," said the proprietor of another State street house. "We are being rushed to capacity at our visitors' bureau. It's impossible to tell just how much of the trade increase is coming from World's Fair customers and how much from Chicago. You need only look at State street to know there are a lot more people in town."

CONGRESS WILL YIELD AFTER SHIFTING BLAME

Want President to Shoulder Burden.

BY JOHN HERRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 14.—[Special.]—The end of the special session of congress came into sight tonight. Adjournment may be achieved tomorrow night, or by Friday at the latest.

President Roosevelt has all but won his battle to protect the war veterans' part of his economy program from the assault of the congressional veterans' bloc. Members of congress are looking forward to the harvest of what ever political advantage derives from having favored liberalized veterans' benefits.

And senate Republicans are already savoring the doubly sweet recollection of a public denunciation of the President's action on the war debts and of their first solid party vote in years.

Rejects Roosevelt Plan.

A way for the settlement of the quarrel that has kept congress in a turmoil for the last three days was opened tonight when the senate ended a day of pitched battle by rejecting the President's veterans' program and substituting in its stead the more liberal and costly amendment demanded by the veterans' advocates.

The house is scheduled to follow suit tomorrow morning, thus sending the measure to the veto which the President has waiting for it—the first veto to meet any of the numerous and far reaching bills passed by this congress.

The veto, unless the strategy of the congressional managers goes awry, is to be the key that unlocks the doors. The end of the battle over war veterans and war debts, according to the plans confidently announced by the leaders tonight, is to be a case of losing in order to win.

Rejected by Vote of 51-39.

By a vote of 51 to 39 the administration lost today when the senate rejected the amendment agreed upon by the President and the house, limiting the decrease in veterans' costs to approximately 100 million dollars. The amendment of Senators Bronson Cutting [Rad., N. M.], and Frederick Steiwer [Rep., Ore.], adopted in its place, would cut 35 millions deeper into the economy program.

The administration is down to lose again tomorrow, when the house is expected to follow the senate's lead.

But the veto that answers this pair of votes will mean that the President will have saved his economies to this extent from the inroads planned against them.

At the same time the two votes will have given members of congress their opportunity to go on record in favor of the veterans. The veto will give them a chance to retire gracefully.

New Bill to Be Offered.

Unless one house or the other kicks over the traces the veto message will be sustained by the house of representatives. Immediately thereafter a new bill or continuing resolution containing the veterans' provisions approved by the President is to be swiftly sent through. The senate is to complete its approval of the 3 billion 600 million dollar deficiency bill and adjournment will be in order.

The thirty-one Republican votes cast in favor of the Cutting-Stiewer amendment numbered every Republican senator on the floor. The voices of regulars and radicals sounding off in concert was something that has not been heard in the senate chamber for many sessions.

"And it's just such fights and such votes that rebuild a party," remarked Republican Leader Charles L. McNary of Oregon when the roll call was in.

Four o'clock was the hour set for the President to make his announcement that he had agreed to accept a 10 million dollar payment on the British debt installment, and that he had agreed further not to consider the failure to pay in full a default.

Orators Go Into Action.

Four o'clock, therefore, was the hour the Republican orators went over the top, only to be met there by a lone hero, a 75 year old bantamweight fighter by the name of Carter Glass of Virginia.

Those who were there on the senate floor and in the galleries will long remember the bitter jousting between the diminutive Virginia senator, snarling the words out of the side of his mouth, and Senator David A. Reed, the Republican silk stocking from Pennsylvania.

MYSTERY BLAZE IN RESIDENCE OF ROOSEVELT SON

Boston, Mass., June 14.—[Special.]—Fire of mysterious origin swept through the summer home of James Roosevelt, son of the President, at Little Boar's Head, N. H., yesterday. The blaze started only a few feet away from the empty crib of Sara Delano Roosevelt, 14 months old granddaughter of President and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Shortly after the fire occurred the Boston Post printed a story stating that it had learned from authentic sources that threats had been made to kidnap the child, and that young Roosevelt feared the fire was intended to create excitement during which his daughter might be stolen.

However, from the White House President Roosevelt later sent word through a secretary that there was "no truth" in the reports of the kidnap threats. The chief executive's secretary added that James Roosevelt had talked over the phone with President Roosevelt and was "denying the reports flatly."

In its story the Post states that only 24 hours before the fire occurred Alphonsus L. McCormack, a secret service man, had arrived for duty at the James Roosevelt home. It added that young Roosevelt hurried home from his Boston offices on news of the fire. At the time of the blaze the little girl, her mother, and a nurse were on the screened porch, the paper says.

Realty Agent Mysteriously Slain in Home

A murder mystery was furnished Summerdale police early this morning when Oscar Nelson, 39 years old, a real estate agent, was found shot to death in his third floor apartment at 5402 North Campbell avenue. He had been shot twice below the heart, once in the neck, and once in the left hand.

His wife, Mrs. Maude Nelson, and his son, Walter, 11 years old, discovered his body shortly before 1 o'clock when they returned home from a charity singing festival for the blind, in which Mrs. Nelson had sung, at the Morrison hotel.

Doctor Pronounces Him Dead.

Believing her husband merely injured and not dead, she called Charles Dahlquist and Alvin Johnson, neighbors, and they summoned Dr. Ross Van Pelt, 5037 North Francisco avenue. He pronounced Nelson dead.

Nelson was evidently slain by some person with whom he had been talking during the night. Two overturned glasses on the table and twenty or more cigaret stubs indicated the presence of a possible guest, Capt. Richard P. Gill, in charge of the investigation, said. The shooting occurred in the kitchen and it was there that Nelson's body was found. Signs pointed to a scuffle, Capt. Gill said. Moreover, six bullets in all were fired, four hitting hitting Nelson, one breaking a vase, and another piercing a window pane.

Find All Doors Locked.

Sergt. Everett Mullaney and Detectives Thomas Creeley and Henry Jaeger, who arrived first on the scene, found that all the lights in the apartment were on and the radio was turned on. Also both the front and back doors were locked. The killer evidently fled through the front door, locking it after him.

No motive for the murder was found. There was some evidence that Nelson had been drinking during the night and perhaps with his slayer. He had been steadily engaged in real estate work. He had handled many foreclosures recently. It was possible, police said, some property owner against whom Nelson was taking foreclosure action had shot him in anger.

Urge 'Interneship' Plan for Pulpit Candidates

Candidates for the Lutheran ministry in the Augustana synod will serve a year of "interneship" before being ordained if the recommendation of the faculty of the Augustana Theological seminary in Rock Island is confirmed by the convention of the synod, which opened its annual three day session at Bethel church, 62d and Green streets, last night. Dr. E. E. Rydes of St. Paul said the proposal has met with favor throughout the membership of the convention.

5 YEAR OLD DIES SAVING LIFE OF LITTLE BROTHER

New York, June 14.—[Special.]—Little Miss Alga Kuhner, who was 5 years old last Thursday, held up her pale, round face bravely today and gave up her life to save her brother, Henry, who is only 3 years old and has such fat legs that he cannot toddle quickly out of danger when it appears.

Danger—and death in it—appeared when Alga and Henry, with two other children, were playing a romping game in the yard of their Brooklyn home.

The play ran around a big pole, thrust into the ground for the purpose of carrying clotheslines.

Alga and another child were in one corner of the yard when a cry came that the pole was falling. Something had displaced it. It was an enormous pole for such a purpose, and it fell heavily, slowly, and right toward the curly head of Henry, who stared in amazement.

Alga ran toward him. She grasped him and pushed him out of the way. The pole struck Alga and killed her.

MATTERN TAKES OFF ON FLIGHT TO ALASKA AGAIN

MOSCOW, June 15 [Thursday].—(AP)—Jimmie Mattern, Texas flyer, took off from Khabarovsk, Siberia, for Alaska on his trip around the world at 9 p. m., Moscow time [1 p. m. Chicago daylight saving time] Wednesday.

Encountering bad weather while flying the 2,500 miles to Nome Tuesday, the Texan was forced back after eight hours in the air. He had insisted on leaving Khabarovsk despite reports of nasty headwinds and fog in the vicinity of the sea of Okhotsk, northeast of his starting point.

He conferred at length with the soviet aviator Boris Lukht yesterday while mechanics tuned up his ship. Lukht, known as an expert on flying conditions in the area Mattern is to traverse, advised the American to fly by way of Chumikan and the Bay of Udsk as the safest route this time of the year.

SOVIETS GOING ON VACATIONS MUST TAKE FOOD ALONG

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, June 14.—According to information in the possession of Latvian steamship companies, twenty steamers are either unloading or en route to Leningrad loaded with grain.

The first official admission of the famine conditions prevailing in Russia is contained in the special decree issued by A. I. Mikojan, commissar of supplies, informing all employes, workers, and other classes entitled to vacation at soviet resorts that they must arrange to supply themselves with food at these places where extra rations are not available.

Hereafter the vacationers must take food with them since provisions also have disappeared from private markets.

AMERICA TAKES 10 MILLION PAYMENT ON BRITISH DEBT

Hull Pleads for World Truce on Trade Wars.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

(Picture on Back Page.)

LONDON, June 14.—In fifteen minutes of plain speaking, during which he took an unmistakable thrust at statesmen who have threatened to wreck the world economic conference unless the United States cancels the war debts, Secretary of State Cordell Hull pleaded with the delegates of 66 nations today to forsake economic nationalism and embrace a far reaching program of economic internationalism.

Following are the proposals designed to end the commercial chaos of the world and help dissipate the universal economic depression which Mr. Hull submitted to the conference on behalf of the American delegation:

1. Immediate general adherence by all countries to a tariff truce enduring until the close of the conference.

Would Lower Tariffs.

2. Lowering of tariffs and other trade barriers.

3. Abandonment of unfair trade methods and practices.

4. Temporary de facto stabilization of currencies "for a period during which the groundwork will be laid for enduring reform."

5. Concurrent stimulation by all nations of a rise in commodity price levels as a means of restoring consumer purchasing power.

6. Adoption of a permanent international monetary standard, including an agreement on the "proper function of the metals, gold and silver, in the operations of such a standard in the future."

7. Removal of restrictions on foreign exchange dealings.

"The American delegation," Mr. Hull said, "is prepared to offer concrete suggestions in regard to all these questions."

Chamberlain Gives British Views.

Two other important speeches were made at today's session, one by Neville Chamberlain, British chancellor of the exchequer, and the other by Maxim Litvinov, soviet Russian foreign commissar.

Chamberlain, outlining the proposals of his government for solution of the ills of the world, denounced the tariff and other policies of the United States. He also again injected the war debt issue into the conference, declaring that no effective measures for world recovery could be effected until the debts are finally settled. He supported the American theory of fostering a rise in price levels.

Litvinov proposed abolition of all economic warfare. He asked the nations to extend long credits to Russia, in return for which he said the soviet government was prepared to place orders for one billion dollars' worth of goods.

Conference Hall Crowded.

Nearly all of the 168 delegates and more than 100 newspaper correspondents were in their seats when the conference reconvened at 3 p. m. with Hull as the first scheduled speaker.

Enormous interest had been aroused in the address of the chief of the American delegation because of its more or less mysterious postponement for 24 hours. He had been scheduled to speak yesterday.

When called upon by Prime Minister MacDonald, president of the conference, Mr. Hull, faultlessly attired in morning coat and striped trousers, made his way to the dais in the green and white assembly hall to the accompaniment of scattering applause, led Transfer in Silver Will Cut Amount to Be Received.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 14.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today accepted a tender by England of $10,000,000 as a part payment on a war debts installment of $75,950,000 which falls due tomorrow.

England's failure to live up to the war debts agreement is not reckoned by the President as a "default," but in his note to the British government, as well as in an explanatory public statement, Mr. Roosevelt stated plainly that he had no power to reduce or cancel the debt or to alter the schedule of payment.

Only Congress Can Decide.

Only congress has such power, the President told the British.

Holding that the receipt of the $10,000,000 part payment in no way prejudiced the right of the United States to collect the full amount due, Mr. Roosevelt advised the British that as soon as possible they should make whatever representations for a revision of the debt they desire to offer, and in Washington.

Britain to Pay Silver.

Although President Roosevelt declared that the British payment would not be made in silver, but in dollars or pounds, it was considered, in view of Chancellor Chamberlain's speech before the British commons, in which he said payment would be in silver, that such would be the case and that the President was not as yet informed of the form the payment would take.

Under the new inflation bill the President is authorized to accept silver in payment of debt installments at the value of 50 cents an ounce.

At the present silver market the British government, with stores of that metal in India, would save roughly $2,757,000 on the $10,000,000 payment. Britain paid, according to information from London, £1,756,000 for the silver from India, which, at yesterday's quotations, 36⅛ cents an ounce, would amount to $7,243,000.

"Token" Phrase Eliminated.

There was also nothing in the English offer indicating that it was a "token" of good will. The President had declined to accept this term, and instead Britain was required, at his insistence, to insert the phrase that the payment was offered "as an acknowledgment of the debt pending a final settlement."

No official and formal notification was received up to a late hour tonight as to what action will be taken tomorrow by 12 other European nations on other debt payments which, with England's due payment, aggregate more than 140 million dollars.

The President indicated he would apply the same principle to the other nations as he has to England, except in the cases of the countries, including France, which defaulted on the payments due last Dec. 15.

Italy is expected to follow much the same procedure as has England. France will repeat her default, calling it another "deferment pending settlement." Rumania and Finland will pay something. The nations of the little entente are expected to pay nothing.

Senate Criticism Launched.

As soon as word of the exchange of notes and of the President's explanatory statement had been flashed to Capitol hill several senators launched criticisms of Mr. Roosevelt's action.

Senator Arthur Robinson [Rep., Ind.], whose ballyhoo on the veterans' issue has raged off and on for days, started the barrage when he accused Mr. Roosevelt of canceling the debts, and ticketed him as "the same President, handing Europe this money, who is wanting to treat the veterans so cruelly, taking bread out of their mouths."

Robinson said the President was under the influence of Wall street, and that "Wall street wants the debts canceled and also wants the veterans' payments cut down."

Borah Sees No Jeopardy.

Senator William Borah [Rad., Ida.], former chairman of the foreign relations committee, in moderate tone said he did not see that the situation was changed in one way or the other.

"Great Britain has paid $10,000,000," he said, and added: "She owes the remainder and it is up to congress to say how it shall be paid."

Senator Hugo Black [Dem., Ala.], trying to put a bit of fire under Senator Reed and the other Republicans, brought up the Hoover debt moratorium.

"All the difference I can see is that we get $10,000,000 on this day, and with the moratorium we got nothing," he observed.

Although the President said that the debt question is for congress to decide, it was pointed out to him that still another due date, Dec. 15, will have arrived before the regular session of congress in January and that the same hurdle will have to be jumped on that date as appears in the present due date of tomorrow. The President revealed that this contingency has not been considered as yet.

The President made the two notes and his explanatory statement public at a press conference this afternoon. A hundred newspaper men gathered around his desk at half past three. The President, crunching out a cigaret in his ivory holder, picked up a sheaf of papers from his desk and explained that he intended to read the British note, the American reply, and the public statement he had prepared.

Hints of Sarcasm.

Mr. Roosevelt's rising and falling inflections gave evidence of his feeling on the contents of what he read. Some caught a tinge of sarcasm as he read the portion of the British note claiming that payment of the full amount due could not be made "without gravely imperiling the success of the [London] conference and involving widespread political consequences of a most serious character."

But he stressed with considerable show of satisfaction the later statement in the English note that "his majesty's government" proposed the 0 million dollar payment "as an acknowledgment of the debt."

Emphasizes American Reply.

Then, reading the American reply transmitted through diplomatic channels but drafted by the President himself, Mr. Roosevelt paused with obvious dramatic benefit before he read with an emphasis characteristic of him that he "by no means concedes some of the statements concerning the world-wide economic cause and effect contained in his majesty's government's communication, especially so far as they affect the economic conference."

The President's attitude is that Europe has deliberately sought to overcapitalize the weight which the debts bear upon the world economic situation.

Continuing his reading, the President with renewed emphasis delivered his paragraph holding that any settlement of debts or manner of their payment must be made by congress. Going lastly to his public statement, the President stressed as important his assertion that the British payment does not "in any sense prejudice the freedom of either government in any subsequent discussion of the entire debt question."

Clears British of Default.

The section in which he excused Britain from the stigma of a default, the British had ardently sought, it being the first time in centuries that that country has failed to honor her written bond, follows:

"In a spirit of coöperation I have executive noted the representations the British government with respect to the payment of the June 15 installment inasmuch as the payment made is accompanied by a clear acknowledgment of the debt itself. In view of those representations and of the payment I have no personal hesitation in saying that I do not characterize the resultant situation as a default."

U. S. ENVOYS HAIL ROOSEVELT MOVE ON WAR DEBTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 14. — President Roosevelt's concessions to the British move for a 90 per cent reduction of the war debts owed the United States were viewed by Secretary of State Hull and other members of the American delegation as profoundly improving the chances for a successful issue of the world economic conference. Although declining to comment for publication, Mr. Hull was palpably pleased by the position the President had taken.

Roosevelt partisans regard the president's handling of the debt situation as masterly. They point out that on the heels of the British prime minister's pronouncement yesterday that the economic conference cannot proceed without a war debt reduction, President Roosevelt agreed to discuss revision without committing himself.

It now becomes the debtor nations' move in the economic conference. If they fail to perform satisfactorily to President Roosevelt, it is declared, he can throw a monkey wrench into the debt revision talk.

Critics of the administration, however, think they perceive dangers in the situation. As they view it, the European powers have at least maneuvered Roosevelt into a position in which they expect to compel him to exchange reduction of debts for currency stabilization and tariff agreements at the economic conference.

FRENCH PRESS CALLS HULL'S SPEECH 'INANE'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 15.—[Thursday.]—Strongly worded attacks on Secretary of State Hull's speech at the London conference feature the French press this morning in contrast with the general praise of Chancellor of the Exchequer Chamberlain's address.

Saint-Brice, noted political writer, lads the attack in Le Journal with description of the American secretary's address as a "sonorous inanity," which, he says, is "nothing but maneuver in domestic politics."

Stephanne Lauzanne, editor of Le Matin, refers to Hull's effort as a pale address" whose main feature was the speaker's gestures. Both deplore what they regard as the absence of concrete proposals in the American's speech.

FRANCE SENDS DEFAULT NOTE TO WASHINGTON

PARIS, June 14. — (AP) — A French notice of debt default will be handed to the Washington government tomorrow forenoon by Ambassador Andre de Laboulaye. It was learned tonight after the return of Premier Daladier from the world economic conference in London that the notice will reiterate that the French positions are unchanged since the default of last December.

Belgium is expected to issue a note announcing that her financial situation is still less favorable than on Dec. 15 and makes the payment of the debt installment impossible. Czechoslovakia is understood to be following England's lead in paying 10 per cent on account.

by the Chinese delegation. Adjusting his black ribboned pince nez glasses, Hull launched into the reading of his prepared speech, which had been rewritten seven times, it was said, and twice edited by President Roosevelt.

Mr. Hull read on in his characteristic staccato accents and without gestures, but gradually warmed to his undertaking, particularly when he came to consider the possibility of the conference adjourning without putting an end to the "world wrecking economic policies" of the last decade. With real vigor and a show of fire, and with undoubted reference to the threats of the war debtors, Mr. Hull declaimed that any nation that selfishly wrecks the conference "will merit the execration of mankind."

Adverting to the development of economic nationalism, he accused every nation of "foolishly striving to lead a hermit's life." He paused and looked over his eyeglasses to watch this point sink in..

Mr. Hull concluded with an appeal for the establishment of world economic peace and descended from the dais amid applause of such volume as had been accorded no previous speaker except Neville Chamberlain, British chancellor of the exchequer.

"Must Banish Selfishness."

Mr. Hull's speech, in part, follows:

"If we are to succeed, narrow and self-defeating selfishness must be banished from every human heart within this council chamber. If, which God forbid, any nation should obstruct and wreck this great conference with the shortsighted notion that some of its favored interests might temporarily profit while thus indefinitely delaying aid for the distressed in every country, that nation will merit the execration of mankind.

"Ignoring all realities, all nations have strenuously pursued the policy of economic isolation, each futilely and foolishly striving to live a hermit's life.

"The cherished idea of the extreme type of isolationist that each nation singly can, by bootstrap methods, lift itself out of the troubles that surround it, has proven fruitless. Each nation by itself can to a moderate extent restore conditions by suitable fiscal, financial and economic steps.

"Thus, the administration of President Roosevelt has within three months adopted an effective domestic program to promote business improvement in the fullest possible measure. The equal necessity for an equally important international economic program of remedies is clear.

"When every nation is visited by disastrous panic it is for the isolationist a mere coincidence. For him no panic has an international character, cause or cure. He credulously believes that the present depression just happened to come upon all countries at the same time and that, despite demonstrated failure to do so since 1929, each by its own local program can at will restore full prosperity.

Says Millions Are Starving.

"Economic nationalism as practiced since the war comprises every known method of obstructing international capital and trade such as high tariffs, quotas, embargoes, exchange restrictions and depreciated currencies. Many governments by manifesto are constantly changing their tariff and other obstructions so that their utter lack of stability is seriously destructive of business.

"These trade barriers inevitably caused a disastrous reaction upon production, employment, prices and distribution within the confines of every nation. Under the ravages of these combined methods of extremism, uncounted millions of people are starving in some parts of the world, while other parts are glutted with vast surpluses. Raw materials are fenced off from factories, factories from consumers and consumers from foodstuffs.

"How many nations can get along without world trade? The indispensable nature of international commerce is better understood when we recall that most Latin-American countries ordinarily sell abroad from 30 to 85 per cent of their total production of movable goods; England must sell 25 per cent; Germany 30 per cent; Canada 30 per cent; Australia 30 per cent; New Zealand 40 per cent, and Japan 45 to 60 per cent.

Cites Big Drop in Trade.

"The strangulation of international trade from more than fifty billion dollars, the amount it should be according to the per-war rate of annual increase, down to a rate less than fifteen billion dollars reveals a most tragic phase of this shortsighted and ruthless policy. An international transaction has become an exception rather than rule. Each country proposes to sell but not to buy, to export but not to import, and to get rich at the expense of the other.

"The inevitable effect of these contradictory practices has been to reduce to the lowest level all prices of primary commodities bought and sold in world markets, with similar effects upon commodity prices back in each country.

"The inability of peoples in different countries to transfer goods in payment of balances strains all domestic financial structures. Currencies and exchanges become unstable. These practices, offensive and defensive, have forced business in every nation to an artificial basis and plunged the world into economic war.

Time to Call a Halt.

"The more extreme proponents of these disastrous policies in operation during the post-war period, in a spirit of mistaken selfishness or unreasoning fear, have insisted strenuously upon the very minimum of economic contacts with other nations. Their slogan has been the talismanic word "prosperity" and each nation living by itself was to grow rich and the people everywhere were to wax fat and be clothed in purple and fine linen. In their eyes it was unpatriotic not to buy home made goods regardless of costs.

"In the making of tariffs thought was given only to the safeguarding of the home market, even to the extent of protecting the more inefficient individual businesses, inefficient industries, and industries clearly not justifiable economically. No serious thought was given to the disposition of surplus production through exchanges. The home market was to be kept separate from the world market and prices bearing no relation to those of other countries would be fixed arbitrarily within each nation.

"Has not the time come for governments to cease erecting trade barriers with their excesses, rank discriminations, and hate breeding reprisals and retaliations?

A Discredited Policy.

"Honest intelligence now compels the admission that nations are substantially interrelated and interdependent in an economic sense, with the result that international coöperation today is a fundamental necessity. The opposing policy of self-containment has demonstrated its inability either to avoid or arrest or cure the most destroying depression in all the annals of business.

"This conference should proclaim that economic nationalism as imposed upon the various nations is a discredited policy; and from those who insist that the world should continue in this discredited policy the conference must turn aside. Many measures indispensable to full and satisfactory business recovery are beyond the powers of individual states. The extreme difficulty is manifest of one nation by itself undertaking largely to reduce its tariffs or to remove exchange restrictions or to stabilize its exchange and currency or to restore the international financial credit and trade structure.

"It is equally true that mutually profitable markets could only be obtained by the liberalization of the commercial policies of other countries and this is only possible by the simultaneous action of all governments stabilizing exchange and currencies and reducing to a reasonable extent trade barriers and other impediments to commerce between nations.

"This broad program, while disclaiming extreme economic internationalism on the one hand, would challenge extreme economic nationalism on the other and launch every nation upon a sane practical middle course. It would reciprocally supplement efficient home markets with capacious foreign markets.

"The world cannot longer go on as it is going at present. A successful meeting of this conference, in my judgment, is the key to widespread business recovery. While it is true that at the present time there does not exist a sufficiently informed public opinion in support of a necessary program of international economic cooperation, it is my firm conviction that the losses and sufferings of peoples in every country have been so great that they can soon be aroused into aggressive support of such a program.

"The first and greatest task at the present juncture is the development here in this hall of a will and a determination on the part of nations vigorously to advocate this course. Thereafter plans and methods will readily take form. My firm prayer, therefore, is for a spirit of coöperation necessary to create a unified leadership and program in this conference that will carry hope to the unnumbered millions in distress throughout the world.

Urges Temporary Truce.

"A preliminary step indicative of sincere purpose would be the immediate general adherence by all the participating governments to the tariff truce already agreed to by at least a dozen countries, to continue to the end of this conference.

"All excesses in the structure of trade barriers should be removed, all unfair trade methods and practices should be abandoned, the nations should attack these conditions and problems simultaneously.

"In the monetary field suitable measures must be taken to provide for an immediate policy which will give the greatest possible measure of stability for a period during which the ground work will be laid for enduring reform. Simultaneously all the nations must stimulate the natural sources of employment, restart the wheels of industry and commerce, and so build up consumer power that a rise of the price level will of necessity follow.

Would Define Function of Gold.

"Then the conference must face the vexing problem of a permanent international monetary standard and lay down the proper function of the metals, gold and silver, in the operations of such a standard in the future.

"Coincident with the immediate and ultimate monetary problems there is the necessity of taking measures for the removal of restrictions upon foreign exchange dealings.

"The American delegation is prepared to offer concrete suggestions in regard to all these questions."

British Note and U. S. Answer on Debt Payment

Washington, D. C., June 14.—(AP)—Sir Ronald Lindsay's note to the state department saying that Great Britain will pay $10,000,000 June 15 on the $75,950,000 due the United States on war debts that day follows:

"In reply to the note handed to me by the state department on June 9 I am directed by my government to make the following communication to you:

"It will be recalled that the general views of his majesty's government in the United Kingdom on war debts and on their relation to present world difficulties were explained in notes exchanged in November and December last.

Reservations on Prior Payment.

"His majesty's government at that time decided to make payment of the amount due on December 15th but they indicated clearly that this payment 'was not to be regarded as a resumption of annual payments contemplated by the existing agreements' and they announced their intention of treating this payment 'as a capital payment of which account should be taken in any final settlement.'

"Finally they pointed out that the procedure adopted 'must obviously be exceptional and abnormal' and they urged upon the United States government 'the importance of an early exchange of views with the object of concluding the proposed discussions before June 15th next in order to obviate a general breakdown of existing intergovernmental agreements.'

"His majesty's government in the United Kingdom adopted this procedure because they recognized the peculiar position in which the then United States administration was placed, and the impossibility of their undertaking any effective discussion of the problem at that time.

Hoped for Early Discussion.

"His majesty's government acted, however, on the understanding that the discussion would take place without delay, upon the provisions of the existing agreement in all its aspects, so as to arrive at a comprehensive and final settlement and in the belief that payment on December 15th would greatly increase the prospect of a satisfactory approach to the whole question.

"Negotiations were accordingly started even before the new administration was inaugurated; and his majesty's government in the United Kingdom have been most anxious to pursue them as rapidly as possible.

"On the occasion of the prime minister's visit to Washington the President and his advisers made preliminary explorations as to the basis of a clearer understanding of the situation. For reasons not within the control of either government, however, it has not yet been possible to arrive at a definite conclusion of these negotiations.

"A speedy conclusion is, however, urgently needed. The treatment of intergovernmental obligations must closely affect the solution of the problems with which the world conference has to deal, because they cannot be separated from influences which have brought the world to its present plight.

Prices Affected, Is Claim.

"For instance, it is generally agreed that one of the first and the most essential of our aims should be to increase the general level of commodity prices. It may be recalled that after the Lausanne conference there was a marked tendency for prices to rise, but that this tendency was reversed when the prospects of a final settlement of intergovernmental obligations receded, while the December payment was accompanied by a sharp fall in prices which was felt in America at least as much as in Europe. Experience, therefore, appears to show that the effect of these payments upon prices is very direct.

"In the opinion of his majesty's government it is essential for the success of the conference that the delegates should not be hampered and harassed by doubts about the possibility of a satisfactory settlement of war debts.

"Payment of a further installment of the debt at this juncture would inevitably be judged to mean that no progress whatever had been made towards such a settlement and would, therefore, deal a damaging blow at the confidence of the delegates.

Hopes for Postponement.

"In the circumstances and in view of their action last December, his majesty's government had hoped that the United States government would have been able to accede to the request of his majesty's government to postpone payment of the June installment pending discussion of war debts as a whole. Since, however, this does not appear to have been found possible, his majesty's government are obliged to decide upon their course of action.

"Such a decision must in any case be of an extremely difficult character and in considering it his majesty's government have felt their deep responsibility not only to their own people but to the whole world which is awaiting the deliberations and recommendations of the conference with the utmost anxiety.

"The conclusion at which his majesty's government have arrived is that payment of the June installment could not be made at this juncture without gravely imperiling the success of the conference and involving widespread political consequences of a most serious character.

"In their view the installment should be considered and discussed as part of the general subject of war debts upon which they are anxious to resume conversations as soon as they can be arranged.

Payment in Acknowledgment.

"In the meantime, in order to make it perfectly clear that they do not regard the suspension of the June payment as in any way prejudicing an ultimate settlement, his majesty's government propose to make an immediate payment of ten million dollars as an acknowledgment of the debt pending a final settlement.

"If, as they trust, the government of the United States is thereafter prepared to enter upon formal negotiations for an ultimate settlement of the whole war debt question, his majesty's government would gladly be informed of the time and place at which the United States government would desire such negotiations to be begun."

REPLY BY UNITED STATES

The United States reply to Great Britain, signed by Acting Secretary Phillips and addressed to Sir Ronald Lindsay, follows:

"In reply to the note handed to me by your excellency on the 13th instant, I am directed by the President to make the following reply:

"The President understands that his majesty's government have concluded that payment of the June fifteenth installment 'could not be made at this juncture without gravely imperiling the success of the conference and involving widespread political consequences of a most serious character.'

"He notes also that accompanying this communication is a payment of ten million dollars 'as an acknowledgment of the debt pending a final settlement,' and notes the characterization of the circumstances with which the British government accompanies this payment, although he, by no means, concedes some of the statements concerning the world-wide economic cause and effect contained in his majesty's government's communication, especially in so far as they affect the economic conference.

Willing for Discussion.

"The President points to his majesty's government the well known fact that it is not within his discretion to reduce or cancel the existing debt owed to the United States, nor is it within his power as President to alter the schedule of debt payments contained in the existing settlement. Such power rests with the congress.

"He notes likewise the suggestion of his majesty's government that they desire to make further representations concerning the entire question of the debt, and that his majesty's government requests that a time and place be indicated where such representations can be made to the President or the appropriate representative of the executive.

"The President suggests that his majesty's government provide for such representations to be made in Washington as soon as convenient.

"Any results of such a discussion of the debt question can be submitted for the information or the consideration of the congress when it next meets."

ROOSEVELT GIVES VIEWS ON BRITISH WAR DEBT ACTION

Text of Statement Made by President.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 14.—[Special.]—The text of President Roosevelt's statement on the British payment of an installment of $10,000,000 on account of its war debt to the United States follows:

"The British government has today announced a payment to the United States of ten million dollars with a note indicating that this payment is to be considered 'as an acknowledgment of the debt pending a final settlement.' It has in its accompanying note pointed out circumstances that have induced it to take this action.

"Such payment does not, of course, in any sense prejudice the freedom of either government in any subsequent discussion of the entire debt question which will take account of this and other debt payments. I announced in November, 1932, a policy to the effect that a debtor may at any time approach a creditor with representations concerning the debt and to ask for readjustment of the debt or its terms of payment.

Informal Discussions Held.

"Under such circumstances the debtor government may make such representations as it deems of importance with respect to the desirability of readjustment in the terms already agreed upon. The British government availed itself of this principle following the payment of the Dec. 15 payment, and I had informal discussions concerning the debt with the British ambassador even before my inauguration.

"On the occasion of the visit of the prime minister of Great Britain in April further exploration of the subject was made by us and additional discussions were held by the experts of the two governments. Time and circumstances would not permit any definite conclusions in these discussions because at the moment both governments were vitally concerned in making preparations for the world monetary and economic conference in London.

"It seems the part of fairness and wisdom to postpone formal representations on the debt subject until later. Meanwhile the world economic conference is beginning under favorable auspices and it is vitally necessary that during the opening days of the conference difficult and possibly protracted discussion of the debt be avoided.

Holds Debt Is Acknowledged.

"In the spirit of coöperation I have as executive noted the representations of the British government with respect to the payment of the June 15 installment inasmuch as the payment made is accompanied by a clear acknowledgment of the debt itself. In view of those representations and of the payment I have no personal hesitation in saying that I do not characterize the resultant situation as a default.

"Beyond this the law and the constitution do not permit me to go. The American public understands clearly that the settlement under which these debts are now being paid was made under the authority of congress and that congress alone has the right to alter the amount and method of payment of this debt. Further than this the congress in December, 1931, in approving the moratorium in June of that year specifically set forth that the debt should not be canceled or reduced.

"Under my constitutional power and in accordance with the terms of the policy which I have set forth, I can entertain representations of the British government concerning the entire debt settlement and the British government has requested that such opportunity be afforded. I have, therefore, suggested to them that such representations be made in Washington as soon as convenient.

Debts Not Included.

"As a matter of information to the American public I want to make it clear that the economic conference now being held in London does not include in its program any consideration of the debts owed by various governments to the United States. The American delegates have been instructed not to discuss debts with the representatives of any of the debtor governments. This is in accordance with the further principle that I felt important, that the debts be considered on their merits and separate from other international economic questions.

"I have further informed the British government that such representations and suggestions as may be made to me by the British representatives when they discuss the problem in Washington will be submitted to the congress for information and consideration when the congress next meets."

London Fears Congress' Debt Reaction

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 15.—[Thursday.]—Congress, that European bugaboo, peers like a specter through a hilariously favorable press heaping encomiums on the head of President Roosevelt for his acceptance of a reduced installment on the British war debt. One and all, the British newspapers this morning hail President Roosevelt's courage. Unanimously, however, they point out that the American legislature finally draws the purse string.

"President Roosevelt has accepted in a most generous and most statesmanlike spirit the payment which our government has made," says the Daily Mail. "The collapse of trade and the fall in values has altered all conditions which existed when the debt agreement was concluded ten years ago, and the disappearance of reparations payments has destroyed the source from which in 1923 it was thought the debt payments could be made."

The same spirit was manifested by the New Chronicle, which adds:

"President Roosevelt has suggested a basis for final liquidation of the that representations concerning a debt settlement should be made in Washington as soon as convenient. He means, in effect, that if he has to go to congress with no substantial returns at all to show for his concessions, he can do no more.

"If, on the other hand, the world economic conference has justified his use of it as an excuse for his comsays that with acceptance of the token payment and the opening of negotiations for a final settlement his own powers are exhausted. This promise and provides him with a substantial return in the way of trade recovery to offer American opinion as debt, progress may be possible."

The conservative Daily Telegraph asserts that surprise was occasioned by the willingness to accept the entire semi-payment in silver drawn from India, "where there is a surplus of the metal." It marks this as recognition by President Roosevelt that even a minor movement of gold would upset the world's economics even further.

144 MILLION IN WAR DEBTS DUE U. S. TODAY FROM 13 NATIONS

Washington, D. C., June 14.—(AP)—A total of $144,000,000 in war debts is due this country tomorrow.

The amounts individual countries owe are:

	Principal.	Interest.
Great Britain		$75,950,000
France	$21,477,000	19,261,000
Italy	12,300,000	1,245,000
Belgium	4,200,000	2,125,000
Czechoslovakia	1,500,000
Rumania	1,000,000
Poland		3,559,000
Estonia		284,322
Finland		14,859
Hungary		28,260
Latvia		118,961
Lithuania	39,705	92,368
Jugo-Slavia	275,000

The prospects for payment:

Great Britain and Italy have offered to make partial settlements, the English paying $10,000,000 today.

France is ready to default, as she did on the Dec. 15 payments.

Belgium definitely has decided to default. It also defaulted on Dec. 15.

Rumania apparently will follow the lead of Great Britain and offer partial payment.

Poland, Czechoslovakia and Jugo-Slavia may follow France in defaulting.

In December Poland obtained a postponement on her payment of principal and defaulted on interest.

The position of the other countries is uncertain.

The total debt payments due for the year ending June 30 are about $268,000,000, of which $98,686,000 was received in December. Great Britain and Italy paid on schedule then, the English paying the bulk.

BRITISH PAY U. S. IN SILVER; SAVE HALF OF PAYMENT

Will Get Metal from India, Chamberlain Says.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 14.—To a cheering house of commons Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, made his long delayed statement tonight on how he had succeeded in inducing the American President to accept $10,000,000 as a part payment on the $75,950,000 June installment "without prejudice to the total war debt" and moreover that the United States accept payment in silver at 50 cents an ounce.

Yesterday's price in New York was 36½ cents, and as Chamberlain announced that the British government would acquire this silver from the government of India which holds immense stocks purchased at much lower rates, the actual payment may not amount to much more than half the nominal sum.

Against Repudiation.

Chamberlain rose just after 10 o'clock tonight, which was the same time Roosevelt was speaking in Washington. He recited the history of the negotiations beginning with the December payment. He declared that it was then determined that Britain could not go on paying indefinitely and that she hoped to obtain a revision of the Baldwin-Mellon settlement before the June payment fell due. Britain was anxious to get the question out of the way before the world economic conference met in London, but this, too, proved impossible, he said.

On the other hand Britain felt the strongest objection to any course placing her in the position of repudiation, the chancellor went on. She therefore decided to offer a payment of $10,000,000 with acknowledgment of the debt pending a final settlement.

"I am happy to say that the President, while formally taking note of our communication, has issued a statement which shows he appreciates the spirit in which our proposal was made," Chamberlain said. He then read an extract in which the President declared he did not characterize the situation today as default. He added that the President had suggested negotiations for a final settlement be taken up at Washington as soon as convenient.

Diehards Are Pleased.

As Chamberlain concluded the house rose to its feet, cheering and waving order papers in a demonstration such as hardly has been seen since the excited days of the war.

Even Winston Churchill, who is leading the Tory fight against the government on its Indian policy, joined in the love feast. The only sour note came from James Maxton, a left wing Laborite, who said it seemed to him that all that happened was that an insolvent debtor went to his creditor, said he could not pay, and what about something on account. All he gathered from the chancellor was that Britain had obtained six months more time and hoped these six months would produce more than the last fifteen years.

During the debate a white paper giving the text of the correspondence between the two governments was laid on the table, but it contained nothing not summarized in the chancellor's speech. In the lobbies of the house after adjournment a confident prediction was made generally that this would be the last payment Britain would be called upon to make.

PICK 4 JURORS TO TRY HUSBAND AS WIFE SLAYER

The selection of a jury to try Otto E. Luetz, 41 years old, charged with the murder of his wife, Myrtle, was started yesterday afternoon before Judge Harry Lewis in the Criminal court. Four jurors had been selected when court adjourned.

Doris Luetz, 14 year old daughter of the defendant, is the only witness to the killing. According to Defense Attorneys James M. Burke and George Crane, she will testify in her father's behalf. She also is expected to be called as a prosecution witness. The girl at first tried to convince the police that she had killed her mother, but later she admitted that her father had fired the fatal shots.

Attorney Burke, in questioning the prospective jurors, indicated that Luetz's defense would be that he was temporarily insane from drinking moonshine liquor.

BRITAIN ASSAILS POLICIES OF U. S.; PARLEY CHEERS

Chamberlain Insists on War Debt Revision.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 14.—Great Britain boldly took the lead at the world economic conference today. Through its chief spokesman, Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, it laid before the delegates of the 66 nations its plan for meeting and curing the world depression.

Chamberlain was received with cheers and was given an ovation at the conclusion of his speech.

Urges Halt in Wage Cutting.

Chamberlain read his speech, in a dry, unemotional voice, with no attempt at oratorical flourishes, and, while not interrupted until the end, when he was loudly cheered, from time to time low murmurs of approval came from the delegates' benches.

The speech fell into two parts, a review of economic history since the war and the mistakes made, and second, the proposed remedies. He stressed the need of a rise in the price level, and declared against the policy of cutting wages and costs. These, he said, only tended to cause taxation to become a larger portion of the national revenue until an intolerable situation is created.

Chamberlain also injected the usual sour note about war debts. The chancellor said there could be no effective measures for world recovery until the debts are finally settled.

Denounces U. S. Policies.

Throughout, Chamberlain's speech was directed against American policies. He denounced high tariffs, which he said fostered inefficient industries. He denounced subsidies, and particularly shipping subsidies, whether given for building or for running industries and whether directly for operation or in the form of overgenerous mail contracts.

Chamberlain said he was against quotas unless they were quotas by international agreement to regulate production, and he did not think much of any scheme of public works to relieve unemployment. In short, everything in the present American policy is wrong, according to Chamberlain.

Coming to practical proposals, he said that a stable money is necessary and that the gold standard seemed generally acceptable, but that before a return could be made to gold three conditions must be satisfied.

Conditions Are Listed.

These three conditions were: First, a general rise in prices; second, an adjustment of factors which caused the breakdown before and might cause it again, including disturbances by payments of reparations and war debts, excessive tariffs, and exchange restrictions, and, third, the gold standard must be so administered in the future as to prevent wide fluctuations in the purchasing power of gold.

Among the measures Chamberlain recommended for this were the withdrawal of gold from internal circulation and its use only to settle international balances, reduction of the legal proportions of gold required by central banks to back currencies, and closer permanent cooperation between the central banks.

The chancellor also suggested an investigation to find some means for the redistribution of gold so that the stocks could be sent to countries short of gold from those which have a surplus.

Litvinov Asks Truce.

Maxim Litvinov, Russian foreign commissar, was another speaker today. He proposed a world pact of economic nonaggression, looking toward the abolition of all weapons of economic warfare.

He said the attitude of the capitalistic world toward soviet Russia was a contributing factor in the political uncertainty of the world and urged recognition of the peaceful coexistence of the two systems—capitalism and socialism.

Litvinov said Russia is the only country in the world not affected by the crisis. Its trade, he said, has increased 219 per cent during a period when the trade of all the rest of the world as dwindling. Employment in Russia, Litvinov said, has gone up from 11,600,000 to 22,800,000.

Russia, the commissar continued, is prepared to place huge orders for goods on terms. These terms are lengthened credits and normal conditions for soviet exports. On these terms, Litvinov said, Russia is ready to place orders in the near future for a billion dollars' worth of goods.

Listing the goods Russia is in the market for, Litvinov said his country is ready to buy, among other things, $200,000,000 worth of ferrous metals, $100,000,000 worth of raw materials for the textile, leather, and rubber industries, $400,000,000 worth of machinery, $35,000,000 worth of agricultural goods and live stock, $50,000,000 worth of tea, coffee and herring, and $50,000,000 worth of new ships.

Six Nations Join Tariff Truce.

Engelbert Dollfuss, midget chancellor of Austria, also spoke before leaving by air for Vienna to deal with the Nazis and carry on his defiance of Hitlerite Germany. He urged that each country put its own affairs in order, and drew attention to Austria's struggle to pay its debts and balance the budget.

Before the speaking began Prime Minister MacDonald, as president of the conference, announced that four more nations—The Netherlands, Finland, Denmark, and Rumania—had agreed to join the temporary tariff truce for the duration of the conference. Later in the day Austria and Russia announced their adherence, bringing the number of participating states up to 21. MacDonald urged all nations which had not already done so to fall in line.

Paul Hymans of Belgium was elected vice president of the conference by acclamation.

St. Louis, Mo., June 14.—[Special.]—The inaugural tow of the federal barge line's through service from New Orleans to Chicago over the lakes to the gulf waterway will arrive in St. Louis at 10 o'clock Friday, J. P. Higgins, general traffic manager of the barge line, announced today.

ROB CURRENCY EXCHANGE AFTER TERRORIZING 12

A dozen clerks and patrons were terrorized in a currency exchange at 3500 Archer avenue yesterday afternoon when five gunmen entered the place and looted the cashiers' cages of $2,000. They then drove west on 35th street in a small green sedan which had no license plates.

Carrying two brief cases and a canvas money bag, four of the men drew their revolvers when they entered, leaving the fifth man at the wheel of their car. Miss Gertrude Ott, 3418 South Leavitt street, a stenographer; Willard F. Cummings, 5000 Cornell avenue, receiver of the South-West Trust and Savings bank, in the building of which the exchange is operated, and Harry W. Miller, 6247 Blackstone avenue, were among those forced to lie on the floor while the robbers stuffed the money into their bags. From Miller the men took $70 in nickels which he was about to deposit. He is a collector for the Illinois Bell Telephone company.

U. S. WINS FRENCH FINANCE CHIEF TO INFLATION POLICY

Temporary Stabilization Agreement Near.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 14.—A split devolped today in the French delegation to the world economic conference between orthodox gold standardists and exponents of an economic new deal. This opens up unforeseen though still remote possibilities that this conference will lead to the monetary accord desired by President Roosevelt.

George Bonnet, French finance minister, who has taken charge of the French delegation following the departure today of Premier Daladier for Paris, personally favors a liberal monetary policy, it is believed, although he cannot officially admit it for reasons connected with internal politics.

Faces Conservative Opposition.

If he can overcome the opposition of the conservative financial elements, represented in the French delegation by the envoys of the Bank of France and experts of his own ministry, he will be ready to join President Roosevelt and Prime Minister MacDonald in a bold policy of price raising. The conservatives, however, appear to have public opinion and parliament back of them.

While Premier Daladier has been more cautious than Bonnet about expressing heretical views, many believe he is personally a partisan to devaluation. Officially, however, he has refused to hear anything about it and financial conservatives unquestionably are still dominating French policy.

Legal devaluation of the franc to effect price raising remains out of the question, but open market purchases by the Bank of France along lines followed by the Federal Reserve system in the United States, and remonetization of silver are possibilities. This would effect a face saving form of devaluating the franc without seeming to do so.

Predicts Early Agreement.

Already there is a changed spirit on monetary questions around the French delegation. Bonnet tonight said he is optimistic about some kind of de facto stabilization agreement being reached between the dollar and pound within 48 hours. The French are willing to accept this in its simplest form—a monetary truce whereby America would agree for the duration of the conference not to let the dollar drop below a certain figure and the British would do the same.

The figures tentatively suggested would allow the dollar a maximum depreciation of 20 per cent and the pound a maximum depreciation of 33 per cent from the former gold parities. This is close to the present level of the two currencies. The whole question is now up to President Roosevelt.

Bonnet had a long conversation today with James P. Warburg, financial adviser to the American delegation, and later Bonnet and Cordell Hull, American secretary of state, were brought together by Warburg for a 30 minute chat.

Fight for Monetary Post.

Bonnet also saw James M. Cox, vice chairman of the American delegation. This conversation concerned the question of appointing Cox to the chairmanship of the monetary committee of the conference, which the French continue to oppose. A vote on this important post is scheduled for tomorrow and a bitter fight is expected by the gold standard countries to defeat the American candidate.

Bonnet's conversations with Warburg and Hull led to an entirely different understanding by the French of the American position. Hull assured Bonnet that the American monetary policy is not aimed at underselling European countries, and that while immediate stabiliation with regard to gold is impossible the United States is willing to stabilize with regard to the pound and franc so the United States will not have a trade advantage over France and England. Bonnet was greatly impressed with this assurance.

U. S. Envoys Find London Conference a Drain on the Pocketbook; Cry 'Who'll Pay the Bill'

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 14.—Sordid pecuniary considerations are threatening to cast a shadow over the cultural and social activities of the world economic conference.

Although the fun has hardly started yet—the conference was only enjoying its second function of the party season tonight and there are 15 more on the calendar—killjoys already are raising the question of who is to pay the bill.

The question applies to the bill which the various governments, including the American, will settle in the name of their respective taxpayers, and to the bills which the delegates will have to—presumably—settle out of their own pockets.

Americans Want to Know.

The second question is particularly heard around the American delegation. Claridge's hotel, where American headquarters is established, is just about London's swankiest, but a special rate was made for members of the American delegation—a flat sum of 25 shillings—about $5 at the present rate of exchange.

This includes bed service, one meal per day and bus transportation to and from the conference. Anything else has to be paid for extra at the usual Claridge's rates. Worse, this rate does not include the wives of delegates. Some of the delegation families, formerly closely united, are reported to have developed modernistic ideas and the wives are leading independent lives in a more modest hostelry around the corner. In some cases these delegation widows do not even see their hubbies more than once a day for meals.

This is sad for delegates of the United States, for the expense allowance granted them by Uncle Sam is limited to $6 per day.

What About the Laundry?

After Claridge's has taken its $5 cut out of this allowance, delegates have only a buck left to treat their friends in other delegations to the Slivovitz vodka or bourbon whisky and other exotic drinks dispensed at the delegates' bar. As long as the popularity of the American delegation is quoted at the present levels this is more than adequate, but then there's laundry to be considered.

Sartorial cleanliness comes high at Claridge's. This hits some of the girl stenographers attached to the delegation particularly hard. One of them is reported to have fallen into a gentle swoon when handed the bill for washing and ironing a teddy bear. It was well below the total of the British war debt installment, but Claridge's, while they will take silver, frown on token payments.

The girls solved the problem by organizing a teddy bear committee and are now taking turns strolling out each morning with a suspiciously stuffed brief case bound for a little laundry nearby.

League Expects U. S. Donation.

The other question, about the cost of the conference to the taxpayers, is not being officially raised yet, but THE TRIBUNE learned today that it will come up some time. The conference originally was financed out of the league of nations' yearly budget. Since the British wanted the conference in London, instead of Geneva, they agree to pay the league all costs over what it would cost to hold it at Geneva.

It is rumored that the British have already signified that they will stand the gaff for six weeks and after that the league will have to shoulder the burden or move the conference back to Switzerland.

Since the conference is financed out of the league budget, non league members have technically nothing to pay. They are guests. Eventually, however, the league officials hope the United States will make a voluntary contribution to the league for their share of the costs. Geneva manners, however, do not allow them to speak to a guest about such a delicate matter.

Think Roosevelt Will Act.

"We would not think of asking the American delegation to pay anything," a league official said today, "but I imagine they will want to pay their share. I am sure the American delegates would not like to think they are being carried along by the other nations and would feel it undignified for a great nation like the United States to be placed in such a position."

The league is convinced that later on, when the costs of the conference can be computed more accurately, President Roosevelt will save America from the disgrace of being an international deadhead by asking congress for an appropriation for America's share in the conference.

This procedure was adopted for the disarmament conference, to which the United States contributed $80,000. The economic conference quota will be less, it is said.

CANADIANS PLAN WARM WELCOME FOR ROOSEVELT

WELCHPOOL, N. B., June 14.—(AP)—J. F. Calder, president of the Campo Bello Board of Trade, said today he had received word that President Roosevelt, accompanied by his entire family, would arrive at Welchpool, Campo Bello Island, on June 29 on the reconditioned American naval cruiser Indianapolis. The cruiser will be escorted by two destroyers.

Officials at Campo Bello already are planning an elaborate celebration of welcome. When Mr. Roosevelt was a boy he spent his summers on the island, where his father built a picturesque summer home half a century ago. Some residents still refer to him as "Frank."

ROPER TO CLOSE 21 OF 53 OF U. S. TRADE OFFICES

Washington, D. C., June 14.—[Special.]—Reorganization of the commerce department's foreign service, in the interest of economy will mean the closing of 21 of the 53 offices abroad, Secretary Roper announced today.

Out of the present staff of 168, a total of 100 will be recalled and most of them separated from the service. The offices will be closed on June 30, while the personnel separations will take place on July 31.

Mr. Roper said most of the offices to be closed are located in less important countries from an exporting standpoint.

"As part of its program for tightening up the efficiency of its service at greatly reduced expense to the government," Secretary Roper said, "the department of commerce announces the closing of 21 of its 53 foreign offices."

GIRL VICTIM, 19, HELPS CAPTURE ROBBER IN LOOP

Miss Isabelle Gomoll, 19 years old, 4243 North Marmora avenue, yesterday pursued through loop streets a robber who had snatched her purse and, with the aid of Policeman John Moran, captured him at State and Madison streets. At the Central station Miss Gomoll said that the $6 in the purse was part of the first week's salary she had been able to work for in a year. The purse snatcher, a man about 20 years old, refused to give the police his name or address.

INDICT RACKET UNION OFFICIALS IN MURDER CASE

See End of Terror Reign Against Merchants.

Four officials of the Circular Distributors' union and the 24 year old sweetheart of one of the men were reported named yesterday in true bills charging them with the murder of Stanley Gross, 21 years old, a guard for Goldblatt's store at 1609 West Chicago avenue, on last May 23.

The defendants are John Jilson, president of the union; John Rooney, secretary and treasurer; Herbert Arnold and Henry Berry, business agents, and Miss Rosalie Rizzo, 24 years old, 2844 South Cuyler avenue, said to be the sweetheart of Rooney.

Vote Second True Bill.

The same group were reported named in a second true bill voted by the grand jury charging them with malicious mischief. The charge is based on the campaign of window smashing, stench bombing, and acid throwing directed against the Goldblatt stores and other Chicago merchants who refused to hire members of the union.

The true bills were sought after Rooney, who is 36 years old and lives at 1220 South Ridgeland avenue, Berwyn, and Miss Rizzo were brought back from Phelps, Wis., in the Eagle river resort country. The two were seized in a raid at dawn Tuesday on a cabin near Phelps known as "The Spider's Den."

Berry has been in the county jail for more than a week, police revealed. Search has been started for Jilson and Arnold. The case against Rooney, said to be the leading figure in the plot, and the other defendants was termed by attachés of the state's attorney's office as one of the few labor murders in which convicting evidence has been gathered.

The raid on the Wisconsin cabin followed months of investigation, started even before the murder of Gross, by Policemen Bert Gray and Charles Prybl, assigned to the state's attorney's office.

Courtney Visits Scene.

The Phelps hideout had been under surveillance for some time. On Sunday State's Attorney Courtney went to Phelps to view the scene of the intended raid. He counseled patience and returned to Chicago. Word was received Monday night that some of the gang were in the cabin. Three squads of police, ready to shoot it out with the hoodlums if the latter resisted, surrounded the cabin and arrested Rooney and the Rizzo woman. The prisoners were placed in automobiles and brought to Illinois without the formality of extradition.

The murder of Gross, who was shot to death on his 21st birthday, climaxed a campaign of threats and terrorism directed at the Goldblatt stores. On the night of the murder Gross and Edwin Wilcox were sitting in a car parked in front of the store when a small sedan cruised slowly past the store. As the car drew opposite the guards a man leaned out and shot Gross in the head.

Two Witnesses Ready.

State's Attorney Courtney said yesterday that one state witness is prepared to identify Rooney as the driver of the car. Another witness has identified the voice of Rooney as that of the man who shouted "I got that dirty ——" as the slayer's car drove away, the state's attorney said.

A story of what occurred on the night of the murder has been pieced together from the testimony of various persons interviewed in the investigation, according to the state's attorney. He said the evidence showed that Rooney appeared at the union headquarters at 9 North Racine avenue on the night of May 22 and, after talking to members for a time, cleared the rooms of every one save his cronies, now defendants in the murder case.

A drinking party followed, State's Attorney Courtney said, and Rooney discussed the fact that policemen were watching the headquarters from a building across the street. Berry was sent to the building to smash a window and attract the attention of police.

Appears with Revolver.

Later Rooney is said to have left the headquarters and telephoned Berwyn 2981, the apartment he maintained for Miss Rizzo at 6348 West 13th street. Shortly after the Rizzo woman appeared at the union rooms with a revolver, the state's attorney said.

Miss Rizzo drove away in a small sedan, the state's attorney asserted, and was followed by Rooney and Berry who rode in Rooney's automobile. On the way to the scene of the murder, according to police, Rooney and Berry traded cars with Miss Rizzo and she went to her apartment.

After the shooting, which occurred early in the morning of May 23, Rooney is said to have returned to the union headquarters and telephoned Miss Rizzo to tell her: "We got him." She was instructed, the state's attorney said, to "get the gun and take it out and dump it."

Muscles Into Union.

The stormy career of the circular distributors' union was traced yesterday by State's Attorney Courtney. He said that the union was first organized in 1924 by Charles McCauley and Carles Levine. Then Rooney muscled in as organizer, according to the state's attorney, and became strong enough to drive out the legitimate officials.

"This concludes one of our most difficult cases," the state's attorney said. "Rooney has been responsible for a reign of terror against department stores. Windows were broken, acid was thrown on merchandise and awnings were cut."

An examination of records of the union seized by police showed that monthly dues of $1.25 were demanded from members as well as a fee of 25 cents for each working day. The membership was limited, police said, and a fee of 50 cents a day was collected from permit men when extra help was needed.

Money obtained from the permit men brought the union officials an estimated income of $60,000 a year, according to the state's attorney. Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan, who participated in the investigation, said that the campaign of terrorism followed the refusal of some of the large department stores to accept the union service.

"The campaign was also directed against Mandel brothers," Coghlan said. "This store had engaged Flint Grinnell, former head of the better business bureau, to handle the distribution of circulars. He hired Boy Scouts and paid them a nominal fee. On May 12, six stench bombs were placed in the department store, driving several thousand customers to the street."

Rooney's Brother Slain.

Rooney, who is married and the father of four children, is a brother of William J. Rooney, leader of the Sheet Metal Workers union, who was murdered in March, 1931. Rooney has been arrested on charges of robbery, but never convicted.

His romance with Miss Rizzo had a strange beginning, according to police records. In May, 1929, police were told that Rooney had kidnaped the Rizzo woman from the home of her sister, Mrs. Rose Ferris, 2824 Washington boulevard. Rosalie had returned home with blackened eyes and lips discolored and announced that Rooney had beaten her because "she knew too much." Later in the day Rooney and another man appeared, the sister said, slugged her husband, Allen Ferris, drew revolvers and forced Rosalie to go with them.

Rooney was questioned concerning the murder of Nicholas Maggio and Anthony Persico, beer runners, who were shot to death at Cumberland road and Irving Park boulevard on Dec. 7, 1932. He was later released.

The parents of Gross, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Gross, 1320 North Kedzie avenue, said yesterday that they "were not much interested in the case."

"Nothing they can do will bring our boy back," Mrs. Gross said.

Actress Plans Chicago Divorce

Agree to Separate

New York, June 14.—(AP)—Mary Hay, former wife of Richard Barthelmess, said today that she and her present husband, David Bath, have arranged amicably for a divorce.

The actress returned Saturday from Europe.

"We discussed the matter," she said, "and decided that it had best be secured in the fall and in Chicago. The grounds will be incompatibility."

MINISTER KIDNAPED; RESCUED BY POSSE; ABDUCTOR CAPTURED

Joplin, Mo., June 14.—(AP)—The Rev. J. W. Waits, a Methodist minister, was kidnaped early today at his home near Sulphur Springs, Ark., but was rescued by a posse of citizens which captured the alleged abductor.

The minister was forced at the point of a gun to enter an automobile and was driven north of Sulphur Springs, where he was rescued by the posse on the top of a mountain. The alleged kidnaper, described as intoxicated, offered resistance, but was disarmed and tied up.

Taken to jail at Bentonville, Ark., the man said he was H. L. Duke of Pittsburg, Kas.

The minister was not harmed.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 14.—[Special.]—Two princes of the house of Mdivani in Georgia [not the Georgia that Sherman marched through] are going to be busy this summer in the California courts.

Today Prince Serge's wife, Mary McCormic of the films, filed a suit for separate maintenance, alleging cruelty. Prince David Mdivani's wife, Mae Murray, also a motion picture actress, already has sued for divorce, on the ground of unreasonable jealousy.

For Receiverships, Too.

Also, a receiver for the business interests of the two princes from Georgia was appointed in the Superior court today. Both Miss Murray and Miss McCormic, in affidavits supporting this action, declared they backed their husbands in financial ventures and not only failed to get the money back but were not supported by the princes as princesses, and certainly not as film favorites should be supported.

Miss McCormic alleged in her bill for separate maintenance that Prince Serge, who had attacks of temper about once every three weeks, beat and cuffed her, blacked her eyes, locked her in her room, and threatened to cripple her for life.

Married in Phoenix.

The couple were married in Phoenix, Ariz., April 17, 1931, shortly after Prince Serge had been divorced from Pola Negri.

Miss Murray demands a property accounting and a $600 a month separation allowance. She alleged there was community property of more than $100,000.

Princes Serge and David are said to be in Paris, where they went several months ago for the funeral of their father, who was a Russian officer in the army of the czar. Another brother, Prince Alexis, is to marry Miss Barbara Hutton, heiress to the Woolworth fortune, in the French capital.

Screams of Woman Rout Gunman from Dress Shop

When a gunman entered a dress shop at 4833 North Talman avenue yesterday the proprietor, Mrs. Lydia Lamberson, screamed. The robber, a young and well dressed man, thrust his pistol at her and shouted that he would shoot if she didn't hush. Mrs. Lamberson screamed a little louder and the man fled.

FAIR ATTENDANCE A RECORD FOR 3D SUCCESSIVE DAY

Public School Pupils Give Music Festival Today.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Attendance of 85,643 persons at the Fair yesterday was the third record breaker since a cooling breeze drove unseasonably high temperatures from Chicago last Sunday afternoon. The turnout yesterday was the largest the Fair has had, with the exception of the opening day, a Saturday, and Memorial day, a holiday.

The rush to the Fair set a similar record Monday. Tuesday saw Monday's mark exceeded, and yesterday there was a new high figure.

Flag day was observed at the Fair yesterday with the two major programs being presented by the city of Evanston and the Daughters of the American Revolution. The United States army troops from Camp Whistler, in the Exposition grounds, participated with an escort to the standard in the Avenue of Flags at 3 p. m., followed by a formal parade at the Agricultural building at 4 p. m.

As special attractions today music programs will be featured. Music festivals will be presented by the junior high schools and the public elementary schools of Chicago in the court of the Hall of Science. The United Mothers' chorus, sponsored by the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, will present a program in the court of the Hall of Science at 2:30 p. m.

Evanston Day Program Held.

Sharing honors with the Fag day services, Evanston day at the Fair was observed with officials of the Exposition, Northwestern university and the city of Evanston participating in the program. More than a thousand north shore residents thronged the court of the Hall of Science at the start of the ceremonies.

Among the speakers were Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Fair; Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university, and Mayor Charles H. Bartlett of Evanston. The official party traveled in automobiles to the 18th street entrance, where it was met by Fair officials and taken for a tour of the grounds.

On behalf of the residents of Evanston Mayor Bartlett presented President Dawes with a scroll honoring him for his work in the presentation of the Exposition. In his talk the mayor traced the development of Evanston since its first settlement 83 years ago, and said that residents of the north shore were an integral part of the progress of the last century in Chicago.

Send Up Three Flags.

The American Legion post of Evanston and a drum and bugle corps stood at attention during the flag raising ceremonies. Three flags were raised—the American colors, the official flag of Evanston, and the Northwestern university colors. James R. Ozanne, the Evanston commissioner to the Fair, presided at the ceremony.

The D. A. R. observance was held in the court of the Hall of States following a luncheon at the Blue Ribbon casino. Five hundred members of the national society participated in the flag raising ceremonies.

Nation-wide participation in the ensuing months of the Exposition was promised yesterday by members of the National Editorial association, who toured the grounds in a group of 220 under the direction of E. Ross Bartley, director of promotion.

Officials of the Fair, anxious to make Children's day such a success that it will become a weekly event at the Exposition, yesterday completed plans for tomorrow when the second such day will be presented. It is expected a much larger crowd than was drawn by the first Friday special day will attend.

Trade Association Protests Rail Line in Grant Park

A protest against construction of a narrow gauge railroad in Grant park from the Monroe street parking station to the Roosevelt road entrance of the World's Fair was filed with the Illinois commerce commission yesterday by the Chicago Association of Commerce. The protest was signed by George W. Rossetter, president of the association.

Under an ordinance passed by the south park board construction of the narrow gauge line has already been started by the Grant Park Transportation company, although the company has not received a permit from the commerce commission. A petition for a certificate of convenience of necessity filed by the company is now before the commission and a hearing is to be held today.

Rossetter Tells Position.

Mr. Rossetter in his communication to the commission declared that the Association of Commerce is opposed t oany commercial use of Grant park. He said that under the Montgomery Ward decision many years ago construction of private projects on the park property was forbidden. The association feels, Mr. Rossetter said, that present transportation agencies are adequate to serve World's Fair crowds.

During the day representatives of other civic organizations opposed to the narrow gauge line met at the City club to prepare to fight the company's petition at the hearing today. They indicated that if the company is granted a permit they would appeal to the courts for an injunction.

Richard Prendergast, head of the narrow gauge company, said yesterday that some of the Association of Commerce members who drew up the protest had since told him they were misinformed as to the company purposes and had feared the tracks would be permanent.

"Officials of the Art Institute, the Field museum and the Shedd aquarium all approved the temporary railroad," Prendergast said. "The aquarium and the museum have both granted us a right of way on their own property."

Mr. Pendergast added that the Fair officials had been consulted and had approved his plans.

This was verified by Leroy Irvine, in charge of transportation for the Exposition. "We feel that any move to speed up transportation of visitors to the Fair will be a help to us," said Mr. Irvine.

Company Takes the Risk.

It was explained that the company is going ahead with construction at its own risk, since the commerce commission may refuse a permit for the line. Benjamin F. Lindheimer, chairman of the commission, is also a member of the south park board.

According to George N. Murdock, secretary and treasurer of the railroad company, the line is to be used only during the Fair.

"We have given bond to assure that the tracks will be removed at the close of the Exposition and that the property used will be restored to its present condition," said Mr. Murdock. "The right of way uses no street and the line would serve as a great convenience to thousands of persons who park their cars in the Monroe street space."

TRAFFIC AT FAIR MOVING BETTER UNDER NEW PLAN

A new traffic system was placed in operation yesterday morning at the north approach to A Century of Progress. It removed objectionable features of the former system, but before night it had developed weaknesses of its own.

The plans for vehicular and pedestrian movements, designed by the city's leading traffic engineers, appeared on maps and charts and diagrams like a smooth and flawless machine. In operation, troubles appeared that were unexpected by the experts.

"These new problems are not fatal weaknesses in the system," said Maj. E. S. J. Irvine, superintendent of transportation for the World's Fair administration. "They are faults that can be corrected and will be corrected.

"Meantime the first day under the new arrangements has demonstrated their advantages. Highly appreciated by bus and taxicab patrons is the escape from the climb over the foot bridge in front of Field museum. Also appreciated, especially by those footsore after a trip through the Exposition, is the reduced distance between the Roosevelt road gates and the vehicular loading platforms.

"The bottleneck at Roosevelt road and the inner drive has been removed. However, a new bottleneck has appeared at 7th street and the inner drive, due mainly to the large number of buses crossing there from Michigan avenue to the outer drive.

"On the outer drive, for Fair traffic only, with its loop terminal at Roosevelt for loading and unloading buses and passenger cars and taxicabs, there has been friction between the cab and the private car traffic. The taxicabs and the private cars will have to be separated."

VISITORS AT FAIR GASP AT CHINA'S DELICATE ARTS

Million Dollar Pagoda of Jade on Display.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Near the base of the giant sky ride is the Chinese pavillion and within are the breath of the lotus and orange and teas from far provinces. There incense of strange origin and fragile carvings of ivory, like lace. There are embroideries so exquisitely done as to appear as photographic masterpieces.

Visitors crowd about the exhibits, touch the fragile porcelains, listen as the Chinese attendants repeat the histories of their treasures and exclaim as the methods of painting or carving or lacquer work are explained.

Million Dollar Jade Pagoda.

Perhaps the most valuable object in the pavillion is the million dollar jade pagoda, which was ten years in the making. Chang Wen-ti, a wealthy connoisseur of jade, drew the design and placed 500 men at work on it. Five experts completed the undertaking this year in time for the World's Fair, caving it from a piece of jade weighing 18,000 pounds. This was cut into seven stones, from which the pagoda was carved.

A young Chinese woman educated in an American college, as are the most of the attendants in the pavillion, explained that one carver made a mistake of a fraction of an inch while carving on the eaves of the seven story pagoda, and the whole pagoda had to be cut down to scale. The eaves, she pointed out, even to their hanging bells and chains are carved from one piece. Various objects decorating the courtyard of the pagoda have a historic significance.

Ten Years' Work on Screen.

In the lacquer exihibit, H. F. Tung explains that the sales of objects will go to the Fukien children's home in Foochow, of which he is chairman of the board. With Louise Chou, a college student, as translator, he explains how the lacquer tea sets, and statuettes are made, and the hand carved teakwood screen which took artisans ten years to fashion.

In the ivory room is an ivory tusk upon which artists began carving in 1929 when Herbert Hoover sent to China an invitation to A Century of Progress. It was completed this year. There is an ornament topped with hand carved ivory concentrated balls, thirty of them, one inside another, and valued at $9,000. Here also is exhibited an ox-blood vase, the property of the owner's uncle, Gen. Chan, commander of the 48th route army. The vase was used during the Ming dynasty 800 years ago.

The artist who spent four years carving four pieces of lacy porcelain was compelled to give up his work from eyestrain, so difficult is the work. But before he stopped he left a work of art in the delicate carving.

Charge for Only Two Exhibits.

The Chinese theater and the jade pagoda are the only exhibits to which a small admission is charged. Shows are held at 3, 5, 7, and 9 p. m. in the theater. The actors arrived from China only three weeks ago. In that time they have learned a few English words which they call out to one another on the stage. One of their favorites is "Okay."

"The mission of our merchants is merely one of good will," explained Z. T. Chang, the commissioner appointed by the Chinese government to the Fair. China has arranged her exhibit in harmony with the spirit of A Century of Progress. The exhibits are of a kind we have never sent to any foreign country before. We attempt to show what progress we have made in our principal products."

FOUND SHOT TO DEATH.

John Stankus, 39 years old, was found shot to death, apparently a suicide, police said, in the basement of his home at 340 East 14th street, Chicago Heights, yesterday.

A VISITOR FINDS SHRINE TO MAN'S PROGRESS AT FAIR

Views Precious Relics in Electrical History.

THOMAS A. EDISON.

By JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

While questing around yesterday for more items to lure you into the green towered Palace of Electricity at the World's Fair I learned that the Palace is a religious edifice and that its exhibits are prayer, hymn, and sermon.

Modern industry's church, so to speak.

Already I knew that the structure and contents are spectacular — bewitching — incredible — dramatic — fantastic — overwhelming — inspiring — humbling. All of that I could cipher out for myself.

But Edward H. Sniffen, 40 years in electricity and still awed by it, led me to the discovery of the electrical exhibition's religious significance. While promenading through the Westinghouse exhibits, which he assembled and of which he himself is one of the most interesting, and the exhibits of his neighbor, General Electric, he was musing aloud; and his quiet musings are worth more than most men's vehemence is.

"Maybe It's God," Said Edison.

"It's wonderful," said he, meaning electricity, "what's been done in the last 40 years with this weird thing that nobody knows what it is. Your friend Malcolm McDowell once asked Mr. Edison, 'What is it?,' and the old man replied: 'I don't know. Nobody knows. Sometimes—I—think—it's—God.'"

After that, being, by inheritance, of a religious turn of mind, I went back with fresh zest to my sightseeing in this awesome and mysterious temple.

Went back first to the Postal Telegraph-Cable system's exhibit, where S. J. Buckaleu, chief in charge, exchanges glances of the courtesy that sears with his neighbor and rival, the chief of the Western Union's exhibit. But neutral visitors Mr. Buckaleu receives very kindly and to them talks instructively and shows invaluable instruments illustrative of 95 years of progress in telegraphy.

Among them is the original telegraph instrument made and used by Prof. Morse in Paris in 1838 when he, then 47 years old and very poor, was fighting for European patents. He obtained one in France, but the government coolly "appropriated" it. Always full of frolic—those French.

Mr. Buckaleu fingered the instrument lovingly and bade me mark well its beautiful workmanship. "It's priceless," said he, "and it works to this day."

Around the Globe in 720 Seconds.

Another of the Postal treasures is the instrument on which President Theodore Roosevelt sent from Oyster Bay on July 4, 1903, the first around the world cable message. It was 30 words to Clarence Mackay and it made the circuit of the globe in 12 minutes.

Treasure after treasure and curio after curio the Postal shows—a coral incrusted section of cable taken up off Honolulu, delicate lovely formations all over it, and a detailed model of the cable laying ship All America, a long, lean vessel. "Not much for looks, said the chief, "but, as the sailors say of her, 'hell for stout.'" He added that from the time a cable is made it is never out of water, and the All America carries in water tanks all the cable she lays. A few hours out of water and the cable would be ruined.

Reverting to the beautiful exhibit of coral incrusted cable Mr. Buckaleu said, "It's a pity how some visitors are breaking off the prongs of coral. I'll have to get it under glass or in a few days there won't be any left." Aren't some people devils!

He told a hundred interesting things in fifteen minutes—for example, that there is no movement in ocean water 200 feet below the surface, and that the highest telephone line on earth is the Postal's line 19,400 feet up in the Andes, and its lowest cable line 28,000 feet below the surface of the ocean.

What R. W. Emerson Wrote.

But, most impressive of all, he shows a section of the first successful cable ever laid. That was Cyrus Field's triumph in 1866 after four or five heartbreaking failures. It was doubly impressive to me because I happened to recall an entry for that year in Ralph Waldo Emerson's "Journals"—best of bedtime books—and when I got home I looked it up and copied it out for you. It is under date of July 30, 1866, in vol. x of the "Journals," and thus it reads:

"This morn came again the exhilarating news of the landing of the Atlantic telegraph cable at Heart's Content, Newfoundland. . . . The suggestion of an event so exceptional and astounding in the history of human arts is, that this instant and pitiless publicity now to be given to every public act must force on the actors a new sensibility to the opinion of mankind, and restrain folly and weakness."

In another place Mr. Emerson called the new cable "thou'hts newfound path." What a phrase!

You Learn Things Each Second.

Leaving the Postal's exhibit, I glided unobtrusively over to the Western Union's, where you see a most fascinating relief map showing the way its cables carrying 400 words a minute lie in the Atlantic ocean. Those ten cables equal 32,120 nautical miles, and two cable ships are constantly at work keeping them in order.

You see in the Western Union show the actual 500 pound ocean grapnels used for picking up cables to bring them to the cable ships for repair.

"The water pressure on the cables is 10,436 pounds per square inch at the Atlantic's greatest depth," said the Western Union lecturer, "which is 23,400 feet," and later he showed us models of electrical instruments used by Joseph Henry—you should see the impressive new statue of him in front of his former laboratory when next you drop off at Albany—and by Prof. Morse, and he explained how intricate electrical recording has replaced the old chalk and blackboard method of recording stock quotations. All very interesting.

Talk in Layman's Language.

Now H. & Hanna, from the New York headquarters of the American Telegraph and Telephone company, takes you on for the tour of the company's vast exhibit, and you need an hour and a half for it. Marvel upon marvel is elucidated for you simply and crisply on placards and by lecturers.

"You and your people and your placards talk so a child can understand," said I.

"Yes," Mr. Hanna replied, "we have tried to make ourselves do that."

For example, twenty-one placards under glass and beneath the enormous actuality of lights and levers tell you the workings of the dial system of telephoning. Mr. Hanna said the system could be ascribed to no one inventor. It has been the development of years and is a combination of many devices.

A Far Flung Network.

The extent of the A. T. & T. system is staggering. Seventeen million of its telephones in the United States are connected directly with thirteen million telephones in Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia, and the North and South Americas.

"In other words," said Mr. Hanna, "90 per cent of all the telephones in the world can be reached by any phone in the Bell system."

This company has 700,000 stockholders—more than half of them women—and no stockholder owns as much as 1 per cent of the stock. The system serves 70,000 communities in the United States and, with its wire and radio connections, reaches 30½ million of the world's 35 million telephones.

Dr. Bell's Original Phone.

In the museum of this exhibit is Dr. Bell's original box telephone of 1877, very quaint and cumbersome. I remember one of that early type in my father's office in the late seventies. We boys used to come in and talk over it to the men in the coal mine three miles away. My father was very patient and kind about letting us operate the new marvel.

The most popular of the shows in the Bell galleries is "Acoustical Illusions" where, from a soundproof glass room, you hear, by means of the new binaural or two-ear transmission, conversations, the jingling of keys, the breathing of a man, and the faint swallowing sound he makes when he takes a drink of water.

Still More Marvels.

Other marvels: You see 12 one-way telegrams going simultaneously over on pair of wires in streams of light. You get a demonstration by a very interesting lecturer of how "inverted speech," used to insure privacy in transoceanic telephonic conversations, is reinverted or unscrambled. Then there is the "cuteness show," as I name it, called "It Requires Five Times as Much Energy to Walk Up Stairs as on a Level," and the test of the six different steps in the amplification of sound for the hard of hearing.

Some of the mechanisms are too intricate for me to understand, but little boys alongside me did. I never felt dumber in my life. It was abysmal.

"You see how it works, don't you, Mr. Bennett?" Mr. Hanna would ask.

"Yes, indeed!" said the fiend for me.

"Liar!" whispered my conscience.

Beauty for the Future.

So I went back to the beautiful diorama in General Electric's exhibit which showed you how electric light will be in a few years, as a result of Chicago's second World's Fair, become an integral and essential element in the exterior architecture and decoration of buildings "instead," as Mr. Ross of General Electric put it, "of being just pasted on as now."

Even I could comprehend and enjoy that entrancing picture and Mr. Ross' good discourse.

So that ended the day on a note of hope for the mechanically feebleminded.

O! I nearly forgot: In yesterday's piece there was a promise to tell you how "the Ghost Safe" in the A. D. T. show works. Briefly, it is this way:

The safe is an illustration of what is called "the capacity alarm system." The safe's cabinet contains metal plates that are positively charged. If you approach within two feet of the safe with burglarious intent the electrical capacity of your body increases the charge in the cabinet and an audible alarm is produced. And there you are—pinched in a few seconds by a watchman.

No Faking in Lectures.

The light which leaps at you as you approach the safe in the exhibit is to show how sensitive the thing is. The real alarm signal is an audible one.

"The light," said the lecturer, "is merely circus." He did not try to befool the people. Nobody in this shrine of science does. They are all too self-respecting and too much in earnest to play pranks.

Guard of the 1893 Fair Visits Century of Progress

C. E. Smith, who was a guard at the 1893 Fair, assigned to duty at the Ferris wheel, and who is now a mathematics instructor at Redford High school, Detroit, visited the World's Fair yesterday. Accompanying him was his son, Lieut. O. A. Smith, medical corps, U. S. N., who was brought to the Columbian exposition when he was only 1 year old. Mr. Smith was a student at De Pauw university, Greencastle, Ind., during the Columbian exposition.

Notes of A Century of Progress

The soda fountain and lunch business at the two Walgreen drug stores at the Fair has been so great that the construction of a 100 foot addition to the 23d street store was begun last night. The new wing will contain a fountain with 100 stools, more than doubling the present fountain capacity of the store. Fountain facilities in the store in the Hall of Science will also be increased.

A special program for Children's day tomorrow has been prepared at the Streets of Paris. Entertainment will include fancy diving, costume scenes on the streets, and playlets designed for children.

The Havoline thermometer at 23d street on the Fair grounds will be dedicated this afternoon at 4 o'clock. C. A. Donnel, senior meteorologist of the United States weather bureau in Chicago, will give the instrument a final test. In previous tests he has found the 218 foot neon lighted thermometer to register the temperature accurately.

The Chicago Y. M. C. A. World Fair service bureau will furnish young men to serve as guides at the Fair grounds. They may be engaged through hotels of the Chicago Hotel association and the leading loop department stores.

Kirby Jackson, 101 years old, said to be the oldest railroad engineer now living, visited the Travel and Transport building yesterday and was photographed at the controls of the John Bull locomotive, which is 102 years old and the oldest locomotive in the United States.

Cold tea that is made with cold water instead of hot has been introduced to this country at the World's Fair. The process is that of K. E. Jingu, who is at the Japanese exhibit. The tea is a special product grown only in the province of Shizuoka, Japan. It is grown in the shade. The tea is mixed with sugar, cold water, and ice, and the mixture is then stirred.

Two hundred members of the National Editorial association, who came to Chicago in buses after their convention at Indianapolis, visited A Century of Progress yesterday. They were welcomed at the Hall of Science by E. Ross Bartley, promotion manager of the exposition.

June 29 has been officially designated as Grotto day at the World's Fair. On that day an extensive program will be presented by the Mystic Order of Veiled Prophets. The supreme council of that order will hold its 44th annual convention in Chicago from June 27 to June 29, inclusive.

FISHER ORDERS TAX RECEIVER BE DISREGARDED

Circuit Court and Jarecki Clash First Time.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

	1928.	1929.
June 14 .....$	6,102	$ 35,146
Uncollected ..	19,393,468	51,115,504
	1930.	1931.
June 14 .....$	43,358	$ 97,814
Uncollected ..	82,619,222	113,887,755

Personal property taxes collected for 1931 totaled $7,157.

Circuit Judge Harry Fisher yesterday ordered a receiver in a tax delinquent property to "totally disregard" the appointment of a receiver to collect delinquent taxes made in County Judge Jarecki's court last Monday.

The Circuit court receiver in the case is the Chicago Title and Trust company, which has been the target for many informations filed in the County court in an attempt to obtain an explanation of why hundreds of thousands of dollars due in back taxes has not been paid.

It was the first clash between the County court and the Circuit court as a result of Judge Jarecki's campaign to collect back taxes under the Kerner-Skarda act, which permits the appointment of County Treasurer McDonough to collect income from the property to collect back taxes.

Rebukes Assistant Prosecutor.

Some weeks ago, Judge Fisher expressed himself in entire sympathy with the drive, but he rebuked Assistant State's Attorney William T. Crilly yesterday for his part in the campaign, declaring:

"I want to tell you very frankly that this is not the stage here for sensational publicity. I don't want to be a part of that campaign."

The property in question was the six story office building at 322 South State street, on which $4,000 in 1928 taxes, $4,000 in 1929 taxes, and the entire 1930 and 1931 taxes are overdue, the total delinquent tax bill being $20,264.

No offer to pay any part of the back taxes was made by Attorney John V. Clinnin, representing the Chicago Title and Trust company. He appeared with a petition desiring to know what action should be taken with regard to the appointment of a tax receiver and whether the property should be turned over to the county treasurer so that the back taxes might be collected from income.

Cites Conflict of Authority.

"There has resulted a conflict of authority between the Circuit court receiver and the County court receiver," said Attorney Clinnin.

"The property involved is the property of this court and until this receiver is discharged, no court can interfere with the custody of this court," said Judge Fisher. "I am not going to allow any other court to interfere with it."

"Do you order a total disregard of the county court order?" asked Prosecutor Crilly.

"Whom do you represent?" the judge demanded.

"The state's attorney," responded Crilly. "You will order that no attention be paid to Judge Jarecki's order?"

"Yes," said the judge, adding his comments about "sensational publicity" and his disinclination to "be a part of that campaign."

Jarecki Refuses to Comment.

Judge Jarecki refused to comment specifically upon Judge Fisher's dictum.

"I am trying to do my best to make the tax dodgers pay up," Jarecki said. "The results of the Kerner-Skarda act enforcement thus far have added millions of dollars to the county treasury. Informations directed against receivers have brought out of hiding large sums of money that would otherwise not have been paid on delinquent tax bills.

"Someone must bear the burden of attempting to enforce the payment of the millions of dollars in delinquent taxes, the non-collection of which is hampering government in Cook county."

The collection of delinquent real estate taxes for the day was much lower than during any day since the Kerner-Skarda act was put into force May 1. Officials in the county treasurer's office refused to venture an opinion as to whether the sudden drop in tax collections was due to Judge Fisher's ruling. Attorneys representing tax delinquent properties expressed jubilation, however, at the setback to the campaign in Judge Jarecki's court given by the ruling in Judge Fisher's court.

Collections Decline Sharply.

Since the beginning of the drive against delinquent taxpayers an average of from $400,000 to $700,000 daily in back taxes has been collected in the county treasurer's office, with a day's collections on two occasions going above $1,000,000. Yesterday, after Judge Fisher's ruling, only $189,577 was collected, and this amount included more than $100,000 collected in Judge Jarecki's court.

Federal Judge Wilkerson yesterday indorsed the Kerner-Skarda act campaign by ordering receivers in three cases to pay delinquent taxes. The receiver for the Northwest Terra Cotta company was ordered to pay $60,000 in back taxes, the receiver for the Pettibone-Mulligan Railway Supply company was ordered to pay $46,000, and the receiver for the F & W 5 and 10 cent stores was ordered to pay $14,000.

"No receiver in my court can stand in the way of the county treasurer collecting taxes," Judge Wilkerson announced.

Delinquents Pay $100,000.

Payments of delinquent real estate taxes by property owners anxious to avoid receiverships totaled more than $100,000 yesterday in Judge Jarecki's court. The three largest payments were as follows: Hotel Sherman, $29,247 paid; 363 Fullerton Parkway building, $21,759 paid on a back tax bill of $32,144; and the Fullerton Parkway towers, 421 Fullerton parkway, $12,116 paid on a tax bill of $18,398. Several other payments averaged from $1,000 to $3,000.

The judge ordered receiverships for the Blackstone theater, 68 East 7th street, upon which delinquent taxes total $14,021; the 1200 North Dearborn street property, owing $11,300; and the property at 330 North Clark street, owing $2,989.

NAME 6 TO AVERT SCHOOL DEFICIT OF $8,000,000

Late Opening Wins Favor as Economy Measure.

A special committee of five school trustees to tackle the imperative task of slashing expenditures set up in the 1933 budget was appointed yesterday at a meeting of the board of education by President James B. McCahey. Mr. McCahey, who will be chairman, said that the committee will hold its first meeting today or tomorrow.

The school board will be faced with an $8,000,000 deficit at the end of the year at its present rate of spending. A plan of saving $2,000,000 in salaries and other expenses by delaying the opening of the schools two weeks in the fall seems almost certain of adoption. There is some sentiment among school trustees to save part of the money in the making of the 1934 budget.

Members of the special committee are all committed to an economy program. They include Joseph P. Savage, William D. McJunkin, Charles W. Fry, Paul Drymalski, and Joseph J. Salat.

Shows Urgent Necessity.

"We have only so much money to run on," declared Mr. McCahey. "This deficit has mounted into millions, our teachers are owed salaries for five and a half months, and many of the school board's creditors are in bankruptcy because we haven't had the money to meet our obligations. The budget must be cut if the Chicago school system is to continue in operation."

The board also voted to break down into smaller denominations $1,106,000 worth of 1931 tax anticipation warrants of the bond redemption fund. The action was taken to make the warrants more marketable for a sale to pay up $490,000 interest due July 1 on educational and working cash fund bonds.

The request of Trustee Ernst Bueheler that action be deferred on the board's approval of a new textbook list aroused the ire of Supt. William J. Bogan.

"The board has deferred this matter before and has now had three weeks to study the list," asserted Mr. Bogan. "It's a pity that this action, which is for the benefit of the school children, should be held up because one book has not been placed on the approved list. An official of a book company came to me with the demand that his geography be placed on the list, but I followed the advice of my committee, which ruled out the book as of little value."

Disregard Bogan's Protest.

Mr. Bogan explained that there was a large volume of sales for geographies, which are used in the middle grades. Despite his protest the matter was again deferred.

The school trustees ratified a previous action of changing the rules of the educational department to allow the superintendent to grant a leave of absence to any teacher whose salary was three months in arrears. The action had been taken when the board voted to oppose the so-called "teachers' strike" bill pending before the legislature. The bill would allow teachers to quit work without endangering pension or tenure rights after the salaries had not been paid for three months.

The Chicago Teachers' federation, which was supporting the bill, claimed that the board's previous action was invalid because it was taken at a special meeting.

TEACHERS TO DEPICT PAYLESS PLIGHT IN A SHOW; OPENS TONIGHT

More than 150 teachers will participate tonight in a musical show dramatizing their payless plight at the Goodman theater. The performance will be given by the Federation of Women High School Teachers, of which Dorothy Weil is president.

"There will be fun poked at the bankers and public officials," said Miss Weil, "but what we want to do is to furnish a new approach to the problem of payless teachers."

The show is called "The Strangest Interlude in A Century of Progress." It will run for three nights. Among the members of the cast are Marion McDonald, Genevieve Stoker, William Madden, Jesse Robinson, and Maurine LaCaff.

Better Be Safe Than Sorry

It's Quality in the Tires You Drive That Counts!

if— you want the answer to the question asked by so many, "Why don't racers equip racing cars for the big events with ALLSTATE tires?"—read the following carefully and you can answer the question for yourselves.

FIRST, bear in mind that there are special built tires for racing. They are of different type, grade, design and weight from the tires you use. The tread design is different . . . the stock used in the tread is different . . . the skeleton of the tire is different and the grade of the fabric is different . . . the bead is different. Both are pneumatic tires, but in other respects the two are very different. How could it add anything to the quality of the tire you drive if Sears controlled a race track and furnished racing tires?

Think Before It Is Too Late

DO YOU want to be lulled into a false sense of security about the safety of driving at terrific speed on the highway, and flirt with death, also endanger the lives of others, in thinking you are riding on tires the same as those used in the big auto races when it is not true? Do you want to pay in the price of your tires for the high cost of special equipment and furnishing special racing tires when it is done largely for the sake of advertising?

WHEN you are led to believe that the winning car in a race used a certain brand of tires, wouldn't you also like to know if such is the case that the other cars in the race—those that lost and those that ran off the track—used the same brand of tires?

IT IS not our purpose to suggest here that those specially made racing tires are not good tires, but we do definitely challenge any statement obviously intended to mislead the public about the quality and safety of tires recommended for highway driving.

ALLSTATE and Super ALLSTATE Are Top Grade Tires

WE MAKE it our business to develop high-grade tires for highway driving. Sears famous ALLSTATE tires and SUPER ALLSTATE tires are top-grade. Continuous highway tests of ALLSTATE tires and top-grade tires of other makes—one along side the other—necessitating thousands and even millions of miles of travel by test cars, enable us to know what other good tires do in comparison with ALLSTATE tires.

THERE are many good tires on the market. However, if you will compare our prices for ALLSTATE tires with the prices asked for other top-grade tires in the better known lines, you will find there is a substantial saving on the price of top-grade tires when you buy ALLSTATE tires.

REMEMBER—

as prices go up your dollar and cents saving on top-grade tires is greater when you buy ALLSTATE or SUPER ALLSTATE tires

A Written Guarantee Against Blowouts

ALLSTATE and SUPER ALLSTATE tires are guaranteed in writing against blowouts, rim cuts or wornout tread for any reason for one full year. Take into account that many ALLSTATE tires run over 25,000 miles the first year—then you can judge the quality necessary to back up our written guarantee.

"If you can only get the true story over"

said our buyer

"If you can only tell the public the facts as I know them about this offering there won't be half enough suits to go around," said our clothing buyer. These are the facts: One of America's largest manufacturers of fine clothing was worried. In the midst of a slow spring season he had 6,000 surplus suits, and his big worry was to find the one store in all America that would take all 6,000 suits for cash. That's where Sears, Roebuck & Co. came into the picture! He wired us.

Our buyer, knowing the quality, took the first train. The manufacturer propositioned. Our buyer made his offer. Conversations . . . conferences followed. Finally the deal was closed with the inflation boom just around the corner. The manufacturer said "you'll have to take the suits without my label, because I can't afford to have them sold at so low a price under my Nationally Advertised Brand." COUNCIL ADOPTS 122 MILLION CITY BUDGET FOR 1933

Corporate Fund Gets Less than Year Ago.

The 1933 city budget, appropriating approximately $122,000,000, was adopted yesterday at a three hour session of the council. This was a reduction of some $2,000,000 from the budget figure of $124,494,973 which was submitted to the council on June 3 by the finance committee. The reduction was achieved by trimming pension funds about $1,500,000 and making cuts in several other funds. The exact amount of the saving will not be known until city financial experts have had time to figure them out.

The 1933 appropriation bill authorizes expenditures from 20 funds of the city and its semi-independent agencies, including the corporate fund, from which most of the municipal employés, including the police and firemen, are paid.

15 Million Under '31 Budget.

As passed the corporate fund budget total of $47,862,815 is $227,871 less than the estimate revenues of $48,090,686 for the current year. It is $2,334,188 less than the 1932 budget and approximately $15,000,000 under the 1931 budget, which was adopted during the administration of a former Republican mayor.

The corporate budget continues in effect the 78 days' pay reduction for city employés, with the exception of police and firemen, who are docked only 65 days' pay, and employés in the lower salaried brackets. Workers in the latter class will have their pay cut, but their yearly salary is not to be reduced below $1,200 a year. Preference was shown to the police and firemen, it was explained, because they work more days a year than most of the other city employés.

The council also retained in the budget the 78 days' pay cut for the Municipal court judges and other employés in the department which was recommended by the finance committee. Five members of the bench appeared before the committee a few days ago and asked for a reduction of only 48 days' pay, but the aldermen decided that the politically appointed court employés, and the judges, should not be treated differently than the city civil service employés. This action was taken in the face of the admitted power of the court to compel the council to restore its appropriation to the full pay basis.

New Budget Form.

In form the budget varies radically from former budgets in that virtually all the monthly and per annum salaried positions are set up on a man-month basis. This change was supported by the administration as an economy measure as it would permit the city to dispense with employés whose services should not be needed or to curtail if revenues fall below estimated amounts.

Among the changes in the budget made at yesterday's session was the elimination of any appropriation for the Chicago plan commission for the last six months of this year. For the operation of the commission during the first six months of 1933, $20,000 was set up. The remaining $15,000 of the appropriation originally approved by the finance committee was eliminated.

Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the finance committee, declared that the removal of financial support from the plan commission was recommended by the administration. He said that the commission remains established by city ordinance, and can operate with funds privately subscribed.

In the police department the aldermen eliminated nine inspectors of personnel including three former aldermen, Silas Leechman, John Sheehan, and Frank Klaus, and raised the number of lieutenant of detectives, which carries a salary of $3,900 as compared to the $3,200 salary of a lieutenant, from nine to fifteen.

An increase of $25,000 for the mayor's contingent fund, raising it to $75,000, was authorized. Ald. Clark explained that the additional sum was requested for use in investigations of rackets to be carried on as a part of the fight of the mayor and State's Attorney Courtney.

Order Bonds Paid Off.

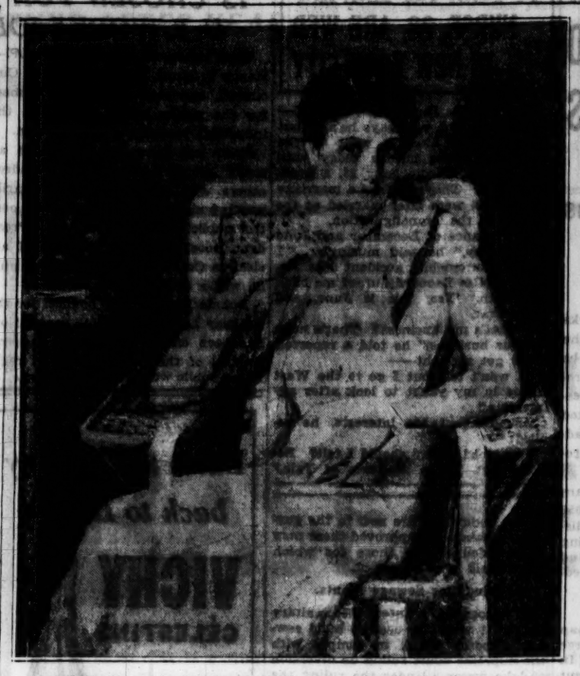
Before reviewing the budget items, the council adopted a resolution offered by Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th] authorizing the city controller to pay off special assessment bonds and vouchers that matured before Dec. 31, 1931. The aldermen said there was a $6,000,000 fund in the banks for this purpose which draws only ½ of 1 per cent interest while the city is paying 5 per cent on the bonds.

The council approved the reappointment of Dr. Frederick Tice as a director of the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium and sent to its streets committee a proposal to change the name of Oakenwald avenue to Rosenwald avenue.

Two resolutions submitted by Ald. John Toman [23d] were passed. One provides for the appointment by the mayor of a special committee of five members to report on the facilities afforded for the protection of life and property at A Century of Progress. The other calls attention to the fact that 2,029 persons have been drowned in the period from 1918 to 1932, inclusive, and directs the committee on recreation to inquire into what life saving methods may be provided for the protection of swimmers.

The council also authorized Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt to enter into a contract with the Ketler-Elliott company for the construction of a viaduct in Roosevelt road over the Illinois Central tracks as a street car entrance to the grounds of the south parks.

STEVENS H. HAMMOND AND SINGER MARRIED



Miss Madelyn La Salle, artists' model and musical comedy singer, who was married early Tuesday at Crown Point to Stevens S. Hammond of Flossmoor, son of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Thomas S. Hammond of Flossmoor.

Wed in Crown Point

The marriage of Miss Madelyn La Salle, pretty artists' model and musical comedy singer, to Stevens H. Hammond, socialite and elder son of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Thomas S. Hammond of Flossmoor, took place early Tuesday morning in Crown Point, Ind., culminating a romance started two years ago in the Chicago stadium when Miss La Salle was chosen Miss Cook County at the closing exhibition of the Cook County Fair.

Young Hammond, a polo player, appeared in a polo game that night and also took part in several riding exhibitions. As he saluted Miss Cook County in one of the exhibitions his horse became unruly and it looked as if the rider would be thrown headlong against a small stage in the path of the excited animal. Hammond forced the horse to jump the stage, however, and the gasps of the audience turned to applause, led by Miss La Salle.

The queen of the fair and the gallant young horseman were introduced later that night and after that she often attended with him the indoor polo games at the 124th Field Artillery armory in which he played.

Mr. Hammond and his bride spent Tuesday night at his parents' home in Flossmoor, and although the bridegroom was at his desk in the Whiting corporation of which his father is president, yesterday morning, his father said the young couple would be leaving soon for a wedding trip.

Doctor Guilty in Alienation Suit; $6,000 Damages Fixed

Dr. Attilio Monaco, 1000 South Paulina street, yesterday was found guilty of alienating the affections of Mrs. Lena Matarrese by a jury in the Superior court of Judge E. I. Frankhauser and $6,500 damages were assessed against him. The suit, for $50,000, was brought by Felix Matarrese, 38 years old, a barber of 1320 Avers avenue, who was divorced by Mrs. Matarrese last year before Superior Judge Joseph Sabath. Matarrese charged that Dr. Monaco was the father of Mrs. Matarrese's 9 year old son, Felix Jr. Hearing on a motion for a new trial was set for June 24.

FOUND DEAD; POISON BLAMED.

Oscar Horberg, 37 years old, 6322 University avenue, was found dead yesterday in a room at the Englewood Arms hotel, 824 West 62d street. Apparently he had killed himself by drinking poison, a small quantity of which was found in a glass near his bed.

ROBERT B. UPHAM, BANKER, IS MADE CITY CONTROLLER

Mayor Calls Appointment Nonpolitical.

Robert B. Upham, 55 years old, former vice president of the Peoples' Trust and Savings bank became city controller yesterday. He succeeds M. S. Szymczak, whose appointment to the federal reserve board was confirmed last week by the United States senate and who yesterday took the oath of office in Washington.

Mayor Kelly submitted the appointment of Mr. Upham to the city council with the statement that it was nonpolitical. The council immediately confirmed the appointment and approved a bond of $100,000. Later Mr. Upham appeared before the council and was sworn in by City Clerk Peter Brady.

Indorsed by Bankers.

The appointment of Mr. Upham was said to have been at the suggestion of many of the city's leading bankers who gave him high endorsement. The bank with which he was affiliated suspended business recently, after paying off its depositors in full. The mayor said his wide acquaintance with the banking business as well as with bankers would aid the city in its financial operations.

Who's Who in Chicago lists Controller Upham as a Republican. He was born in Chicago July 9, 1877, the son of Abel P. and Frances A. [Brown] Upham. He was educated at Hyde Park High school and the University of Michigan, where he was graduated from the school of law in 1898. Mrs. Upham is the former La Visa Keller of Emmetsburg, Ia. They have one son, Robert Jr., and reside at 900 North Michigan avenue.

Enters Railway Bank.

Mr. Upham's business career began as assistant purchasing agent for Joy Morton & Co., in 1898. Later he became assistant cashier of the Railway Exchange bank and finally vice president. He joined the Peoples' Trust and Savings bank in 1914 as vice president and director.

He is a member of the Chicago Historical society, the Art institute, and the following clubs: Bankers, Bond Men's, Chicago Athletic association, Chicago Yacht, Glenview, Racquet and Eagle Waters Golf of Eagle Rivers, Wis.

FIRST OF 500,000 '31 PERSONAL TAX SUITS PROMISED TOMORROW

County Treasurer McDonough today will close the 1931 personal property tax books and turn them over to assistants of State's Attorney Courtney. Approximately 500,000 of the total of 800,000 items on the books remain unpaid. The state's attorney's tax department, under the direction of Hayden N. Bell, has been directed to sue for payment on the uncollected bills.

At present the aggregate collections of 1931 personalty taxes total $32,618,938. This amounts to 46.8 per cent of the total extensions of $70,791,691. These taxes have been in collection since May 1. More than a year after the penalty date for 1930 taxes only 45 per cent of the extensions, or $29,000,000, has been collected. The 1930 extensions were $55,492,000.

Attorney Bell yesterday said that a long list of the largest delinquent personal property taxpayers is being prepared by his office. Suits against the first among these will be filed tomorrow in the Circuit court, and thereafter several hundred suits will be filed every day. The Circuit judges are planning to assign one or two of their number to hear the personal property suits exclusively.

2 Bandits Hold Up Eight in Eastgate Hotel Lobby

Two gunmen entered the lobby of the Eastgate hotel, 162 East Ontario street, and escaped with $350 after terrorizing two guests and six employés yesterday. After taking the money from the cash drawer, one of the bandits slugged Fred J. Palmer, the clerk, with ar evolver butt when the latter said he did not know the combination to the safe. The bandits were routed by the screams of Nell Cunningham, a waitress, who entered as the hoodlum struck Palmer.

New York, June 14.—[Special.]—Mrs. Vera Johnson, her mother, and two sons, were trapped in their apartment on the top floor when fire swept a three story tenement in Ninth avenue tonight. SEE ROOSEVELT VETERANS' AID VICTORY TODAY

Veto Is Expected to Pave Way for New Bill.

The tempered observations of Senator William E. Borah [Rad., Idaho], who declared the debt situation had not been changed by the day's proceedings, were swept into the background by the fiery attack of Senator Reed. One of the leaders in the fight against the President's veterans' program, he leaped now exultingly to renew the attack on anything smacking of revision or foregiveness of the war debts.

Reed Attacks Debt Action.

"I suppose," he said, "a default by any other name will smell the same, but can it be anything else but a default?

"The only security that America has for the payment of the international debt is the good faith and honesty of the debtor. What becomes of that good faith and honesty when the President says to all the world that a failure to pay is not characterized by him as a default?

"In all this correspondence that has passed between our government and the British there is not the shadow of a suggestion of their inability to pay. There is merely an indisposition to pay, and almost as a contemptuous gesture they hand us about 12 per cent of what they had promised, and then through our President we say, 'We do not regard that as a default.' What can lead us to think that any Briton will care to exert himself to pay anything of the December installment?"

Query by Tydings.

Had Senator Reed been President, would he have accepted the 10 millions? inquired Senator Millard E. Tydings [Dem., Md.].

"I would accept a postage stamp," replied the Pennsylvanian, "but I would have made it perfectly plain that as for the unpaid balance I regarded it as a breach of faith and a dishonorable thing."

Had the President taken a firm stand, he said, he believed there would have been no default by Great Britain.

"I am not objecting to the acceptance of a partial payment," Senator Reed said. "I am objecting," he continued, "to the President's glossing over the default of seven-eighths of that debt, and his destruction of the value of that debt to this country."

Then he swung into an even more fervent stride as he linked the debt issue and the veterans' issue together.

Assails "Whip Cracking."

"It comes strangely," he cried, "from the President who is cracking the whip over congress to make these drastic reductions in the compensation of our veterans who suffered from combat-incurred injuries at the same time that he is in effect giving to one single country in Europe more than it would take to pay all these allowances about which we have been debating. We lose more by this pretty gesture to Great Britain than we would lose by doing justice to the veterans who are suffering from injuries received in combat.

"It is quite true doubtless that the President will veto this bill if it shall contain the Cutting-Steiwer amendment. We are expected to vote against our own good judgment because the whip is cracked over our heads. We were not sent here to take orders from the White House; we were sent here to vote according to our consciences as we honestly think best and it is a poor excuse for us to go back to our own states to say, "No, we did not believe in this, but we had plain warning that the executive was going to use his power.' What will we say to those people who call attention to our power to override a veto?"

Johnson Joins Attack.

Senator Reed yielded his place to Senator Hiram Johnson [Rad., Cal.], another who is always in the forefront of the war against cancellation. Great Britain could and should have paid the full installment, he said, then went on:

"This question with me has gone far beyond the question of dollars and cents. Something else is involved.

"I saw with amazement when the great economic conference opened at London, the premier of Great Britain inject, notwithstanding the agenda of that conference, this controverted question. I read with astonishment yesterday that all orators who addressed that conference berated the United States severely and bitterly criticized our country.

"This thing has gone beyond the mere payment. Today our dignity and our honor and our self-respect are involved.

Then he, too, turned from lashing the debtors to lashing those who warned him of an impending veto of the Steiwer-Cutting amendment.

"I was willing," the California senator reminded his Democratic colleagues, "to throw a political career into the air in order to do my part in his election last year. But the man does not live, whatever his position of power, who can compel me to act in defiance of my own judgment and my conscience."

Glass and Reed Clash.

Senator Glass, white hair bristling belligerently, was on his feet, excoriating those who had attacked the President's action on the debts. He, too, he said, would stand upon the self-respect and honor of the United States. But he would show that the talked-of American generosity was a "fraud."

Then, face livid with anger, he wheeled upon Senator Reed, shaking an accusatory finger, and poured out vitriolic words of indignation at the senator's suggestion that the Democrats were voting against the Steiwer-Cutting amendment "under the lash."

"I have seen the lash wielded," shouted Senator Glass, "and I have known it to cover the back of the senator from Pennsylvania, too!

Tells Why He's Opposed.

"I am going to vote against the Steiwer-Cutting amendment because I feel that no man who will not fight for his own country is worth having lived in that country. When he comes out of combat without wounds, without disability, he has no right to raid the federal treasury perpetually because he was called into the contest."

Then anger changed to wistful defiance as the bent old figure balanced between the senate desks, and the voice of the senator from Virginia went on:

"I had two boys in the front line trenches, one of them being nearly killed. I had a nephew there, who was gassed so badly that he will never recover. He was decorated by his country for extraordinary heroism. I had a sister in a hospital in France and two daughters in the hospitals here to relieve trained nurses."

His voice broke — tears filled his eyes. He went on:

"I would not want ever to speak to one of them if they would join in the raid upon the federal treasury made by people who have never suffered any disability and thousands of whom got better treatment, better clothing, better food, better discipline —the only discipline they ever got in their lives—after they went into the service.

"Commercializing Patriotism."

"I would empty the federal treasury for any man who was wounded in the war, or for those dependent upon a man who was killed in the war. But I have no respect for any man, be he millionaire or pauper, who, drafted into the service of his country to defend its honor and its security, would take a dollar for his services from the treasury. It is commercializing patriotism."

"I opposed the bonus," said Senator Reed, when he could get the floor, "although it meant flying directly in the face of the wishes of my own comrades in the army."

"Yes," snapped Senator Glass, "and that is when I thought the senator was a great senator."

During the long hours of debate preceding the final vote on the Steiwer-Cutting amendment the balance swayed this way and that. From the White House, by telephone, the President was using his powers of persuasion on recalcitrant Democratic senators. On the floor, in the cloakrooms, conferences were in progress.

The President would make only one concession and that was to add to the house program in the bill an amendment providing that Spanish-American war veterans, who served ninety days, who were now 55 years old or more, and who were in need should have pensions of at least $15 a month.

The amendment was brought to the senate by Senator James F. Byrnes [Dem., S. C.].

Outline Their Points.

Their points were these:

That the house amendment meant that only a few of the cases of presumptive service-connected disability would be returned to the rolls. That even in unquestionable service-connected cases, while the amendment limited cuts in the rates in various classifications of disability to 25 per cent, it did not prohibit the reclassification of a veteran in a lower category.

Meanwhile, with no record vote and with hardly a handful of members present, the house gave its final approval to the conference report on the fourth deficiency bill which now carries $3,630,079,167 to pay for the various reconstruction measures passed at the special session.

Added to the bill in conference was 150 million dollars to be expended under the provisions of the Glass-Steagall banking bill passed yesterday.

CHICAGO TO SEEK $74,582,950 AID ON PUBLIC WORKS

List 8 Projects for Loans Under Industrial Law.

Federal aid on eight public works projects in Cook county, involving the expenditure of $74,582,850, will be sought under the federal industrial recovery law enacted by congress Tuesday. Local officials yesterday awaited the naming of the public works administrator to make their bid for providing jobs in Cook county.

Twenty-two downstate counties are preparing to ask a total of $5,457,050 for water works and sewage disposal plants. Plans for public building projects are under consideration and will be advanced as soon as the federal organization is completed.

Illinois to Ask $80,000,000.

Illinois is ready to seek more than $80,000,000 of the three billion, three hundred million federal bond issue. In addition the state highway department estimates Illinois is entitled to $18,800,000 of the $400,000,000 of the work relief program to be granted to states for roads.

The eight public works projects in Cook county are:

Sanitary district [sewage treatment	$36,450,000
Cook County Nurses' home	2,000,000
Forest preserve improvements	1,360,000
City filtration plant	22,000,000
Ashland avenue bridge	3,250,000
Illinois waterway terminal	200,000
Lincoln park outer drive bridge	2,000,000
South park outer drive bridge	7,182,850
Total	$74,582,850

These projects have been approved by Gov. Horner's committee on unemployment. Other projects for Cook county and downstate recommended by the committee are now in the governor's hands. If approved these may be included among those for which federal aid will be asked.

Funds for Sewage Plants.

If a loan is granted the sanitary district it would be used to build sewage disposal works to comply with the Supreme court ruling on diversion of lake water. Under the ruling the district must spend 120 million dollars by 1938 on sewers and sewage disposal plants to come within the maximum lake diversion allowed. Sanitary district trustees are awaiting a ruling by the public works administrator, which is expected to decide their course in applying for additional federal help.

The Lincoln and south park boards hope to obtain loans to complete the outer drive improvement, which has been halted by lack of funds. The principle project of the city is the contemplated south side filtration plant. The county will ask $3,500,000 for the nurses' home and forest preserves. The forest preserves are already receiving federal aid under the reforestation program.

80 YEAR OLD MAN AND NURSE, 28, ARE WED IN NEW YORK CITY

New York, June 14.—[Special.]—Crosby Leonard, who says he's 80 but appears more like 50, went to the marriage license bureau today with Miss Ida M. Clarke, only 28, a graduate nurse. They obtained a marriage license and were later married at the Church of the Transfiguration.

"A romance of December and June —in a way," he said musingly. "I had an automobile accident last December, Miss Leonard nursed me back to health. Yes, this is June, and that's that.

"What's my business? That's none of your business," he told a reporter. "I've got a yacht——

"I won't tell, but I go to the West Indies in my yacht to look after my interests."

Asked about his interests, he replied:

"Humph! Why should I tell? Besides that, I'm a graduate of Yale."

HENRY T. HUNT IS CHOSEN FOR U. S. WORKS JOB

BARE WEST PARK VIOLATIONS OF CIVIL SERVICE

"Temporary" Appointees on Pay Roll Ten Years.

Violations of the civil service act on a wholesale scale by the former west parks board headed by W. R. James were being studied yesterday by Assistant State's Attorneys Henry Seyfarth and A. J. Strachan, assigned by State's Attorney Courtney to investigate the conduct of the board which left the park system a financial wreck.

The three large Chicago park systems operate under what is considered the strictest set of civil service rules in the state. The rules limit temporary appointments to 60 days, and allow them only in exceptional cases. Yet the present board headed by President Harry Joseph found on taking office that some park employés had been on the pay roll as long as ten years under temporary appointments.

Among the regulations governing the park board is one requiring that civil service examinations shall be held in advance and an eligible list established for all positions in which vacancies occur frequently, and that where vacancies are infrequent, an examination must be held within at least sixty days after a vacancy occurs.

Fines and Imprisonment Provided.

The statute also provides that any person who "willfully or through culpable negligence" violates this or any other provision of the park civil service act may be fined not more than $1,000 and imprisoned not more than six months.

However, the James park board on April 17, 1930, passed a resolution requesting the park civil service commissioners to hold no more examinations "because of the expense involved." During that year the board paid out $572,777 to political pay rollers who were temporary appointees. The civil service commissioners obliged the board by holding no examinations that year, only one in 1931 and only 12 in 1932. In the first decade after civil service was established in the park system, from 1912 to 1923, an average of 47 examinations was held yearly.

During the five years from 1928 to 1932, inclusive, the board had a total of 4,406 temporary appointees on its pay rolols. The turnover on these employés was about 60 per cent a year. These constituted from 27 to 61 per cent of the total park employés during the various years, and they received, in the five years, $5,950,924.

Attributes Jobs to Politics.

"There is little question that politics controlled all these appointments," said President Josephs in his report to Gov. Horner on the condition in which he found the park system. While they found that copies of the civil service code for the park was out of print, the commissioners headed by President Josephs found the office of C. J. McGowan, superintendent of employment for the James board, outfitted with a complete set of ward and precinct maps.

McGowan is Republican committeeman from the 39th ward, and President Joseph's report charges that he had at one time 150 temporary appointees from his ward on the west park pay rolls, although it lies completely outside the park district.

Among the temporary appointees were several hundred women, the majority of whom, it is charged, were daughters, nieces or in some cases, less orthodox connections of the James board and its political associates. Women playground attendants long on the civil service rolls have told investigators that some of these women, put to work at the same rate of pay which they received, spent their days in the corner of some locker room or office, reading books.

Old Pay Claims Held Up.

As a result of the pay roll conditions which it found on taking office, the present park board has started meeting pay rolls from that date. This takes care of the civil service workers who toiled paylcss for more than a year under the old board, but prevents any payment to the temporary appointees, which the present board immediately dropped on taking office.

Employés got their pay checks yesterday for the last half of March and the first half of April. This pay roll was 45 per cent less than the one of the James board for the same period a year ago—pay which the less favored park employés, incidentally, have yet to receive. Monthly pay rolls in the park district now aggregate about $120,000, as compared with $221,000 spent by the James board last July.

The present commissioners have also undertaken a complete reform of the employment system, to put personnel matters back under the civil service system. In this connection they have given Fred G. Heuchling, the civil service expert who set up the park civil service system in 1911, a temporary appointment as employment manager.

URGES LINCOLN PARK ISSUE SEMI-ANNUAL FISCAL STATEMENTS

A demand that a public statement of Lincoln park's financial condition be issued semi-annually as a safeguard against wasteful spending was made by Park Commissioner Martin J. Kennelly at a meeting of the park board yesterday. Mr. Kennelly declared that the state's attorney's investigation of the former west park board's affairs was an example of what happens when a municipality does not keep a proper hold on its finances.

"Such a step will take a lot of thought," said Alfred D. Plamondon, president of the board. "I'm going to refer the matter to the finance committee and to the board attorney, James Slattery."

The board, guided by the advice of Hugh Young, chief engineer of the Chicago Plan commission, adopted several measures for the development of the new Montrose beach. The commissioners decided to spend $8,500 for a lighting system at the beach and $2,100 on cinders for the construction of a space adjoining for the parking of 750 automobiles.

A temporary bathhouse with showers, lockers, and comfort facilities is nearing completion at a cost of $10,000 at the new beach. Approximately $15,000 has been spent on an extension of water mains and a sewage system.

MERCURY FALLS TO 40°, TYING THE JUNE LOW HERE

A temperature reading of 40 above zero, recorded yesterday on an official thermometer at the municipal airport, equaled the all time June low in Chicago. The minimum at the University of Chicago, where the temperature records are kept, was 52. A low of 40 was reached on June 6, 1824, and on June 22, 1875. This month also has set the all time high mark for June, with a temperature of 100 degrees recorded on June 7.

The maximum yesterday afternoon was only 60 and the mean was 11 degrees under normal. Forecaster C. A. Donnel said there were unofficial reports of light frost at Woodstock and temperatures as low as 24 above zero in northern Wisconsin. The cold in the agricultural regions was not sufficient to cause crop damage.

Today, according to forecast, will be warmer, as will tomorrow. Winds are scheduled to blow from the west and southwest instead of the north.

Precipitation since May 31 has been only .61 of an inch and there has been no rain since June 5. The normal precipitation for June is 3.30 inches. The Illinois crop report from Springfield indicated that corn is now fully planted, but that the fields which were sown last are not doing well due to lack of moisture.

FIND HUMPHRIES' SECRET BANKING FUND AFTER YEAR

Believe It Will Lead to Indictment.

Internal revenue agents are reported to have discovered a secret bank account of Murray Humphries, public enemy No. 1, which, they believe, opens the way for his indictment for income tax violation. The United States district attorney's office yesterday obtain a subpoena duces tecum for the records of the Sears Community bank, particularly those pertaining to the deposits of M. L. Brunswick.

The agents are said to be confident that this is an alias assumed by the hoodlum who succeeded to the racket throne of Al Capone. The discovery is expected to result in the successful conclusion at an early date of the federal grand jury investigation of Humphries' income.

While no figures were available, the deposits in the "Brunswick" account were said to be "very large." The account was found after a search by agents directed by A. P. Madden, chief of the special intelligence unit, for more than a year.

The grand jury which has been investigating the income of Humphries and other hoodlums for the last three weeks is believed to have concentrated on the money taken from Chicago business and labor. Government agents are said to have discovered that Humphries exacted an income of $500,000 a year in personal tribute from labor and trade associations.

The MILWAUKEE ROAD

SEE TIM CROWE BEHIND 'MOVE TO EMPTY PRISONS'

Lawyers to Attack Grand Jury Selection.

Timothy J. Crowe, convicted former president of the sanitary district board, is suspected by the state's attorney's office of being the backer of a move which, in the opinion of Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court, might empty all the jails and penitentiaries in Illinois.

The attorneys who represented Crowe throughout his trial and who are now handling his appeal, served notice on Chief Justice Prystalski yesterday afternoon that they will appear before the state Supreme court in Springfield this morning and ask permission to file a mandamus proceeding to compel the chief justice to expunge from the court records the order impaneling the present grand jury. In effect the action would nullify all indictments made by this grand jury.

"Would Nullify Crowe Trial."

Attorneys John L. McInerney, John F. Higgins, and Bernhardt Frank, who are behind the legal move, admit that such a decision by the Supreme court also would have the effect of nullifying the indictment and trial of Crowe and his associates. Crowe and several other former sanitary district officials were convicted in February, 1932, of looting the district treasury while Crowe was head of the board. Crowe was sentenced to one to five years in prison. His appeal is still pending.

Attorney McInerney said Crowe had nothing to do with the present move. The petition for mandamus is brought in the name of Stanley Jones, "a taxpayer," otherwise unidentified. The attorney said he did not remember exactly where Jones lived and he would give no reason as to why "Jones" should show such an interest in a proceeding of this sort.

Attorney McInerney said that if his petition were allowed it would not empty the jails and penitentiaries, but would only have the effect of throwing out such cases as that of Crowe and his associates, the Bain bank case, and others where legality of the grand jury has been questioned in a motion to quash the indictments. Judge Prystalski, however, took the view that the granting of the mandamus would cloud the legality of all grand juries, voiding all convictions under their indictments.

Basis of Attack on Jury.

The attack on the June grand jury is based on the contention that only 23 men should be selected by chance by the jury commissioners for grand jury service. Under the present system fifty or sixty men are summoned each month so that the chief justice is always sure to have the necessary 23 men on hand. Those not needed are excused from service.

The jury question has been the source of considerable agitation recently on the part of defense lawyers. The state Supreme court, in a bank case some months ago, held that there was not a sufficient element of chance in the method of selecting the grand jury, and recommended that the system be changed.

Train Kills One; Second Victim Is Expected to Die

One man was killed and another probably fatally hurt last evening when they were struck by a fast north bound Chicago and North Western railway train at the 10th street crossing in Waukegan. Both men appeared to be casuals, police said. They were standing on the north bound rails waiting for a south bound train to pass when the north bound train struck them. The injured man was taken to the Lake County General hospital. Neither was identified.

DELAY ASKED OF HIGH COURT IN SANITARY ORDER

Kerner Files Petition for Rehearing.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 14.—[Special.]—In a formal petition signed by Attorney General Otto Kerner, Illinois today asked the Supreme court for a rehearing on its recent decision ordering the state to pay the full costs of completing the sanitary district construction program in Chicago.

To raise the $35,000,000 a year required for prosecution of the construction program "is not now within the financial capacity of the state," the petition said.

Alleges Unemployment.

"Leaving aside the obligation of the state to take care of its citizens out of employment because of the depression—a matter we had hoped would receive strong consideration at the hands of his court," the petition stated, "we urge that an appraisal of the evidence in the record will entirely fail to justify a conclusion of fact that it is now within the financial capacity of the state by additional taxation to raise $35,000,000 in 1933 and a like sum in 1934 and subsequent years."

Challenges Master's Findings.

The petition challenged the findings of Edward F. McLennon, special master appointed by the court, who held that the sanitary district program could be completed by 1939 in accordance with the court's original decree ordering the program to be undertaken.

"This conclusion," the state argued, "must be based upon the assumption that funds would be made available at once. We believe, however, the court's conclusion as to the capacity of the state is based upon a misconception that the credit of the state may now be made presently and immediately available for these purposes."

The petition pointed out such is not the case in view of the fact that the state constitution prohibits creation of debt except upon approval of the people at a general election. Such an election cannot be held until November, 1934.

Since the court is now in recess until October, there is no prospect of action on the state's request until that time.

BANK THIEVES KILL MISSOURI SHERIFF, STATE TROOPER, TOO

Columbia, Mo., June 14.—(AP)—Two officers were shot to death here late today by three men fleeing with the loot of the Farmers and Merchants' bank of Mexico, Mo.

Posses sought them tonight, many citizens joining authorities in the hunt throughout central Missouri.

Sheriff Roger Wilson, 42, of Boone county and Sergt. Ben Booth, 38, a state highway patrolman, were slain when they halted three men for questioning 45 minutes after the robbery. The slayers fled eastward.

Four airplane pilots took off in efforts to spot the trio from the air.

Cashier C. F. Merrifield said two men held up him and two customers.

"I was forced to go to the vault and get all the money there," the cashier said. "Then the robbers looted the cash drawer and the money changer."

BOUGHT INSULL STOCKS, ANSWER TO ALIMONY PLEA

Ulrich Dernehl, president of the Central Architectural Iron Works, yesterday told Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan that he sold his sailing yacht for $175,000 two years ago and used the money to purchase Insull securities. This was his answer to the plea of Mrs. Margaret Dernehl, 200 Maplewood road, Riverside, for temporary alimony pending the trial of her divorce suit. Through her attorney, Lloyd Faxon, Mrs. Dernehl said that her husband was an habitual drinker. The attorney was granted an order to bring in the architectural company books when Dernehl said that the stocks, almost his only assets, were now worth less than $30,000. Judge Finnegan then continued the hearing until Friday.

CHICAGO FEELS SURGE OF WORLD FAIR BUSINESS

Rail Traffic Booms; Stores Thronged.

ern, compared the business of crack trains of that line in the week of June 1 to 9, with the same period last year.

"On the Columbine from Colorado," said Mr. Thomson, "the increase was 80 per cent; on the Overland Limited from California, 125 per cent; on the Portland Rose from the northwest, 100 per cent; on the Corn King from Des Moines, 90 per cent, and on the Northwestern Limited from the Twin Cities, 50 per cent."

On the Chicago and Oakland, Cal., trains the North Western has carried 80 extra sleepers from May 15 to June 9, Mr. Thomson added. The road is running day coach specials from Des Moines, Mankato, Minn.; Janesville and Green Bay, Wis., several times a week.

Great Increase in Inquiries.

How much of this extra traffic is due to the Fair?

Mr. Thomson pointed out that in all of 1932 the North Western's traffic bureau received a total of 4,000 inquiries. In five months of this year, the total inquiries have been 16,000, a great portion of them about the Fair.

The experience of the Rock Island lines was told by W. J. Leahy, assistant passenger traffic manager.

"There's been a steady pickup since the 27th of May," he said. "Right now we're carrying four or five extra coaches on every train. We're running the Golden State limited from California in extra sections five days a week. We've had specials from Omaha, Des Moines, Kansas City, Mo., Manhattan, Kas., and Colorado Springs."

From the New York Central.

And here's the story of the New York Central lines, gained from D. M. Bowman, passenger traffic manager:

"Extra sleepers on all through trains. Extra sections every day on the Twentieth Century limited, the Commodore Vanderbilt, and the Exposition Flyers. Sometimes three or four extras on the Vanderbilt and the Exposition Flyer. Special trains for 4-H clubs from small towns of Ohio, Michigan, and Indiana."

Charles E. McCullough, passenger traffic manager of the Pennsylvania railroad, said:

"We had a special party only this morning from Maryland and the District of Columbia. More are coming through the week—high school youngsters from Indiana and Ohio. We have extra sections every day on the Manhattan, Golden Arrow, and Pennsylvania limiteds and a couple of times a week on the extra fare Broadway limited. We've seen nothing so encouraging for a long time. The whole road is a lot more cheerful."

Here's an Item of Cheer.

Now comes an item to cheer the North Western, the Milwaukee, and the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee. It is this:

The Travel Guild, Inc., announce that it has signed up officials of the international convention of the Elks, opening at Milwaukee tomorrow, to transport the whole convention to the Chicago World's Fair for a week following the convention's close June 21. Convention officials expect 75,000 delegates.

Here are some figures on air traffic:

John Graves, assistant traffic manager of Transcontinental and Western Air Express, announced an extra trip schedule to be inaugurated today to take care of traffic between Chicago and Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and New York. The T.-W.-A. has a fleet of ships seating twelve passengers each, but has been turning away passengers every day.

70% Gain on United Air Lines.

Thomas Wolfe, assistant traffic manager of United Air Lines, said that traffic for the first two weeks of this month is running just 70 per cent ahead of the same period last year. From June 1 to 14, 1932, the line carried 877 passengers; from June 1 to 14 of World's Fair year, 1,493 passengers.

"We've been running four extra schedules a day," said Mr. Wolfe. "Much of the added traffic is due to the Fair and nothing else. We've been carrying a lot of executives out here from the east who want to see how their own exhibits are going, and they tell us so."

STATES WARNED BY U. S. TO TRIM ON RELIEF COSTS

Government to Cut Down on Handouts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 14.—[Special.]—Relief expenditures must be rigidly held down lest they divert money from constructive activities of the government, Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief director, told eight governors and 80 state officials gathered here today to map out relief plans.

Meanwhile President Roosevelt announced that about 10,000 public works projects to give men work are being considered. While he is away on his vacation this list will be sifted down to 1,000 and work will be started upon his return, he explained. By the middle of July he hopes to see construction under way.

Some "Cans" and "Can'ts."

Here are some of the "cans" and "can'ts" which will apply in the operations:

Any federal funds given states may be included in the total for the next allocation by matching of $1 in federal money with $3 spent by the state.

Relief can be given in cash.

Doctors' care and medicine may be supplied at home, but hospital treatment will not be given.

In the opinion of the administrator, municipalities cannot put up bonds and get money on them.

Work relief may be paid for in cash or in kind.

Federal funds will not go toward paying for materials used in work projects.

Matching of private funds is considered illegal.

Money may be given out of the 250 million dollar outright grants or discretionary fund if a state is unable to match the federal contribution fully.

The state organizations must be chiefly responsible for determining local relief needs and administration.

The national administration will pass on state organization salaries and the like, with the state officials to control such local expenses.

The state administrations should be nonpartisan.

Eight Governors Attend.

The eight governors who attended the conference were Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, John G. Pollard of Virginia, J. M. Futrell of Arkansas, F. H. Cooney of Montana, Ira C. Blackwood of South Carolina, Theodore Green of Rhode Island, John G. Winant of New Hampshire, and Louis J. Brann of Maine.

SPEED TRAP CASE TRANSFERRED OUT OF JUSTICE PARK

The Justice Park speed trap case was transferred yesterday from the jurisdiction of that village to the court of Justice of the Peace Frank O'Brien in Oak Lawn. Justice of the Peace Si Lindeman of Justice Park, who has promised to resign on Saturday, granted the change of venue to the defendants, James Cropp, 50 years old, 4536 South Turner avenue, and his son, Stanley, 26 years old.

The Cropps were held for 12 hours last Sunday in the stifling village jail until the elder man collapsed from the heat. The charges against them are speeding and resisting arrest. They appeared before Lindeman yesterday with Attorney Leslie Smith of the Chicago Motor club, their counsel. When Village Attorney Harold Jackson said he was not prepared for trial Lindeman granted the change of venue. The case will be heard by Justice O'Brien next Wednesday.

On Tuesday Lindeman, in the midst of questioning by state's attorneys investgators, announced that he would resign on Saturday. Earlier that day Albert Webster, village constable who arrested the Cropps and John C. Richards, clerk in Lindeman's court, had resigned. The investigation of the speed trap followed a complaint to the state's attorney by the Cropps.

NEW TRADE WAR FLARES; LATVIA FIGHTS GERMANY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, June 14.—Latvia accepted Germany's challenge to a trade war by declaring an embargo on all German imports effective today. The sale of German newspapers and periodicals also was stopped.

Official confirmation of these steps had been delayed by the foreign office in the vain hope that the Latvian foreign minister, Waldemar Salnais, who is attending the London economic conference, would be able to negotiate with the German foreign minister, Baron von Neurath, to lift the embargo on Latvian butter.

The Latvian-German conflict began when Latvia failed to take steps to halt the Jewish movement to boycott German goods. The boycott was supported by Latvian Socialists. The Hitler government retaliated by placing an embargo on Latvian butter, which is this country's largest source of income from abroad.

WILLIAM L. MELLON, CHIEF OF OIL FIRM, IS SUED ON TAX CHARGE

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 14.—[Special.]—William L. Mellon, president of the Gulf Oil corporation and nephew of the former secretary of the treasury, Andrew Mellon, today was sued in federal court on the charge of evasion of income taxes.

The suit charged the Gulf head with omitting from income tax reports for the years 1926 to 1930, inclusively, 73,000 shares of Gulf stock valued at $8,082,526. The suit alleged the government was defrauded of over $2,000,000.

The suit asks recovery of twice the tax, or over $4,000,000, and a total in penalties of $10,000. Olson brought the suit as a citizen on behalf of the United States government.

Under an old law he stands to collect half the amount the government recovers.

In the suit Andrew W. Mellon is mentioned as the owner, while he was secretary of the treasury, of 1,500,000 of the Gulf 4,500,000 shares of which the public holds only 300,000, the suit charges.

JOBS INCREASE, PAY ADVANCES IN LAST MONTH

May Gains Best Since Year 1923.

Washington, D. C., June 14.—[Special.]—Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins today announced that the largest increases in employment and pay rolls since 1923 had occurred in May.

"These marked increases, occurring in a month in which employment and pay rolls usually decline, are the most encouraging developments in the employment situation in many months," she said.

Pay Rolls Gain 11.5 Per Cent.

Employment advanced 4.8 per cent during the month and pay rolls jumped 11.5 per cent, according to the report which covers manufacturing industries. Not since 1929 has May shown an increase over April and gains as large as those of last month have not been recorded since January, 1923.

Seventy-two out of the 89 manufacturing industries covered by the department's survey reported higher employment in May, and 81 reported larger pay roll totals. The same trend carried through in non-manufacturing business, according to a separate report which showed increased employment in 9 of 16 non-manufacturing industries and increased pay rolls in 12.

Central States Benefit.

Only four states reported declines in pay roll totals. Nine were recorded as having a decrease in employment. In Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Iowa the nationwide increase was sustained.

Illinois showed 1.2 per cent increase in employment and a 4.2 per cent increase in pay rolls. In Indiana employment increased 3.1 per cent and pay rolls 10.8 per cent. Michigan reported a 5.7 per cent advance in employment and a 19 per cent pickup in pay rolls. Employment in Iowa gained 2.1 per cent and pay rolls 6.6 per cent. In Wisconsin employment improved 1.6 per cent and pay rolls 7.4 per cent.

MINNESOTA DEAN URGES ENDOWED NURSING SCHOOLS

The medical profession should take an active part in helping to clear up "the deplorable conditions in nursing education," Dr. E. P. Lyon, dean of the medical school of the University of Minnesota, told the National League of Nursing Education last night.

Dr. Lyon was a member of the committee on nursing education of the Association of American Medical colleges. His address was given at a dinner held under the auspices of the Central council for nursing education in Chicago at the Drake hotel, as part of the league's fortieth anniversary celebration and convention.

Of the 2,000 nursing schools, he said, only 100 should be saved, and they should be adequately endowed, equipped, and staffed as departments of universities or colleges.

Dr. Michael M. Davis, director of medical services for Julius Rosenwald fund, speaking on "Public Responsibility for the Education of Nurses," declared that cities are overcrowded with nurses while in rural areas and small towns there are too few.

HITLER GUARDS SENT TO BORDER IN AUSTRIAN ROW

Vienna Press Attache Is Expelled by Nazis.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 14.—Austro-German relations stretched near the breaking point today as an official announcement told of the dispatch of detachments of Chancellor Hitler's black uniformed "Hitler guards" to the Austrian border. The guards, it was explained, will "reinforce customs authorities." Simultaneously a denial was issued that Nazi storm troopers are being concentrated along the border.

The Austro-German storm, which broke over the week-end as a result of a series of bombings in Vienna attributed to Austrian Nazis, today centered around Erwin Wasserbaeck, press attaché of the Austrian legation in Berlin. Wasserbaeck, who slipped from the frock of a priest to become a diplomat ten years ago, was awakened at 2 o'clock this morning by agents of the Prussian secret police.

Calls Up Dollfuss.

While the police were banging on the door and demanding that Wasserbaeck give himself up, Wasserbaeck telephoned to London to ask the Austrian chancellor, Engelbert Dollfuss, for instructions. Dollfuss, who was attending the London economic parley, ordered him to "sit tight," insist on his prerogatives as a diplomat, and give up only if force were used.

Finally the officers broke in and Wasserbaeck was arrested in his bedroom. In the course of the day he was released and ordered to leave Germany immediately. Thereupon the Austrians advanced him in rank and transferred him to the London embassy, where he will go tomorrow.

The Austrian minister lodged a strong protest with the German foreign office over the arrest.

Nazi officials, however, declare the expulsion of Wasserbaeck was justified as a retaliatory measure for the Austrian arrest of the German press chief, Theodore Habicht, in Vienna. Habicht was imprisoned with other Nazi leaders in raids by Austrian authorities on Nazi headquarters in Vienna and elsewhere following the week-end bombings. He was released from prison today and expelled from the country.

Storm Troops See Red.

Hot words sizzled in the Wilhelmstrasse following reports of Dollfuss' denunciation of the German action in London. The storm troopers, too, are excited and clamoring for permission to march to Austria, but they were ordered to remain at home.

The Nazi organ, Der Angriff, charges that the Catholic Center party is supporting the Austrian government against Germany and threatens dire measures unless the party abandons this policy.

German trouble with other nations was also evidenced today in a "black list" of foreign newspapers and periodicals forbidden to enter Germany because of "false reports on conditions in Germany." The list numbers 245, of which nine are American publications. Sixty-six Czechoslovakian publications are banned, partly because German communists and other refugees are printing their literature in Czechoslovakia.

Prison Camp Action.

At Württemberg today 200 political prisoners were released from the concentration camp, but a new batch were arrested. They included a former state president, a leading Socialist, and a correspondent for the Frankfurter Zeitung, all of whom were seized after men at the concentration camp had charged that they "misled them politically."

Württemberg also today prohibited the Young German order and seized its property.

Nationalists, too, felt the grip of their Nazi allies. The "Nationalist fighting ring" at Dortmund was prohibited. Hitlerites claimed that 75 per cent of the newly enlisted Nationalist "fighters" belonged to Marxist parties three months ago. A Nationalist woman politician, Helen Stubenrauch, was arrested near Essen when addressing a meeting. She was charged with slandering members of the government. A semi-military Nationalist organization, "Werwolf," was prohibited in Saxony.

HELD IN BURGLARY CASE.

George Williams, 40 years old, arrested after he broke into a restaurant at 1801 Indiana avenue, was held to the grand jury in bonds of $5,000 by Judge Hartigan yesterday.

BRITISH, JAPS AND CHINESE ATTACK AMERICAN LOAN

R. F. C. Wheat, Cotton Deal Stirs Row.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, June 14.—The Reconstruction Finance corporation's $50,000,000 cotton and wheat loan to China has stirred up a serious political controversy. It is reported to have caused the national government to rush a message to T. V. Soong, finance minister now at the London economic conference, urging him to return home as soon as possible in order to prevent further political complications.

Soong signed the agreement while in Washington. It provided for the purchase from the United States of 900,000 bales of cotton and 2,500,000 bushels of wheat, the cotton amounting to practically a year's supply for Chinese mills.

First opposition to the loan came from British sources. The Britons charged that the security given for the loan would endanger the interests of British bondholders. Private British commercial interests also opposed the loan since the American cotton purchase would supplant British Indian and Australian products.

Claims Civil War in Offing.

The next opposition was from Canton, where political interests opposed to the national government charged that Nanking would use the proceeds of the loan for political purposes detrimental to Canton. Hu Han-ming, former Nanking cabinet minister now affiliated with the Cantonese faction, cabled President Roosevelt urging postponement or cancellation of the loan. He asserted that Nanking is planning a civil war against Canton.

The Japanese also opposed the loan on the ground that the American wheat purchase would bar Japanese and Manchukuo flour from the China market.

Wang Ching-wei, Nanking premier, in reply to critics, stated that since China is dependent on foreign supplies for both cotton and wheat, the purchase is entirely in order, while the loan terms are more favorable than local bankers were able to provide.

Wang Defends Loan.

Wang denied any intention to use the loan to foment a civil war. He said the loan had received the full approval of the Nanking political council and would shortly be ratified by the legislative department. Finally, he declared that the large supplies of American cotton and wheat would not depress domestic products since there is a shortage already.

While officials of local Chinese cotton and flour mills are apprehensive of the government's ability to finance the deal, in general they express approval. Chinese papers point out that if Nanking is able to swing the deal, it should give local Chinese mills a big advantage over Japanese competitors since the national government could make the imports without payment of duty and would thereby eliminate private commercial profits.

Relief "Client" Is Jailed for Driving While Tipsy

Judge Thomas A. Green in the traffic court yesterday fined Clyde Secrust, 33 years old, 4805 Huron street, $100 and sentenced him to 30 days in the bridewell on a charge of driving while intoxicated. Secrust told the judge that he had been a "client" on the relief rolls for two years.

CHICAGO WILL COME BACK FIRST!

IN 1893 when a serious depression prevailed throughout the United States, Chicago launched the World's Columbian Exposition and led the country back to good times.

This year Chicago is holding its second World's Fair—A Century of Progress. Despite the effects of the most disastrous business collapse this country has ever experienced the Exposition was formally opened in advance of the date originally announced.

Chicago is again the special subject of national and international interest. Millions of visitors will come to see the great buildings which stretch for miles along the lake front. These visitors, according to conservative estimates, will spend in Chicago during the five month period in excess of half a billion dollars.

This tremendous sum, flowing into all local channels of trade, will provide a stimulus to business such as no other city will receive. And as in 1893, Chicago will come back first.

Business men who seek a large active market will find it in Chicago. The advertising medium which they will use with greatest success is the Tribune —Chicago's first newspaper.

Normally, the Tribune supplies the greatest coverage of Chicago and suburbs at the lowest cost. With 600,000 daily circulation, the Tribune reaches 47% more families than any other Chicago daily newspaper.

The Tribune, in addition, will be read by visitors to A Century of Progress. It is the newspaper with which they are familiar—the one which will be available to them when they are disposed to read a newspaper.

Ask a Tribune representative to help you work out a plan to take advantage of the sales opportunities in Chicago this year.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

MORATORIUM ON FORECLOSURES GAINS HEADWAY

Bill Advanced in Senate After Wordy Row.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 14.—[Special.]—After a wordy exchange over parliamentary procedure aimed to delay action, the state senate today advanced the mortgage foreclosure moratorium bill to the final step of enactment. The house already has passed the measure and it is believed the upper chamber will pass it tomorrow.

The senate balked emphatically at two amendments which, it was contended, would have emasculated the bill. One, offered by Richard J. Barr [Rep., Joliet], minority leader, proposed to limit the moratorium to farm property. This was not pressed by the farm bloc, but by "city folks" and was tabled by a vote of 21 to 5. The chief argument was that it would have denied the benefit of foreclosure delays to home owners.

Senator James J. Barbour [Rep., Evanston] presented the second amendment, which produced the prolonged tilt over procedure. It would have granted extension of time in either judgment or execution matters to holders of mortgages on which foreclosure delays have been allowed by the courts. When he was beaten, 21 to 5, Barbour served notice that tomorrow he would move to reconsider the vote and insisted that in the meantime the bill could not be advanced to third reading.

Alleges Bad Precedent.

Lieut. Gov. Donovan ruled with Barbour over the protests of Roy C. Woods [Rep., Chicago] and others that this procedure would allow a complete blockade of all bills by a series of unsuccessful amendments day after day. Donovan invited an appeal from his decision, and the tangle was not straightened out until Rollo M. Shaw [Dem., Lawrenceville], majority floor leader, urged that the question be put to a test on a straight vote on advancement.

On that roll call the bill was advanced by a vote of 26 to 14, receiving exactly the number of votes required for passage after the emergency clause—requiring two-thirds—had been stricken on the motion of Martin B. Lohmann [Dem., Pekin]. If the bill receives as many favorable votes tomorrow all it will need before it goes to Gov. Horner will be house concurrence in the amendment striking the emergency provisions, and this is regarded as certain.

Check Minimum Wage Bill.

The senate, with little debate beyond that necessary to point out that the depression is still on, refused to pass the bill to establish minimum wages for women and children. The vote was 24 to 20—two short of the required majority—when the roll call was suspended and further action was postponed. In spite of this hostility in the upper chamber the house proclaimed a public hearing on the bill in the evening.

By votes of 27 to 1 the senate passed two Lantz bills to authorize Chicago and Cook county to levy special and unlimited taxes for relief purposes exempt from present limitations.

WOMEN PASTORS IN LOS ANGELES PUT ON BATTLE

Los Angeles, Cal., June 14.—[Special.]—Police twice were called early this morning to settle a fist fight between two elderly women, pastors of the Superet church. They are Mrs. Mabel Ferguson, 58, assistant pastor of the sect, and Mrs. Josephine Trust, about the same age, and Superet pastor.

The first time both women were in white nightgowns. Armed with a gas pipe and bricks, Mrs. Ferguson shouted she had succeeded in ejecting Mrs. Trust from the church. Mrs. Ferguson defied police to take her away.

Mrs. Ferguson said, "I put her out because she is possessed of demons." Mrs. Ferguson was surrounded by broken pieces of church statuary, pictures torn from the church walls, and bits of broken furnishings.

The second fight was largely similar.

STATE UTILITIES CONTROL BILL IS BATTLED AHEAD

Opposition Is Overcome by Democrats.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 14.—[Special.]—Off to a flying start behind the Horner-Lindheimer utility regulation bill, the Democratic majority downed Republican moves to delay consideration of the bill today and after a hard struggle, sent it to second reading. A full hearing will be held tomorrow.

The opposition foreshadowed yesterday, when the bill came out of the public utilities committee without recommendation, materialized today but most of the Democrats were lined behind the measure and succeeded in several test votes in first placing it upon the calendar, then to first reading, and finally to a special order tomorrow.

Little Argument on Bill.

Since practically all of today's incident was consumed by motions and counter motions, little was said about the bill itself. Vesting virtually dictatorial powers in the Illinois commerce commission in control of utilities, and urged strongly by Gov. Horner and Chairman Lindheimer of the commission, its major provisions would grant the commission power to reduce rates without a hearing and place upon the companies the expenses of hearings on the justice of such reductions.

Thomas P. Sinnett of Rock Island, majority leader and sponsor of the bill, made the first move today in asking that the bill be taken from Speaker Roe's table and placed upon the calendar. Minority Leader Schnackenberg did not contest the motion, but suggested that a hearing be set for next Tuesday.

Bridling at this suggestion for delay, Howard L. Doyle [Dem., Decatur] moved, as a substitute, that the hearing be tomorrow afternoon. Deciding then that the first move should be to place the bill on the calendar, the Democrats asked a rising vote, which carried, 65 to 49—the first test vote.

Won By Margin of One.

Schnackenberg objected and cited the house rule demanding that a majority of the membership, or 77 votes, decide such a question. Speaker Roe ruled with him and the roll was called. Again the Democrats were victorious, 78 to 38, gleaning just one vote more than necessary.

Reverting then to a discussion of amendments the commerce commission is understood to plan introducing, which have not been made public, John P. Devine [Dem., Dixon] said that because of the unfriendliness of the utilities subcommittee toward the measure, the commission "was afraid to submit" the amendments in committee. He moved that the hearing be held Monday [the house plans to sit Monday for the first time this session].

Devine's motion was tabled by a rising vote of 55 to 48.

AMENDMENT HALTS NEW TWO PER CENT SALES TAX IN SENATE

Springfield, Ill., June 14.—[Special.]—Efforts to pass the new 2 per cent sales tax through the senate were delayed today by the adoption of an amendment to meet the demands of the Illinois Agricultural association to exempt certain retail sales of farmers.

The language inserted in the measure on motion of Senator Francis J. Loughran [Dem., Chicago], who is handling it for the administration, was as follows:

"The isolated or occasional sale of tangible personal property at retail, by a person who does not hold himself out as engaging in the business of selling such tangible presonal property at retail, does not constitute engaging in such business."

Following adoption of this amendment the bill was returned to third reading, where it is ready for the attempt to pass it tomorrow. For a time it was feared its success was threatened by sudden hostility on the part of Senator Richard J. Barr [Rep., Joliet], minority leader, who previously had favored the bill. Today he said he could not support it unless the farmers' amendment was included. It is believed he now will go along, although there are rumors that his reversal of position really was caused by the administration's support of the Maypole bill to create a state racing commission.

FATHER, 81, CAST OUT, SUES KIN OVER INSURANCE

A bowed, shabbily dressed white haired man shuffled into the courtroom of Municipal Judge Francis Borrelli yesterday. He was the plaintiff in a replevin suit against Mrs. Mabel W. Jack, 728 North Leamington avenue. He sought the return of a $1,000 life insurance policy now held by Mrs. Jack.

"I am Isaac R. Wood," the man told the judge. "I am 81 years old. This woman is my daughter. For several years I lived with her and her husband. I gave them my life insurance policy after my wife died. A year ago my daughter's husband decided that I was a burden to their home and they put me out on the streets. Now I want to get my policy so I can borrow enough money to enter a home for aged men."

"But how did you live?" asked Judge Borrelli.

"Part of the time I slept in basements," was the reply. "I tended furnaces for meals. Sometimes I slept in the alleys. Then I would have to find food in garbage cans. I can't stand it any longer, though."

Mrs. Jack, a neatly dressed woman of 45, was in court. She said she felt she was entitled to the policy because she had paid all her mother's doctor bills.

"I'll see that this man gets his policy and a home," said the judge.

Policeman Fined $200 for Striking Sergeant's Wife

Policeman Dennis Liston, 44 years old, 6058 South Albany avenue, charged with beating the wife of another policeman, was fined $200 yesterday by Judge Joseph A. Graber. The complainant was Mrs. Katherine Kelly, wife of Sergt. Fred Kelly of the Deering street station. She was struck, she declared, when she went to the Liston home to complain that her small son was beaten by Liston's nephew. Liston, unable to pay his fine, was stripped of his star by Supervising Captain John Prendergast, who recommended his suspension.

HORNER VETOES PLAN TO FORCE PAYMENT OF TAX ON AUTOMOBILES

Springfield, Ill., June 14.—[Special.]—Plans to compel the payment of personal property taxes on automobiles throughout Illinois by the withholding of state motor vehicle licenses were shattered today by Gov. Horner's veto of the first two bills embodying the project.

His pen killed the bill which would require a local assessor to furnish each automobile owner who schedules a car a certificate showing that the schedule has been filed. The proposal of the legislature was to require that this certificate be filed with the secretary of state with the owner's application for a state license.

The companion bill embodying the second part of the plan was called up for passage in the senate this afternoon, but objectors stopped it with assertions that the governor's action rendered the second proposed law ineffective. This second measure is expected to die.

COMMITTEE FOR 'SALARY BUYERS' BILL IN HOUSE

Springfield, Ill., June 14.—[Special.]—After long delay, the house committee on license and regulation today reported favorably on the Loughran senate bill aimed at "salary buyers." The bill will be on first reading tomorrow and Chairman William W. Powers [Dem., Chicago] promises to make every effort to rush it.

Aimed specifically at companies which make loans on small salaries and encourage extensions in order that they may collect high weekly interest payments, the bill has many backers. Because loan companies evade the 3½ per cent per month interest provision of the Illinois small loans act the committee decided that the bill should be made law.

Under current practice a small salaried worker may be mulcted as much as 240 per cent interest annually if he borrows one week's salary, finds himself unable to repay at the end of the week, and extends the loan.

MORE MILLIONS FOR COUNTRY LANES.

Illinois expects $18,800,000 for road construction under the terms of the federal public works appropriation just enacted. The state highway administration can spend the money wherever it wants to. Congress clearly provided that the money should be available for road building in the cities. The need for highway improvements is greatest in the cities and the unemployment which it is proposed to relieve is greatest there also. Yet the state's chief highway engineer, Mr. Lieberman, has announced that secondary roads through the rural areas are to be given preference. After the country lanes have been attended to, what money is left will go toward removing hazards to safety and then, if anything remains, the cities may get some of it.

Mr. Lieberman was, at least, frank. He conceded that when the country lanes and hazards had been paid for "there will be little money left" for expenditure in the cities and none for the west side's superhighway.

Mr. Lieberman's policy is as stupid as it is shocking to the sense of justice. For fifteen years Illinois has poured its road funds into the rural areas for the construction of highways, many of which carry only a few automobiles an hour. Most of the money, year in and year out, came from Chicago. Until a few months a[illegible] not one ce[illegible]t of the state's immense expenditures for highways was spent within Chicago. There are arterial routes in Chicago in desperate need of repair and reconstruction which carry more traffic in a day than all the secondary roads upon which Mr. Lieberman is going to lavish money will carry in a month.

The Illinois legislature, gerrymandered against Chicago by the perjury of its members, has consistently withheld money required for highway construction in the cities. Other cities in other states had suffered similar injustices. Congress was well aware of the facts and accordingly appropriated money from the federal treasury to right the balance. Ninety per cent of the funds of the federal government come from the cities and on that showing, even if there had been substantial justice in the past in the distribution of the road funds, the cities should get ninety per cent of the federal grant. Capable engineering would recognize the obvious fact that the country is relatively well supplied with roads and that the weak link in the state's highway system is in and near the cities. Common sense would indicate to any public official that if the road revenues of the state from gasoline taxes and licenses are to be maintained and increased, the best way to do so is to make motoring attractive to city dwellers.

Mr. Lieberman has thrown his sense of justice, his engineering training and his common sense out of the window. He is going to fritter away the federal appropriation and follow the repudiated footsteps of Smallism. He is going to spend it in a fashion to give the minimum of unemployment relief where it is most needed. It is difficult to believe that the policy he has announced has the indorsement of Gov. Horner.

OFF ON THE AMONTILLADO.

The world economic conference got away to a characteristic start. The American delegates are damned by day and dined by night. Edmond Taylor's stories from London are the best revelations of this tossing of the unsophisticated Yankees from the arena to the dinner table, where the sight of my lord and my lady is supposed to take out the smarts of Smuts and other bullfighters.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, as sub-host, after the king, broke faith just a little, as might have been expected, and talked war debts to the Americans, who tried to assume poker faces and not show that they were hot under the collar. Mr. MacDonald is such an innocent and feels so profoundly when he is moved that what is on his heart must find words or as a statesman he is untrue to his better nature. Mr. Hull, the American chairman, takes refuge in the agenda. That's the barrel for the trip over Niagara. He'll need good upholstering.

Sixty-six nations, with the league of nations as governess, are assembled, which may or may not mean another Babel. Most of them have gone for the ride and the dinners. The first session irritated nearly everybody, but the first dinner restored good humor. The Amontillado Château Larose (America could use that keg) and the Roederer (1920) wove the spell of Locarno again. Mr. Taylor in his dispatch notes that everybody was happily colonial as Mr. MacDonald gave the toast to the king.

In the conference seating arrangements Mr. Hull and his associates represent Etats-Unis. This is a compliment to the French delegates, who nevertheless are already sore. It puts Mr. Hull with the Ethiopians, but if the English alphabet had been used America would have been with Abyssinia or the United States would have been with Ugandaland. Mr. Hull will be able to hear. He has already heard that if the United States will shove its money under the door and attend the farewell dinner the conference will be a success.

THE WEST PARK SCANDAL.

The report of President Harry Joseph of the west park board, alleging mismanagement and misappropriation of funds by the previous administration, served to confirm the suspicions of citizens. It had been apparent to any one that the management of the park system under President James left much to be desired; and when the former president refused to make public the audit of the board's accounts, undertaken under the auspices of the Sargent committee, the conclusion that the board was seeking to hide the truth from the taxpayers was inescapable.

State's Attorney Courtney has announced that his office for some time has been at work to determine whether criminal prosecutions are warranted. If the facts incorporated in Mr. Joseph's report are correct, there can hardly be any doubt on that score. The criminal as well as the civil liability of those responsible for the debauch ought to be fastened on them. Anything less can only serve as an advertisement to officeholders that everything goes and there are no penalties.

MUSIC FOR THE FAIR AND AFTER.

One of the outstanding features of A Century of Progress is the program of music provided by the Chicago Friends of Music inaugurated last week. Like the remarkable exhibition of paintings at the Art institute the musical program is presented outside the Fair grounds, but in the perfect setting of the Auditorium. At the Columbian Exposition both art and music were housed within the grounds, but this was not practicable under the straitened conditions with which the present Exposition had to deal, and indeed this has resulted both in the case of the art exhibited and the music program in a better arrangement than could have been expected at the Fair grounds in the most favorable circumstances. The Art institute is an ideal setting for the great collection of paintings, while nothing approximating the extraordinary qualities of the Auditorium could have been expected in any audience room erected at the Fair. It was fortunate therefore that the original project for a special building could not be carried out. The Chicago Friends of Music are fulfilling their real purpose, which was to provide an adequate expression of the art of music and provide for the public the pleasure and inspiration that music alone can give.

The accomplishment of this public spirited effort is, we are glad to say, already assured so far as its artistic attainment is concerned. The concerts already given were of a character to raise the same enthusiasm as the great art exhibit deserves. The opening concert was a memorable event in the musical annals of the city and country, employing brilliantly the high qualities of one of the world's great symphonic organizations and its famous leader Dr. Stock, triple starred with the incomparable singing of Mme. Dux. The succeeding concerts have verified the hopes of a great artistic success for this phase of the Exposition and all that is to be sought now is the response of the public which such an offering should bring. That this response will be given we do not doubt.

The concerts have a special importance for Chicago, as they promise a permanent institution of the best music for the summer season. If supported by the music minded public as they deserve to be, they can be made a resource for city dwellers and visitors to the city each year. The famous summer night concerts of the eighties which finally resulted in the establishment of the Chicago Symphony orchestra under Theodore Thomas were an unforgettable feature of summer life in Chicago, and although summer concerts would have more competition now than in those simpler days we think with the great increase of our population there could be found support for a revival of summer music of the same quality.

The concerts provided by the Chicago Friends of Music, although they have the exceptional advantage of the Fair, will provide a fairly reliable test of this hope. If other great cities, like New York and Philadelphia, support music of high quality, the Chicago public is likely to do so. We have a great symphony orchestra under the directorship of a conductor of world reputation and wide musical sympathies. A summer concert season which would present programs of broad musical appeal but of the best quality would add notably to the attractions of Chicago. We suggest this opportunity be seriously considered by the organizations interested in the development of Chicago as a summer resort whose aid in making the present series as much of a financial as it is a musical success would be worth while.

The Friends of Music have earned the thanks of all who wish for the largest success for A Century of Progress Exposition for their contribution, but they are also to be credited with an initiative which may and should be developed for the permanent gratification of our public and our visitors in summer seasons to come.

Editorial of the Day

REPUDIATION WINS.

[Illinois State Journal.]

Great truths, it has been said, frequently abide with minorities. That the national house of representatives has, by a vote of 283 to 57, voted for breaking the government's promises to pay in gold does not impeach the members who are recorded against the proposal. This, one day, will be recognized by all men.

The votes against paying the country's debts in the terms of contracts under which they were created are votes for repudiation. They were cast during a hysterical frenzy of terror, induced by exaggerated pictures of the government's inability to carry on under rules of common honesty. One of the dissenting minority has characterized the majority votes as being dictated by President Roosevelt to gratify his desire to see the house "jump through the ringmaster's hoop." This may in some measure be true. A more charitable view is that both the President and the congress have gone more or less haywire with fear.

There is, of course, the argument that outlawing gold contracts is necessary to the government's plans for inflation and expansion of governmental activities. This argument, however, can have no application to contracts already in existence. Repudiation is inherently immoral—a rotten practice in which self-respecting business men or any business men who desire to preserve a reputation for honesty do not indulge.

Now, that's fine, only there is a slight catch in it. Mr. Brookhart says the Reconstruction Finance corporation of these United States must first loan the five million bucks to Red Russia. Not so good! But interesting. Mr. Brookhart of Iowa is always interesting.

THE PROLETARIAT.

"So we have banished God," the speaker said,
"Unfrocked the priests, and in the Church's stead
Built bawdy houses. Soon the Family
Shall be forgotten, and our babes shall be Reared by the State alone and for the State.
Man shall ignore his sons, forsake his mate,
And all shall mix and melt and merge in that Great crucible, the Proletariat."

"Perhaps," I mused, "perhaps"—and tried to feel Myself a mere machine, a bit of steel,
A senseless cog, a wheel within a wheel.
Tried to deny all hope, all love, all beauty,
And look upon denial as a duty;
To view the spring, the world, the universe,
(Flower-strewn, star-strewn) bourgeois, beneath the curse—
Chaotic, Godless, seething in the vat
Of the consuming Proletariat.

And then I woke to see the morning sun
Mount up the sky, as it had always done,
And heard a robin chirping cheerfully
The while he searched the lawn for worms that he Might carry to his mate who calmly sat,
Unmindful of the Proletariat,
Upon her nest, and passed the hours away
In mother dream from brooding day to day.

"Ah, no; you have not banished God," I said:
"While brooding robins by their mates are fed,
And fledglings cared for in their downy nests,
Babes will be nourished at their mothers' breasts,
Songs will be sung at dawn, and prayers arise
At twilight to the hushed and harkening skies.
You have not banished God, nor Faith, nor Love,
Nor changed the courses of the stars above.
And only sons of serfs to your fiat
Bow down, O puny Proletariat!"

After which we'll bet Secretary Hull pulled out a big bandana handkerchief, mopped his perspiring brow, and took a long drink of ice water. At least that is what the old time Fourth of July orators always did after they got something like that "execration of mankind" stuff off their chests.

SUNIUM.

(A messenger brought word to Socrates that the sacred ship had been sighted off Sunium, homeward bound, which meant that by morning he would be executed.)

The sacred ship passed Sunium today;
A few hours hence its fateful prow will glide
Within the harbor, and its keel will ride
At anchor, where two months ago it lay,
When yet my life coursed its unruffled way
Unmindful of the end. Sudden the warning.
The sands run fast. At latest by the morning
My lips will touch the hemlock. . . . Dearest, stay!

I am no Socrates. I cannot feign
His high composure in the face of death.
No unspent passion stirred his placid deep—
How should he know the shock of sundering pain?
Dearest, stay with me, and my shaking breath
Shall sigh itself away in quiet sleep.

DEFICIENCY DISEASES.

WHEN we read of the deficiency diseases the reference is principally to deficiencies in vitamins, although occasionally it refers to a deficiency in some minerals or salts and, still less frequently, to one caused by default in the calorie foods.

Anemia is an illustration of a deficiency disease due to lack of a mineral. The deficient mineral is iron. There are anemias where the case is complicated by other factors, but the pale, flabby baby illustrates anemia that is purely a deficiency disorder.

Goiter is another illustration of a deficiency disease in this group, iodine being the element that is deficient. The let-down condition due to too little blood sugar is an illustration of a deficiency condition where the default is in a calorie food.

The deficiency discoveries about which we hear most are scurvy, rickets, pellagra, sterility, feeble vitality in early infancy, insufficiency of mother's milk, and disorders of growth.

Scurvy is due to a deficiency of vitamin C. The better sources of this vitamin are fresh fruits and vegetables, although fresh meats are of some value as a source. This vitamin is soluble in water and in consequence not much of it can be stored. It follows that we depend on our daily rations to keep us supplied with it. Furthermore, it is the most fragile of the vitamins. As a rule it does not stand heating, canning, ageing, or exposure to air. In consequence we speak of fresh foods as the source of it. Canned tomato juice is an exception. It is possible that elaborate scientific study of tomato juice may teach us how to can or preserve a long list of foods without lessening their vitamin C.

Rickets and various defects in growth result from deficiency in vitamin D. This vitamin is oil soluble, and therefore, the body stores it well. The vitamin may be poor in vitamin D for several months before the body develops symptoms of deficiency in this ingredient. Rickets is a spring disorder, but its cause is the improper diet of the earlier winter.

Pellagra results from the prolonged use of a diet poor in one of the group of vitamins known as B complex. It is capable of being stored, and in consequence we say that the prolonged use of an improper diet is required for the development of the disease. The foods richest in this vitamin are the yeasts, salmons, and lean meats. If a cheese is used to prevent or cure pellagra one made of skim milk is reasonably good. The yeasts that our grandmothers grew for bread baking purposes are good enough and they may be equal to the high priced varieties.

Sterility, poor childbearing capacity, poor supply of breast milk, and feeble early infancy result from a deficiency in another member of the B complex group. The yeasts and the whole grains are excellent sources of supply.

Beriberi, neuritis, and various neuralgias are due to deficiency in another part of the B complex. Bran is an excellent source of supply for this vitamin.

SEEING DOUBLE.

L. R. writes: What is the cause of seeing double? Is it from eyestrain or from some other cause? How can it be remedied?

REPLY.

There are several causes and some of them are serious. If the condition is chronic the probable cause is a lack of balance between the muscles of the eyeball and an absence of fusion of the images on the retina. Such cases are sometimes cured by glasses, sometimes by operation. Some appear incurable. Among the more important acute causes are botulinism and encephalitis.

WATCH YOUR DIET.

M. M. G. writes: I am a woman 57 years of age and have a gall bladder condition. I take care of my diet and seldom had any trouble until lately. I have been eating eggs about every day. Would they affect me in any way? I drink a lot of buttermilk. My friends tell me it is not good in my condition. Will you please advise?

REPLY.

I assume you mean you have a gall bladder infection and not gall stones. People with that trouble do not digest eggs well, nor other fat foods. They must eat meat sparingly. Buttermilk in moderation should not harm. The diet should consist of simple plain foods, principally breads, cereals, vegetables, and fruits. Supper should be a very light meal.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

STOCKHOLDER'S LIABILITY.

Chicago, June 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A man sold bank stock eleven years ago. The institution was a state bank and was liquid at the time of the sale. Last summer this bank closed and a receiver was appointed. He is now trying to collect the double liability amounting to $500 (five shares) from the above seller. The former stockholder is insolvent. 1. Can the receiver under the Illinois law collect double liability from a person who at present does not hold the stock but was the owner of the stock at one time? 2. Are the states in unison concerning this law? 3. Is there a national law concerning the above?

W. V.

1. Yes, as to the stockholder's pro rata share as to debts that were incurred while he was a stockholder.
2. The liability of stockholders in state banks is a matter of state statute and naturally each statute is likely to differ from each of the others.
3. Yes, as to national banks.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

BANKRUPTCY.

Chicago, June 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am under the impression that when a wage earner or salaried person is adjudged a bankrupt [1] his future salary is exempt only in accordance with the state law in which he lives, which in Illinois would be [2] $20 per week. Is this correct? I have invested considerable sums of money in real estate, having signed mortgages and other notes to the amount of $26,000. Some of my creditors are not satisfied with foreclosing on the mortgages but instead threaten to sue me for the deficiency. My salary at present is $150 per month. 3. Can they garnishee same in excess of $20 per week if I am adjudged a bankrupt? I did not assign my wages.

S. K.

1. This would be true as to his future debts. Past debts, barred by the bankruptcy, are not collectible out of his wages any more than out of other assets.
2. Correct.
3. Bankruptcy would bar your personal liability on these debts.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 15, 1917.

NEW YORK.—The belief is expressed in all quarters here that the Liberty loan will be oversubscribed, estimates of the oversubscription running from $100,000,000 to $500,000,000.

CHICAGO.—Chicago has delivered the goods with a subscription to the Liberty loan that may reach $300,000,000, or $40,000,000 in excess of the allotment of this district. It may go even higher when today's figures are all in.

CHICAGO.—Eight officers and members of the "League of Humanity," organized to fight the army draft, were seized last night when department of justice agents from Hinton G. Clabaugh's office, aided by the police, raided a meeting at 20 West Randolph street.

WAR SUMMARY.—Total registration under the selective draft law is expected to be 9,750,000. Japan is to send a special commission to the United States to discuss war program. London reports capture of a Turkish fort at Saliff, on the eastern shore of the Red sea. It also notes a further advance on three-quarters of a mile front in Flanders. Paris reports repulse of German attacks on the whole front, while Berlin makes the same report regarding French attempts to advance. Petrograd reports a successful raid northeast of Smorgon and the repulse of the foe in the Carpathians.

PETROGRAD.—The provisional government has issued a decree declaring all acts of military disorder to be insubordination, including refusal to fight, and also incitement to fight against the government. Such acts, says the decree, are punishable by long sentences to servitude in the penitentiary and the deprivation of rights to property and also the right to receive land under the coming land redistribution.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The entente nations, having expressed through Great Britain a willingness to revise the terms of the entente allies as it relates to war aims, are prepared now to request of the Russian provisional government a definition of Russia's position and a declaration of her intentions.

CHICAGO.—Official announcement was made last night of the formation of what officially will be known as the Ninth Illinois infantry, U. S. N. G., and unofficially as the "veterans'" regiment, with Col. James E. Stuart of the federal inspection department as commanding officer. Capt. Elmer M. Lawson of Chicago has been named adjutant and Capt. Bliss, Springfield, regimental supply officer. The lieutenant colonel of the regiment would be Judge Marcus A. Kavanagh.

WORLD'S FAIR QUESTION BOX

Requests for information concerning A Century of Progress will be answered in this column. It is urged that questions be stated briefly.

QUESTION—Can the Fort Dearborn stubs on the Souvenir World's Fair tickets be used as admission to any other concession?

ANSWER—They can be used for admission to the Lama temple, but no other concessions.

QUESTION—I have a pack of cards with pictures of all the buildings at the Fair. Is this of any value?

ANSWER—If by value you mean will any one redeem them at the Fair the answer is no. They are worth only what they are worth to you.

THE FIRST WHITE MAN IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, June 11.—Kindly permit me the following comments on Mr. Ernest Bradshaw's communication in your issue of June 3 regarding the first white man in Chicago.

1. "The exact year of La Salle's first visit to Chicago is not known, although Joliet personally informed Potherie that La Salle had begun an establishment on the St. Joseph prior to Joliet's expedition in 1673." There is no mystery about the date of La Salle's first visit to Chicago or its neighborhood. The explorer journeyed down the west shore of Lake Michigan in 1679 on his way to the St. Joseph. This is his earliest appearance in the Chicago region. That he was there on previous occasions there is no serious evidence to show. I have in my possession an unpublished letter of the late Dr. Clarence Walworth Alvord, generally accounted the leading authority of his day on midwestern history, in which he declares emphatically that La Salle "never" was at Chicago prior to the arrival of the Joliet-Marquette expedition in 1673.

La Potherie's statement that La Salle had begun an establishment on the St. Joseph before Joliet's trip to the west in 1673 [La Potherie, however, does not say that he got this information from Joliet—Voyage de l'Amerique, Amsterdam, 1723, II., 131] must be dismissed in the failure of La Salle's own reports to corroborate it in any way.

2. "Nicolet . . . descended the Mississippi 'to within three days' journey of its mouth' and returned to Green Bay probably by way of the Illinois and the Chicago." The consensus of scholarly authority is against the claim that Nicolet ever saw the Mississippi. Among others, Dr. Louise Phelps Kellogg and the Baron Marc de Villiers of Paris, both in the front rank today as acknowledged experts in Mississippi valley history, discount Nicolet's alleged discovery. Certainly there is no warrant whatever in the only available evidence bearing on the question [a single sentence in the Jesuit Relations, XVIII, 237, Thwaites edition] for stating Nicolet's alleged discovery as a certain fact, as is done by Mr. Bradshaw. Moreover, the sentence is not cited correctly. It reads in the original as translated: ". . . if he [Nicolet] had sailed three days further upon a great river which issues from this lake [Michigan] he would have found the sea." The accepted interpretation of these words in critical circles is that if the explorer had journeyed three days beyond the point reached by him on the Fox river in Wisconsin he would have arrived at the Mississippi. The words are enigmatical at the best and there is every reason to think that Nicolet was not correctly reported. Since there are no solid grounds for assuming Nicolet's descent of the Mississippi, neither can there be any for inferring as "probable" that he returned from the great river by way of Chicago.

3. "Radisson descended the Mississippi" and "on his return probably ascended the Illinois to Chicago."

Whether or not Radisson reached the Mississippi is a moot question among the historians. Drs. Alvord and Kellogg, Baron de Villiers [and quite recently the well informed Dr. Grace Lee Nute, Minnesota History, December, 1932] do not concede that he did. The passage in his journal which seems to refer to the Mississippi is so vague that no safe conclusion can be based upon it. Certainly Mr. Bradshaw goes completely beyond the evidence when he asserts as an unqualified fact that "Radisson descended the Mississippi." Moreover, his interpretation of "Forked river" as referring to the Mississippi delta is a novelty. Those who see in this expression of Radisson's a reference to the Mississippi generally understand it of the two branches or forks, the upper Mississippi and the Missouri. At any rate, the inference that Radisson "probably" visited Chicago is altogether without warrant. "Probability" always implies the presence of some serious grounds of evidence, of which there are none in the present case. As to all alleged discoveries of the upper Mississippi before Joliet, Baron de Villier, whose scholarly studies are based on first hand documentary research in the Paris archives, has this to say in his La Découverte du Missouri, 1925, p. 18: "No European before Marquette and Joliet navigated the Mississippi from the Wisconsin to the Ohio."

4. "The first authentic account of a white man's visit to Chicago is the account of Perrot's visit in 1671."

The account in question is anything but authentic in the sense of being historically correct. J. G. Shea in his critical edition of Charlevoix rejected it; so did Parkman in his "La Salle and the Discovery of the Great West." Mr. Bradshaw tells us that the footnote in the latter work denying Perrot's alleged visit to Chicago in 1671 was placed there by a "careless hand." The "careless hand" was Parkman's own. The footnotes in the volume named must be Parkman's own, there being nothing to indicate that they are anybody else's.

The evidence telling against the accuracy of the Charlevoix account in question can be summarized under these heads. [1] The account is based on Perrot's own memoir, now published [English translation in Blair, "Indian Tribes of the Upper Mississippi and Region of the Great Lakes," Cleveland, 1911], which hasn't a word to say about Chicago as the place of his interview with the Miami in 1671. [2] La Potherie's account of the same interview [also derived from Perrot] fails to mention Chicago. [3] In 1671 the Miami [this is the chief detail discrediting Charlevoix's mention of Chicago] were settled, not at Chicago but in the Fox valley not so far from Green Bay. Perrot's own memoir calls Green bay the "Bay of the Foxes and the Miami" and intimates that he met the Miami at Green Bay or not far from it. [4] A visit of Perrot to Chicago in the spring of 1671 cannot be reconciled with his movements at this period as indicated in his memoir.

Chicago history does begin with an authenticated fact; and that fact is the arrival of the first known by name visitors to its site, in September, 1673. No evidence has ever been adduced to contravene effectively the statement recorded in bronze on the Michigan boulevard link bridge that Louis Joliet and Père Marquette were "the first [known] white men to pass through the Chicago river."

SAYS MITCHELL HID $666,666 BONUS AS DEBT

U. S. Also Accuses Aids of Ex-Banker.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 14.—[Special.]—Hugh B. Baker, until last March president of the National City company, was accused today by United States Attorney George Z. Medalie of altering his testimony to favor Charles E. Mitchell, who was chairman of the company when Mr. Baker was president.

The prosecutor said of Baker: "This witness is trying to make his testimony conform to the long statements made by the defendant [Charles E. Mitchell] when he was on the stand. He [Baker] is testifying in an entirely different way than he did when he was questioned by my assistants."

Baker was a witness for Mitchell on trial before United States Judge Goddard on charges of income tax evasion.

Medalie had in his hand a transcript of questions and answers taken when Mr. Baker was questioned some weeks ago by two assistant United States attorneys.

Clash Over Testimony.

The statement by the prosecutor was made after Max D. Steuer, defending Mitchell, had made a bitter objection to half an hour of close cross-questioning of Baker on the alleged differences between the transcript of his earlier questioning and the testimony he was giving at the trial.

The gist of the witness' story today was that he had not discussed fully with Mitchell the manner in which the officers of the National City company had a payment of $1,860,000 from the management fund in July, 1929, changed to an account receivable on the books, after the market collapse at the end of the year, so that they would not have to pay taxes on it.

The questions and answers that Medalie read from the transcript indicated that Baker said earlier he had discussed it with Mitchell. Finally Baker was asked again and replied:

"I've already told you, Mr. Medalie, that I did understand it in substance from Mr. Mitchell."

The government contends that it never was intended that the payments from the fund be a debt of the officers to the company, but was a payment and should have been accounted for in tax returns. The money never has been repaid, the entire sum having been later written down to $1. Mr. Mitchell's share was $666,666.67 and Mr. Baker's $220,000.

Joseph P. Rend Testifies.

Another witness was Joseph P. Rend, a business man from Chicago. He described how he had urged his only sister, Mrs. Charles E. Mitchell, to purchase National City bank stock as a sound investment in November and December of 1929, and had offered to finance her. At the time he held 17,000 shares himself and he subsequently added another 5,000 to his holdings.

The government contends that at the time Mitchell claims to have sold 18,300 shares of National City bank stock to his wife—Dec. 20, 1929—her income was not sufficient to cover the interest payments on the stock, then held by J. P. Morgan & Co. as part of the collateral put up by Mitchell for a $10,000,000 loan, later reduced to $6,000,000.

The contention of the defense has been that Mrs. Mitchell had received assurances of backing from her brother and finally decided to make the purchase.

Rend had recovered sufficiently from a heart attack to appear today to resume his testimony of Monday. He told of meetings with his sister here and in Chicago at which he advised her to buy National City bank stock, and at which he promised to finance her. At the time he had $1,200,000 credit at two Chicago banks, he said. He added both he and Mrs. Mitchell took a loss on the bank stock investment.

Jackson Reynolds, president of the First National bank and organizer of the Bank of International Settlements at Basle, Switzerland, appeared and said Mitchell's reputation was good. The trial is now in its fifth week, but the defense may conclude its evidence tomorrow.

Research Work of Chemists Called Epic of Engineering

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

The silver anniversary of chemical engineering in America was observed yesterday at the opening of the semi-annual convention of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers, a national professional society, at the Medinah-Michigan avenue club.

These scientist-engineers occupy a unique position in American life, interpreting and making practical the work of the research men. It was one of their number, Dr. Richard B. Moore, who adapted helium gas for use in the navy, thus making possible, for instance, the flight of the Macon over Chicago Tuesday night. Through another, Dr. Herbert H. Dow, the German monopoly on bromine was broken and John E. Teeple created a great industry out of the potash bearing brines of Searles lake, Cal.

An Epic of Last 25 Years.

The story of this development is an epic of the last twenty-five years, and takes its direct impetus from the world war, turning the concentrated effort and knowledge that produced nitrates, potash, T. N. T., mustard gas, gun powder, etc., into the production of fertilizer ingredients from the air; gasoline and oil from coal; artificial silk, leather and rubber; cellophane and helium; synthetic resins, bakelites and lacquers.

Dr. Willard E. Hotchkiss, president of Armour Institute of Technology, who welcomed the 300 delegates to Chicago, told them that it was necessary for scientists and engineers to become still more oriented to a new world. He said they must understand social and economic fields and answer the question—will this thing make the grade financially?

"We have been going along a pretty definite road, a definite evolution, over a long period," he said. "It is clear that we have to live in a world in which the psychology of the World's Columbian exposition does not fit in. From the standpoint of industry, science and education, we need a large admixture of open mindedness and willingness to learn. We cannot regard things from the old set up. General education must mix with special and we have got to what President Roosevelt is doing, try experiments. It is a tremendously stimulating and challenging time."

Report on 2 Developments.

Two technical papers read at the sessions yesterday disclosed that the position of sulphuric acid as the cheapest and most important acid in the chemical industry is now threatened by phosphoric acid, made by an entirely new process, and that the danger of boiler explosions, caused by steel fracture, has been practically eliminated.

Henry W. Easterwood of the Victor Chemical works, Chicago, described the development of phosphoric acid, made of extremely high purity and at a low cost from phosphate rock, coke and sand, by a process recently perfected. While this process was based upon a scientific fact known for two hundred years, it required the expenditure of approximately $2,000,000 and seven years chemical engineering experiment to put it into operation on the present huge commercial scale, Mr. Easterwood said.

Phosphoric acid is one of the world's most important acids—used in the preparation of baking powders, self-rising flours, water softeners, fertilizers, rustproofing compounds, soft drinks, etc. It is now being produced to the extent of 170 tons a day in a plant at Nashville, Tenn. The plant closely resembles an iron blast furnace and uses as its raw materials phosphate rock, sand, coke, and water. By this method, he said, a concentrated fertilizer can be manufactured which will save much money to the farmers. A synthetic rock suitable for building roads is obtained as a by-product.

Tells of Boiler Safety.

Prof. Donald B. Keyes, head of the chemical engineering division at the University of Illinois, told of the experiments with boiler explosions caused by the embrittlement of steel and how this has been solved. The cause of boiler failures, he said, was found to be the accumulation in the boiler water of alkalies either concentrated from the raw water or introduced in water softening compounds. This alkaline accumulation apparently attacks the steel in such a way as to open cracks when the steel is under tension.

Danger from this source can be entirely avoided by introducing certain chemical compounds, such as sodium sulphate, into the water, as these assist in forming protective films over the steel. Another problem successfully attacked was the removal of sulphur gases from factory chimneys to prevent pollution of the atmosphere.

GUNMEN ATTACK WORKER.

Three gunmen entered the plant of the South Chicago Bottling company at 2944 East 96th street yesterday and assaulted James Bissias, 8022 Dobson avenue, an employé, when he was unable to tell them where they would find money. The trio fled without loot.

SUPREME COURT DENIES FREEDOM TO BOY DEBTOR

William Weber, 15 year old schoolboy who is imprisoned in the county jail for his failure to pay a $2,500 judgment obtained against him by a woman who was injured by his automobile, lost his fight for freedom in the state Supreme court yesterday. The Supreme court denied a petition for a writ of habeas corpus for his release presented by his attorneys. The boy has been in jail a month and will be kept there five more months for failure to pay the judgment, which contained a malice count.

His attorneys argued in the Supreme court that his imprisonment for debt was unconstitutional. The judgment was obtained by Mrs. Lucille Saliba, 1433 South Scoville avenue, Berwyn. Weber lives at 1521 North Mason avenue and was a student at Fenwick High school.

PAIR HOLD UP GROCER.

Frank Jandra, 42 years old, was held up yesterday in his grocery at 4247 North Austin avenue by two robbers who took $108 from the cash drawer and fled.

SEEK TO DELAY CAB RATE LAW TILL FAIR ENDS

Opposition to Five Year Franchise Voiced.

Further opposition to the new taxicab ordinance, which is to be given final consideration by a city council committee tomorrow, was reported to have developed in aldermanic ranks yesterday. The ordinance, drafted by Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph F. Grossman, contains a provision which is said to amount to the granting of a five year monopoly franchise for the companies now operating cabs.

It was suggested yesterday that further action on the ordinace be deferred and that taxicab permits be granted only for the duration of the World's Fair.

Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], chief opponent of the monopoly and advocate of a reduction from the present taxicab rate, said he would oppose the five year grant. Three independent companies have offered to operate cabs on a rate of 15 cents for the first third mile and 5 cents for each additional third, and to charge only 25 cents a trip within a proposed downtown zone. Ald. Rowan said yesterday that he would ask that they be permitted to operate at these rates. The present rate is 20 cents for the first quarter mile and 10 cents for each half mile thereafter.

Opposes Five Year Franchise.

"I think it would be improper at this time to give any company a five year franchise based on present conditions," Ald. Rowan said. The World's Fair is undoubtedly giving the cab companies increased business and it will continue to increase and therefore additional cabs may be needed.

"If the independent companies can operate and make money at the lower rate, the Yellow and Checker companies can do the same. If the independent can make money on a 25 cent zone rate so can the monopoly cabs."

Mayor Kelly, who has said he favors a reduction in cab rates and who will have the opportunity to veto the proposed ordinance unless it meets his approval, has received a communication urging the elimination of the initial charge of 20 cents now in effect on Yellow and Checker cabs for the first quarter mile.

The mayor was advised that there is no good reason for this practice, now authorized by the city ordinance, under which a ride of less than a quarter mile costs 20 cents, a ride of a half mile costs 30 cents. This charge

Rowan Favors Delay.

The fact that the Yellow and Checker cab companies are to a certain extent affiliated and control all except a few hundred of the cabs now licensed to operate in Chicago was cited by Ald. Rowan as a reason for opposition to a continuation of the monopoly feature as provided in the proposed ordinance.

"Competition during the World's Fair will be a good thing," he said, "and we can prepare an ordinance to be effective Jan. 1, 1934, based on conditions as we find them at that time."

HOLLAND AND PAL FAIL TO APPEAR ON AUTO CHARGE

AUTO THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 104; recovered, 71; stripped, 7 [from Chicago police records for twenty-four hours ending at midnight Tuesday].

John Holland and Cecil Neal, who fled while awaiting trial in connection with a $2,500 tobacco robbery, failed to appear yesterday in the felony court to answer additional charges of driving an automobile without the owner's consent. Judge Matthew D. Hartigan forfeited bonds of $2,000 each and issued warrants for the arrest of the men.

Holland was allowed to slip out of the county jail on May 25 through the juggling of a remand slip, which serves as a receipt for the prisoner and which, in Holland's case, was 24 hours late in reaching the jail. Neal disappeared from the court of Judge Harry A. Lewis on Tuesday while waiting for his case to be called.

Chief Bailiff James Z. Gabriel, who, with Sheriff William D. Meyering, holds that the escape of Holland was "just a mistake," waited expectantly until the case was called yesterday. He had expressed the belief that Holland and Neal might appear in court.

The automobile charges were placed against Holland and Neal after they tried to steal the automobile of Lieut. Thomas Mangan of the state's attorney's office.

Question:

Why did 1 out of every 3 Cabin Class passengers on all steamship lines (during the first quarter of 1933) choose the French Line to Europe?

Answer:

THE
S. S. CHAMPLAIN
and the popular Cabin Liners M. S. Lafayette, S. S. De Grasse and S. S. Rochambeau

THE French Line Cabin Fleet is famous among Atlantic travelers. On these ships, the comfort and atmosphere of France-Afloat can be enjoyed most economically. The stewards are perfectly trained, and speak English. The cooking is marvelous, as you would expect it on the French Line. The cabins and salons are roomy and beautifully decorated.

Queen of this fleet is the luxurious Champlain (this year is her first full season). She recently made an Atlantic crossing in less than 6½ days. She is the largest (28,000 tons) cabin liner on the North Atlantic. . . . There is a reason for the popular patronage of the French Line Cabin Fleet. It's the same reason why you should ask a travel agent to make French Line cabin reservations for you this summer. . . . Descriptive literature will be mailed on request.

"Not so long ago you printed a testimonial from a woman who had sold a stove through a Tribune Want Ad. That gave me the idea that I could sell my combination coal and gas range. My family poked fun at the idea, but I ordered a Tribune Want Ad anyhow. Twenty-four people answered the ad, and I sold the stove for $50.00 cash!"

TRIBUNE WANT AD DISCOVERS $1,200.00 MARKET FOR USED KITCHEN RANGES!

THE demand for combination ranges may be limited in a city so widely served by gas, yet one Tribune Want Ad found twenty-four persons who were good prospects for a used range of this kind at $50.00 each—a $1,200.00 market!

Here's the market where you can get cash for articles of any kind you no longer need. This experience is a practical demonstration of reader interest in Tribune Want Ads, even for articles having a limited demand. It also emphasizes the cash value of the Tribune Want Ad market.

TUBERCULOSIS DEATHS FEWER, DOCTORS REPORT

Find Fatalities from Pneumonia Gain.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., June 14.—[Special.]—More than 4,000 doctors were in Milwaukee today for the scientific discussions at the American Medical association's convention. A variety of papers—on every subject under the medical sun—were read by authorities in every branch of the profession.

Doctors, who came from all parts of the United States to attend the "post-graduate" courses in medicine and surgery, heard of the latest victories won in humanity's fight against its foe, disease. More than 100 papers were presented at the Auditorium. Motion pictures, charts, drawings, and models served to illustrate the lectures.

A summary of the mortality statistics compiled by members of the association shows that diseases which formerly have had young people for their chief victims are decreasing in America. Tuberculosis, which attacks infants and young people predominantly, is taking a lesser toll than in former years. Doctors are especially cheered by the decrease in tuberculosis deaths because the disease is advanced by malnutrition and exposure, both of which increase in years of depression.

Heart Disease Increases.

Deaths due to infectious and degenerative disease, however, are increasing, as are pneumonia deaths among the old. Pneumonia mortality in young persons is declining.

Other diseases, appearing more frequently among older persons, also are increasing. It has been noted that deaths due to heart disease, Bright's disease and liver ailments are becoming more common.

The most important of tomorrow's sessions will be the final meeting of the house of delegates. Election of officers for the years 1934-1935 will be held and the 1934 convention city will be selected. The delegates spent their time today at the discussions. Cleveland, O., is making a strong bid for next year.

Nominations from Floor.

Candidacy of four doctors for presidency of the association is indicated by the strong electioneering on their behalf. Dr. Rock Sleyster, Wauwatosa, a member of the board of trustees, is one of the prominent candidates, though a nominee from the convention city is rarely elected.

Others who probably will be nominated from the floor tomorrow morning include: Dr. Hugh S. Cummings, Washington, D. C., surgeon general of the United States public health service; Dr. Harvey Cushing, professor of surgery at Harvard university; and Dr. Walter Bierring, Des Moines, Ia.

All nominations are made from the floor of the house of delegates.

Gold Medal for New Yorker.

Sectional meetings will also be held tomorrow morning and afternoon. There will be three meetings of the women's auxiliary also tomorrow. At night there will be a dinner given by the women's auxiliary, and the reception and ball for Dr. Dean Lewis, Baltimore, Md., president of the American Medical association.

A gold medal for the best class I exhibit was awarded Dr. Moses Swick, New York, of Mount Sinai hospital, by the committee on exhibit awards. He was cited especially for his original investigation work in urology. In class II, Dr. Elliott P. Joslin, of the George F. Baker clinic, Boston, Mass., was presented the gold medal, with Dr. Herbert H. Marks of New York, for their exhibit illustrating the prevention of diabetes and its complications.

MACON RETURNS TO AKRON AFTER 49 HOUR JAUNT

Akron, O., June 14.—(AP)—Returning from her fourth and longest trial cruise, a jaunt over the midwest and lower lakes region, which lasted nearly 49 hours, the huge airship Macon was slipped into her dock at dusk tonight.

The cruise and the tests made during it were pronounced "successful" and "satisfactory" by her commander, Capt. Alger H. Dresel; by Commander S. M. Kraus of the navy board of inspection and survey, and by Dr. Karl Arnstein, chief engineer of the builders, the Goodyear-Zeppelin corporation.

Asked concerning a wireless message reported to have been received late yesterday by a ground station at Frankfort, Mich., to the effect that one of the ship's rudders was disabled, Capt. Dresel said "the report was in error."

School Barn Fire Causes $25,000 Loss; Save 9 Horses

Fire yesterday destroyed the horse barn at the Glenwood Manual Training school at Glenwood, two and a half miles north of Chicago Heights. The damage was estimated at $25,000. Sixty tons of hay, 3,000 bushels of oats and a like amount of corn were destroyed by the flames. Nine horses were led to safety. The fire was the second at the school in four months. In February fire destroyed the building housing the third to eighth grade class rooms causing damage of $100,000.

Finnegan seeking temporary alimony pending hearing of her divorce bill against her husband, Lester, 935 Crescent place. She charges cruelty. The judge allowed her $7 a week.

LYING A SORT OF DEFENSIVE REFLEX: DOCTOR

Dental Meeting Hears Pittsburgh Man.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 14.—(AP)—Pathological aspects of lying were presented to the American Medical association today by Dr. Theodore Diller of Pittsburgh.

After extended observations of many accomplished fibbers, Dr. Diller cautioned physicians not to regard lying merely through the glasses of a narrow moralist. The liar conceivably may be a benevolent Christian or he may be resorting to a "defensive reflex action" to protect himself, with no notion that he is trifling with the truth, Dr. Diller said.

Must See Through Lie.

"Denial of charges of an unpleasant nature is based on a sort of mental reflex," he continued. "We instinctively throw aside or suppress anything that irritates or annoys us. This is brought out forcibly on the witness stand, where nearly any one will—or conceal and exaggerate, which are the same thing—when the answer to a question would be damaging. Lawyers tell me that all women and some men will lie; to tell the truth is dangerous. Yet the most outrageous misstaters of the truth may not be conscious of lying; in fact, a pathologic liar is not a liar at all."

In medical practice a physician often needs the perspicacity to see through a lie, Dr. Diller added. Frequently the patient, relating a case history, is unable to tell all the truth because of the unconscious suppression of the unpleasant, he warned.

Proper Refuge in Lie.

But occasionally the physician himself is called upon, by the very ethics of his profession, to take a proper refuge in a lie, Dr. Diller said.

He recalled an instance of a damage suit brought against two physicians because it was alleged that a sane woman had been placed in an asylum for insane. It was testified that the physicians had told a curious neighbor that the woman was not insane but merely in a state of nervous upset.

The court dismissed the action without judgment, Dr. Diller reported, by holding that "it was the duty of these physicians, being asked by an outsider or a bystander as to the condition of their patient, to decline to answer, or to give an evasive or misleading answer."

'TORY' DEPUTIES QUIT IN SPAIN; RADICALS STICK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, June 14.—Miguel Maura and his 13 Conservative Republicans marched out of parliament tonight, as they had said they would, to protest against the reappearance of Premier Azana's "dictatorship," but nobody followed their lead.

Their late allies, 90 odd Radicals of Alejandro Lerroux, began what seemed very much like a flirtation with the government they have fought so bitterly. Lerroux himself said the party not only would not leave parliament but would compromise on a "normal" opposition. "Obstruction cannot go on forever," said the old man plaintively.

The about face of the Radicals created a sensation. The only explanation for it and Premier Azana's cordial reception is fear in the minds of all Republicans that their quarrel has served to weaken the régime, strengthen the hands of the opposition and even prepare the grounds for a coup d'état by right wing elements in conjunction with the military.

MUNCIE PASTOR TO FACE CHARGE UNDER DRY LAW

Carrying Strong Beer for Friend, He Says.

Evansville, Ind., June 14.—[Special.]—The Rev. G. Lemuel Conway, Methodist Episcopal pastor of Muncie, Ind., suspended for attempting to rape an 18 year old parishioner last April, was arrested here on Sunday by prohibition agents, who charge him with transportation of illegal brew.

LEMUEL CONWAY.

The seizure of the Rev. Mr. Conway was disclosed yesterday when he was arraigned before United States Commissioner Robert C. Enlow and placed under $250 bond. With him was William Patterson, who was riding in the pastor's automobile when the arrest was made.

Seize Home Brew.

Prohibition agents said that they found a large box, heavily wrapped in paper, in the rear of the pastor's automobile when they stopped it on the outskirts of Evansville late Sunday afternoon. Opening the package, they discovered a dozen bottles of home brew. A test of the brew disclosed that its alcoholic content was more than 4 per cent by volume.

Before returning to Muncie yesterday the Rev. Mr. Conway said: "I am not worried about the outcome of this. Those fellows are just trying to hold their jobs. They wanted to make a showing. As a matter of fact, the search of my car was illegal. The officers searched it without a warrant."

Says It's Patterson's Beer.

The pastor said he had been driving to Evansville for the week-end when he was flagged on the highway near town by Patterson, who asked for a ride. Patterson, according to the minister, was carrying the package of home brew. The minister said he stopped his car and allowed Patterson to put the package on the rear seat. After driving half a mile, Patterson said he had reached his destination, according to the Rev. Mr. Conway. When he stopped the car, the pastor said, the prohibition agents appeared.

GETS 99 YEARS FOR THE MURDER OF POLICEMAN

Frank Bialek, 24 years old, was sentenced yesterday to 99 years in the penitentiary for the murder of Policeman Patrick Madden, 50 years old, 2903 Belmont avenue, on Nov. 20, 1932. The defendant pleaded guilty before Judge Michael Feinberg.

Testimony showed that Policemen Madden and Frank Luczak went to 1457 Walton street after two men reported that shots had been fired at them at that address. The policemen found a hilarious party in progress and arrested Bialek and two companions. As they waited for a patrol wagon, Bialek drew a revolver, killed Madden, and fired several shots at Luczak.

The masters of the package freighter Duluth and the motorship Steel Motor demonstrated yesterday that there is room for four lake steamers abreast in the Chicago river at the Michigan avenue bridge. The two vessels, approaching from opposite directions, passed between the steamship Theodore Roosevelt, moored on the south side of the river, and the steamer Isle Royale, docked at the north bank. The Duluth was headed toward the lake and Steel Motor was moving west. Spectators said that there was six feet clearance between each of the ships at the point of passage.

MISSING ACTRESS IN JAIL 48 HOURS ON THEFT CHARGE

Mary Dorne Victim of Memory Lapse.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 14.—(AP)—The story behind the disappearance of Mary Dorne, stage and screen actress, was revealed today by police who said she had been held in jail 48 hours on suspicion of grand theft, but was released when she recovered from a brief lapse of memory.

Miss Dorne, wife of Eugene Walter, playwright, disappeared from downtown Los Angeles Saturday afternoon. She failed to return home in the evening and Walter notified authorities. For the next 48 hours she was believed to be wandering without knowing her identity. She had been ill since she underwent a serious operation nearly a year ago.

Authorities said they learned that Miss Dorne possessed an uncontrollable desire to pick up anything green, a mental condition resulting from her serious illness. Saturday afternoon department store detectives trailed a woman who was openly picking up green articles of apparel, police said.

They trailed her into a second store and, after watching her snatch up a green scarf and a green sweater, took her to jail. She was booked under the name of "Mrs. Mary Cooney," her fingerprints were taken, and she was placed in a cell on suspicion of grand theft.

Throughout Sunday she remained in jail, authorities said, but Sunday night she regained her mental faculties. She communicated with Walter, authorities said. The articles were restored to the stores and her release was ordered. Miss Dorne was taken to her home and placed under a physician's care.

ORDERS REGISTRY OF ALL ILLINOIS AIR PASSENGERS

Maj. Reed Landis, chairman of the Illinois aeronautics commission, issued an order yesterday requiring that the names of all passengers on sightseeing, barnstorming and chartered airplane flights in the state be registered before they take off.

This ruling, which goes into effect immediately, results from the difficulty experienced in trying to identify most of the nine victims of last Sunday's airplane tragedy, in which a Sikorsky amphibion sightseeing plane, operating from the World's Fair, crashed in Glenview.

Of the nine victims, all except two have been identified. Those two were men, one about 45 years old, the other about 20. For a while yesterday it was believed that the former victim was Walter Ernst of 103 West 162d street, New York City. However, a description of the body telephoned last night to Ernst's wife, Elizabeth, in New York, satisfied her that it was not that of her husband.

ROB GAS STATION OWNER.

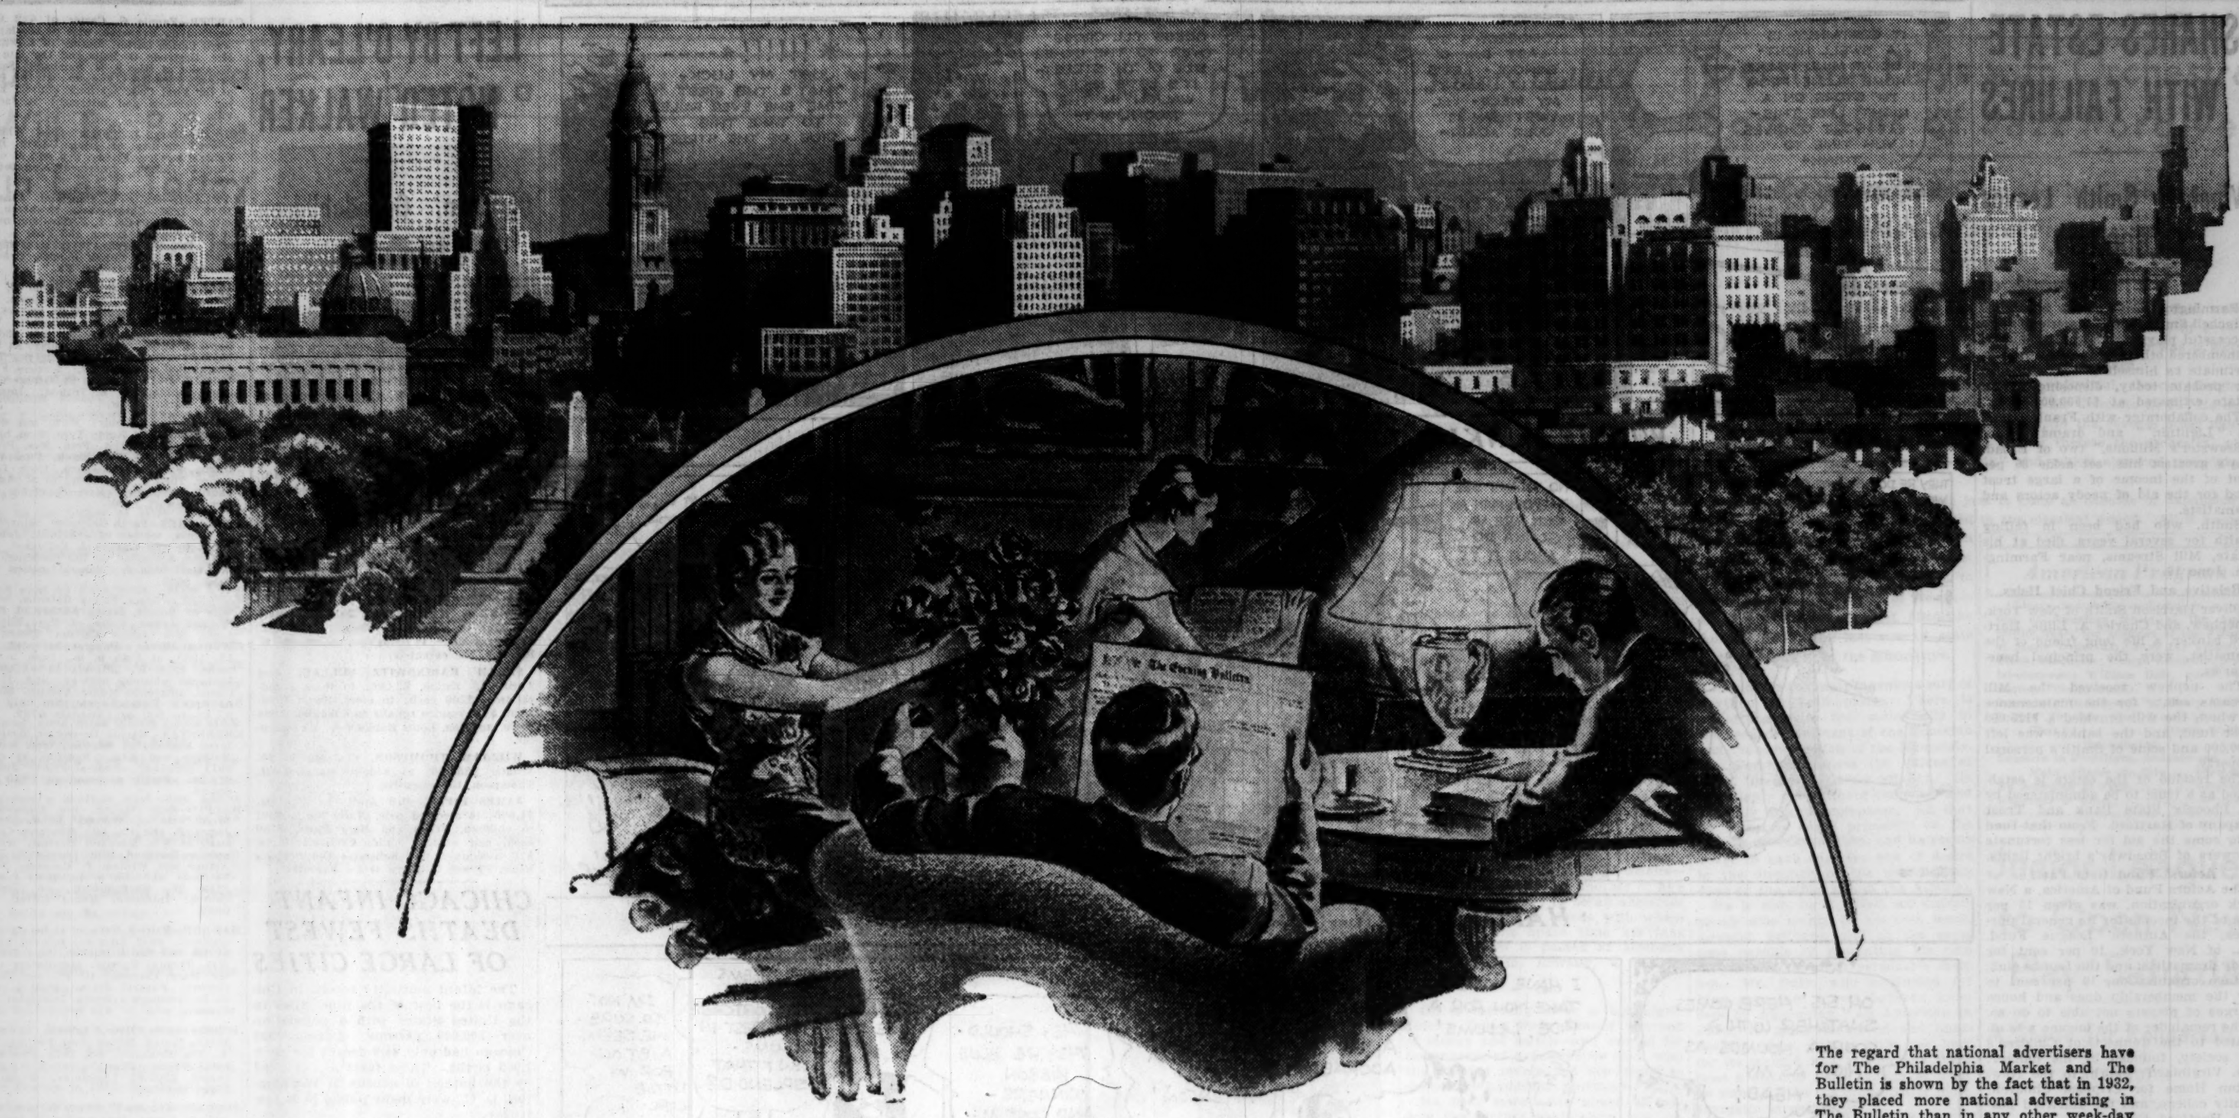
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER



The regard that national advertisers have for The Philadelphia Market and The Bulletin is shown by the fact that in 1932, they placed more national advertising in The Bulletin than in any other week-day newspaper in America. The Bulletin also carries twice as many individual retail store advertisements as any other Philadelphia evening newspaper, and more than any daily and Sunday newspaper combined.

A CITY is a Family Magnified

TOTAL figures are often bewildering. They distort perspective by their very immensity.

A city like Philadelphia, with two million people, is an impressive place: There are towering skyscrapers, thousands of factories, great stores, a hundred diversions, a thousand interests.

It would seem a difficult task to strike a common chord with all of these varied interests . . . to find a harmonious point of view among lawyer, doctor, merchant, mechanic, housewife . . .

Yet there is a common bond—a place where the thousand and one interests of the day merge into one, and that is—the home.

Reach the family, and you reach a city, for a great city is just a family magnified!

It is logical, perhaps, that here in America's greatest home center a great home newspaper should have grown. The circulation of The Philadelphia Bulletin is more than half a million daily. (Two and one half times the circulation of any other Philadelphia evening newspaper, more than any Sunday newspaper, more than all morning newspapers combined.)

It is the family newspaper of nearly every Philadelphia home. Its growth and continuing strength come partly from the unusual interest it holds for every member of the family: The growing boy or girl, just getting a grasp upon things; the mother with her daily home-making problems; the father watching the trend of current events; the banker who wants accurate financial news; the business woman who must keep abreast of the times;

—the housewife seeking a new recipe; the lawyer who wants informed editorial opinion; the manufacturer with an eye on commodity prices. The doctor, the teacher, the student, the policeman on the corner, the club woman, the sales people in every store.

In hundreds of intimate ways, The Bulletin touches the daily lives of more than half a million families. It informs and instructs, entertains and advises; helps them decide where to go and what to do; what to buy and where to buy it.

It has been a member of their family group for more than a generation . . . A member of their own choosing, for premiums or contests have never been used to influence Bulletin circulation.

Its advertising pages "sit in" at those important family councils where purchases are decided by common consent, where children's wants, mother's needs, and father's desires are weighed and a happy balance struck.

The Philadelphia Bulletin simplifies the problem of reaching a great city market, because of its acceptance in nearly every home, by every member of the family. And it provides a further economy for the advertiser by keeping its cost one of the lowest among all newspapers in America.

STAGE SUCCESS SHARES ESTATE WITH FAILURES

Winchell Smith Leaves $1,500,000.

Farmington, Conn., June 14.—(AP)—Winchell Smith, one of America's more successful playwrights and producers, remembered others of the stage not so fortunate as himself in his will, filed for probate today, disposing of an estate estimated at $1,500,000.

The collaborator with Frank Bacon on "Lightnin'" and dramatizer of "Brewster's Millions," two of Broadway's greatest hits, set aside 35 per cent of the income of a large trust fund for the aid of needy actors and dramatists.

Smith, who had been in failing health for several years, died at his estate, Mill Streams, near Farmington, June 10.

Relative and Friend Chief Heirs.

Oliver Harrison Smith of New York, a nephew, and Charles A. Lillie, Hartford banker, a life long friend of the dramatist, were the principal beneficiaries.

The nephew received the Mill Streams estate for the maintenance of which the will provided a $125,000 trust fund, and the banker was left $100,000 and some of Smith's personal property.

The residue of the estate is established as a trust to be administered by the Phoenix State Bank and Trust company of Hartford. From that fund is to come the aid for less fortunate followers of Broadway's bright lights.

Actors' Fund Gets Part.

The Actors Fund of America, a New York organization, was given 15 per cent of the income for its general purposes; the Authors' League Fund, Inc., of New York, 10 per cent for needy dramatists; and the Lambs club, a stage organization, 10 per cent to pay the membership dues and house charges of players not able to do so.

The remainder of the income was allocated to the Connecticut Children's Aid society, founded by his mother, Mrs. Virginia T. Smith; to the Newington Home for Crippled Children, Trinity college, and the Hartford hospital, Hartford, Conn.

Menz was driving. The truck was driven by Edward Eggleston, a farmer of Porter county, Ind.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PRAGUE, June 14.—While conducting the first act of Beethoven's opera "Fidelio" here Egon Pollak, 54 years old, former music director of Hamburg, fainted and died an hour later of paralysis of the heart.

Egon Pollak, an outstanding figure in Germany's music life, was born in Prague. His occasional appearances at the conductor's desk disclosed unusual ability, and in 1905 he was called to the Bremen Opera house as first kapellmeister.

Later he held the same post successively at Leipzig and Frankfort. In the spring of 1914 he conducted the Wagnerian répertoire at Covent Garden, London, and later at the Theatre des Champs Elysées in Paris. From 1915 until 1917 he conducted the Wagner performances of the Chicago Civic Opera company and he returned to Chicago in the fall of 1930 for the first season of the city's new Civic Opera house.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, June 14.—Porto Rico will be the forty-ninth state in the Union, in the belief of Rafael Martinez Nadal, president of the senate and leader of the coalition party, and Senator Alfonso Valdez.

The two men joined in a statement on their return from Washington, where they conferred with President Roosevelt, Secretary of War Dern, Senator Wagner, and other administration leaders.

The Roosevelt administration, they say, is disposed to take statehood action during the present term, as well as to extend economic reconstruction measures to the island.

Miss Mildred Johnson, 2425 Aubert avenue, who caused the arrest of Henry J. Austin as a bigamist on Tuesday, states it was incorrectly reported yesterday, that she went through a marriage ceremony with Austin after only a brief courtship. She knew Austin more than a month before the ceremony, she said.

A story in THE TRIBUNE on Monday, which reported the death of Miss Elinor Laatz of Willow Springs, stated incorrectly that she was colored. The error was made by the City News bureau. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of death caused by heat prostration.

Ruth Copeland Will Be Bride in East Today

Her Father to Wed Her Aunt Saturday.

BY JUDITH CASS.

INTERESTING news of a romantic nature fills the first part of our column today. From Princeton, N. J., comes news of the marriage today of Miss Ruth Lyman Copeland to Dr. Lawrence Whitcomb, and of the marriage next Saturday of Miss Ruth Lyman Greeley, an aunt of today's bride, to the father of Miss Copeland, Lowell Copeland.

The Copelands lived in Winnetka until several years ago and then they moved east to Princeton. Miss Copeland's engagement to Dr. Whitcomb, son of Mrs. Lawrence Whitcomb of Brookline, Mass., was announced in the early autumn of 1931; in fact, it was announced on Sept. 5, the day that her brother, Lowell Townsend Copeland, took Miss Helen Lysle Hunter of Pittsburgh as his bride.

The marriage was very quiet because of the serious illness of the bridegroom's mother and just about a month later she died. She was the former Ethel Greeley, a daughter of the late Samuel Sewall Greeley, well known Chicago pioneer, and it is her sister who is to become Mr. Copeland's bride on Saturday.

Miss Greeley has lived in Boston for some time, but she still has two brothers here, Louis May and Morris Larned Greeley.

Both marriages are to take place in Princeton. Today's bride was graduated from the Abbott academy in 1926 and from the Academy of Speech Arts in Boston in 1928. Dr. Whitcomb, who was graduated from Brown university in 1922, received the doctorate degree at Princeton in 1930 and is now instructor of geology at Lehigh university. He and his bride will be at home after Sept. 1 in Bethlehem, Pa.

Mrs. Morris L. Greeley and her daughter, Miss Louisa Greeley, are leaving their home in Winnetka today for the east, not for the wedding on Saturday, however, but to sail on the 24th to spend the summer in England with Mrs. Greeley's son, Joseph M. Greeley, and his wife in Northwood, Middlesex.

Alfred O'Gara Weds Mrs. Felts.

The third bit of romantic news that we are publishing this morning is the announcement of the marriage of Mrs. Elizabeth Carpenter Felts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Milton Carpenter of Los Angeles, to Alfred O'Gara, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. O'Gara of Lake Shore drive.

The announcements were just sent out from Detroit, where the bride's sister, Mrs. Harley Earl, lives, although the marriage took place on May 10 in Miami Beach, Fla. Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter and Mrs. Felts were spending the winter there, as were the O'Garas, and it was one of those quick romances with "love at first sight." The wedding was very quiet, at the residence of the bride's parents, with only Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Earl, and Mr. O'Gara's sister, Mrs. Frederick K. Weyerhaeuser of St. Paul, and Mr. Weyerhaeuser, and the Henry Youngs, former Chicagoans, present.

Mr. O'Gara took his bride to Havana on their wedding trip and they have just returned from there. Yesterday they saw the Carpenters off for California—they stopped here for a short visit on their way west—and today the "Alf" O'Garas are leaving for the second part of their honeymoon, which is to last quite a while, for they do not plan to be at home at 1540 Lake Shore drive until Sept. 15.

Mr. O'Gara is a Yale man, and since he was graduated from there a little over fifteen years ago his friends had begun to think of him as a confirmed bachelor, so they are greatly surprised at the news that he has taken a bride. He and his attractive wife have no plans for the trip they are starting off on today, although they think New York will be their first destination. Mrs. Weyerhaeuser is the former Vivian O'Gara, immensely popular here and active in the Junior league until her marriage in 1923 took her to the Minnesota city to live.

Tell Engagement of Kathryn Evans.

Within the next fortnight Miss Kathryn Louise Evans, daughter of Mrs. Albert Thomas Evans of 179 Lake Shore drive, will become Mrs. Paul Alfred Welbourne III. Yesterday Mrs. Evans announced the engagement of her debutante daughter to the attractive young Bostonian who has been spending the last year on the west coast. At the same time she indicated that the wedding will take place almost immediately.

It was just about three months ago that Miss Evans met Mr. Welbourne, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Alfred Welbourne II. of Boston, at the Hunt-

Dances Will Tell 80 Years of Church Life

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Eighty years of the history of the New England Congregational church, Dearborn parkway and Delaware place, will be interpreted tonight by rhythmic dances combined with drama performed on the historic pulpit rostrum of that famous old church. In making this announcement last night, the Rev. Theodore C. Hume, the pastor, explained that the presentation of such a form of historical reminiscence is new to churches.

The Rev. Mr. Hume added that the addition of the dance to the service of worship of a church is not altogether new in modern religious expression. Dances of the sort have been used in the worship of St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwrie, New York, under the sponsorship of Dr. W. N. Guthrie.

"Probably some of the old members of New England church will be shocked at the sight of dancing in the church," said the Rev. Mr. Hume last night.

The rhythmic dance, he explained, will interpret three dramatic incidents. Under the title "Captives Unbound," written and presented by a group under the direction of Jay Fisher, the dance drama will first depict the foundation of the church in 1853 during the slavery crisis.

The first dance episode reveals the attempt of a runaway slave to enter the church. Following this episode, the Rev. Mr. Hume said that the next depicts the burning of the church in the great fire of 1871 and its speedy rebuilding. The final episode shows the "present day enslavement to materialism" and portrays the struggle and the spirit of the church today.

Combined choirs from the Fourth Presbyterian church and St. James' Episcopal church will augment the New England choir for the occasion. These choirs will sing some of their anthems as a part of the dance-drama. The organ prelude was prepared for the occasion by Leo Sowerby of the St. James' choir, and the postlude by Eric DeLamarter, of the Fourth Presbyterian church.

Festivities planned for the 80th anniversary of the New England church include a reunion dinner tomorrow night. On Sunday morning a special anniversary service will be held at which Dr. Graham Taylor of the Chicago Commons, Dr. Ernest Graham Guthrie, director of the Congregational union, and the pastor will speak.

Miss Catharine Carton Becomes Bride in Wedding Gown Her Mother Wore

As the western sun streamed through the stained glass windows of the Lake Forest Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon, Miss Catharine Carton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Carton, exchanged her wedding vows with Paul Plummer Swett Jr. of Hartford, Conn.

Dr. George Roberts, pastor, read the service at 5 o'clock before an altar banked with white peonies and lighted only by the soft glow of tall white tapers. A retinue of ushers and bridesmaids formed a semicircle on either side of the bride and bridegroom.

There was much of sentimental interest in the wedding. The bride moved down the aisle on the arm of her father in the same shimmering ivory gown in which her mother as Mildred Wells was married 23 years before. Her little rosepoint lace cap from which swept a long tulle veil had already served two.

Miss Eugenie Whyte Carton of Baltimore, as maid of honor for her cousin, wore a bouffant dress of blue net like those of the four bridesmaids. It was tied at the waist with a wide blue sash and with it she wore a picture hat of blue transparent straw. She carried an armload of white stock, roses and snapdragons.

The hats of the four bridesmaids . . . Miss Jane Crary and Miss Jeanne Stanley of Hartford, Conn., and Miss Elizabeth Byron Smith and Miss Margaret McLennan of Lake Forest . . . were white with blue bands and bows. Their bouquets were blue delphinium and white snapdragons.

Dr. Paul Plummer Swett served his son as best man. Ushering were the bride's brother, Laurence Carton; Josiah Swett, a brother of the bridegroom; Noyes Crary of Hartford; John Gradin Jr. of Boston; Eustace Dearborn of Sandwich, Mass.; John D. Appel III. of Scarsdale, N. Y.; Alfred Bell Jr. of San Francisco, Dudley Brown of Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., and Herbert Holbrook of Milwaukee.

Good wishes and congratulations mixed with a cup of tea and "petits gateau" after the ceremony in the gardens of the Carton home, where the bride and bridegroom received their friends. Mrs. Carton was wearing a gown of beige crêpe with matching orchids.

Late last night Mr. Swett and his bride left on a wedding journey to Canada after which they are to reside in Hartford.

For her wedding last evening to Frederic Low Chase Jr. of Providence, Miss Gertrude Owen, daughter of Mrs. Thomas H. Owen of Evanston, wore a simply fashioned gown of white lace over white satin. The service was read at 8:30 o'clock in the chapel of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Evanston by Dr. Paul Wolfe of the First Presbyterian church of Evanston.

The bride carried a colonial bouquet of white gardenias and larkspur very much like that of her only attendant, Mrs. James W. Reichert of Cleveland. Mrs. Reichert's gown was white organza.

Doris Kenyon Sills Bride of Hopkins, N. Y. Broker

Hollywood, Cal., June 14.—[Special.]—Doris Kenyon Sills, motion picture actress and concert singer, became the bride of Arthur Hopkins, wealthy upstate New York broker, before a flowered altar in the garden of her Brentwood home today. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Ernest Holmes of the Los Angeles Institute of Religious Science, and Arthur Kastner, Philharmonic orchestra harpist, played the "Lohengrin" wedding march. Mrs. Sill is the widow of Milton Sills, former University of Chicago instructor who became a motion picture star.

Good Morning!

"Small are the seeds fate does unheeded sow
Of slight beginnings to important ends." Davenant.

Those who neglect to probe beneath surfaces will probably say that Jimmy Dolan had it coming to him. Those who peer for Cause behind Effect, will follow with sympathy and regret the career of the misguided young prize fighter whose colossal conceit results in such heartbreaking consequences.

When you meet Jimmy Dolan he's on top of the wave. A champion. A favorite. He has a "line" which has endeared him no end to women radio listeners. Jimmy is forever talking TO and OF his dear old mother. It sounds beautiful—but, so far as Jimmy and his associates know, he never had a mother. A wristwatch "from Mother," a flock of drinks—though "because of mother" he's popularly supposed to be an abstainer—and the tippling blonde with whom he spends the spare time his fans raptly believe is passed at Mother's side, result in, literally, a terrible awakening.

On a morning after a big night, Jimmy Dolan finds himself stripped of money and watch—and wanted for the murder of a newspaper man, who the evening before had threatened to expose the handsome fourflusher . . .

He flees town. He lands, as per how the picture shall show you, on a ranch where crippled children are cared for by two charitable and idealistic women. Jimmy hadn't known there was such a thing as a good woman. He hadn't realized that anybody in the world ever did something for nothing. He lives and learns . . .

Meanwhile, in the city, a once great, but now discredited detective has struck the scent. A wristwatch, on the WRONG wrist of a dead man, has given him the clew. He reads newspapers interminably. Comes the day when he sees the picture of a chap in a fighting posture that was peculiarly Jimmy Dolan's own . . . [I know I'm not being very clear—but that's the idea. Want you to see the picture.]

Douglas Fairbanks Jr. does mighty nice work in the title rôle. Guy Kibbee is swell as the old detective. Loretta Young is charming as the heroine, and that grand Aline McMahon gives a whiz of a characterization as the brusk Scotch aunt of Loretta. The children in the piece are adorable.

For the first five reels "The Life of Jimmy Dolan" cracks like a whip. It slows up toward the end and maunders considerably. But all in all it's a good picture with a punch and a moral.

See you soon!

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., June 14.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt had her customary strenuous day today attending the ceremony this morning at the Catholic university when the degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon the President.

Mrs. Roosevelt went to Alexandria this afternoon to attend the tea which Mrs. Henry Wilder Keyes, wife of the senator from New Hampshire, gave to the members of the senate ladies' luncheon club.

Gershwin Plays with Orchestra; Some Sins of Jazz Forgiven

BY EDWARD MOORE.

SOME time ago some of the best minds in music decided that, among the other sins and shortcomings of jazz, it was incapable of development into an extended work; that the best it could do was a sixteen or thirty-two measure tune and then it was finished.

Whereupon, seeing that argument was unfruitful, George Gershwin wrote, first, his Rhapsody in Blue and, second, his Concerto in F. He came to the Auditorium last night and played them, in the reverse order named, with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, adding thereto the orchestral piece which he calls "An American in Paris," and which also had considerable bearing on the case.

It would seem from these that jazz is quite as capable of expansion as the most learned theme ever invented in the classical period. All it needs is a man with the ability of Mr. Gershwin to do it. The other point to be determined is whether it is agreeable to listen to in the mechanics of the process, and an audience that filled the Auditorium to the last row of seats testified heartily in the affirmative.

One hears the most ingenious sort of rhythms in both pieces. There is something quite fine melodically in the second movement of the Concerto and the slow section of the Rhapsody. Mr. Gershwin senses the values of form, likewise of lively vitality. He is a highly entertaining composer and a highly original composer. All that he writes is based primarily on the famous American idiom, and he seems never to have cast the eye of desire in the direction of the music being done on the other side of the Atlantic.

He is also, be it added, an uncommonly able pianist in his own work, forceful, brilliant, and at the same time capable of presenting his own melodies in the most persuasive fashion. Mr. Daly, who conducted for him, gave him a rest between numbers by conducting "An American in Paris," a gayly fashioned and light-hearted piece, just a trifle too long for its weight, and seldom has there been a director more certain of what he wanted from the orchestra or more energetic in getting it.

So the Gershwin section, his first Chicago appearance as a pianist, by the way, added to Mr. Stock's brilliant performance of Mr. Hadley's slightly perfunctory overture and Mr. Taylor's exquisite suite, both of them familiar numbers of the répertoire, made up a highly pleasant evening.

Negro music and musicians will be featured tonight. Roland Hayes, the tenor, will be the soloist. There will be a first performance of Mrs. Florence Price's Symphony, Margaret Bonds, pianist, will play John Alden Carpenter's Concertino, and there will be other music by John Powell, Coleridge-Taylor, and others.

Junior League to Open New Play Saturday

A Stage for Rehearsals Is Problem.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

If you happen to meet Virginia Hobart in queenly robes or Mrs. James M. Carry in the rags of Cinderella going through fairy tale scenes on a street corner, don't be surprised, for they are only two of two dozen Junior leaguers in search of a stage.

One of the important problems of the young women in the plays being produced or ready for production in the children's theater on the Enchanted island is a place to rehearse. Performances are so frequent in the island playhouse that the stage is not available for rehearsals.

"The other day the W. C. T. U. walked in on us," explained Mrs. Nathaniel A. Owings, chairman of publicity for the plays, yesterday. "We were rehearsing down at the Eleanor club when the temperate ladies came for a meeting. They were very gracious and generous, but it was necessary for us to go in search of another stage. Similar things have happened in the Stevens building auditorium and up at 191 East Walton. Now we're taking to stables and street corners."

At 12:30 on Saturday a new cast of Junior leaguers is opening in the Island theater in "Cinderella." It's a new version of the story written by Charlotte B. Chorpenning, who also did "The Capture of Eleanor Lytle," the Indian romance that is to be presented again at 12:30 today.

Mrs. Carry will be Cinderella, Mrs. Robert M. Curtis the stepmother, and Miss Alice Jaques and Miss Evelyn Bouscarem are the horrid, selfish stepsisters.

Mrs. Philip B. Maher designed the scenery and Mrs. Shreve C. Badger has done the costumes.

SWELL GARRICK

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

"Swell" Garrick—the World's Perfect Tailor's Dummy—is the label given him by those who didn't know that his well molded body had been created by athletic training, rather than tailoring skill. His friend, young Alistair, a subaltern in the guards, is taken over by card sharpers and gives a check he can't meet. Garrick promises to retrieve the check. Maitland, the gambler, is purported guardian of lovely Rhoda Fairclough, who is unknowingly being used as a decoy. Her presence makes Garrick's task to his liking. Rhoda expects a small inheritance from an uncle who died in Rome. Maitland plots to get her rightful fortune from her. Garrick exposes Maitland.

INSTALLMENT IV.

GASSED.

Their eyes met and Rhoda's held inquiry. Garrick nodded and at once she obeyed. He opened the door for her and closed it after she had gone.

Garrick had ignored Maitland—had not seen him slide over to the desk in the corner of the room. He had heard a slight tapping but did not know that it was Morse. In the house next door Maitland's message had been received by his master even before Garrick had turned back into the drawing room.

"O, by the way," drawled Garrick, "I think it would be better, Maitland, if you were to give me that check of Alistair's."

Maitland's face had lost its expression of a retired major-about-town.

"Take the door, Archie," he rapped out in a quick undertone. Lawson did so. Each of the three crooks now held a small revolver. Maitland advanced on Garrick.

"You needn't put your hands up, Garrick. Soft kids don't carry guns. Just sit down on that chair there."

"That check of Alistair's——" he began when Maitland interrupted him by thrusting the point of his pistol against Garrick's chest.

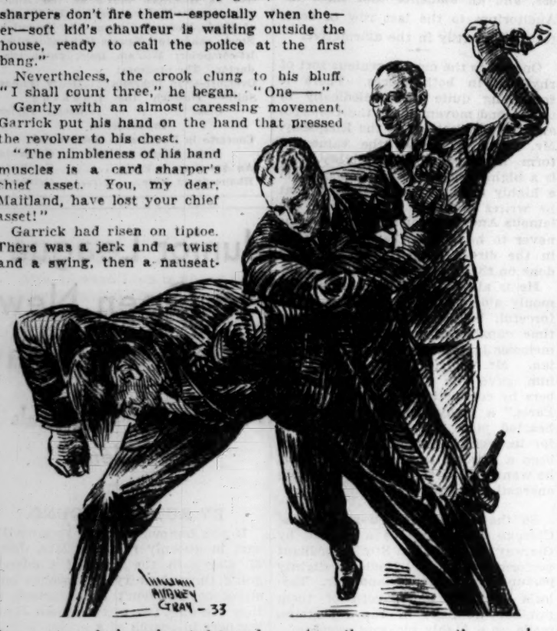
"Er—soft kids don't carry guns," drawled Garrick. "And sensible card sharpers don't fire them—especially when the—er—soft kid's chauffeur is waiting outside the house, ready to call the police at the first bang."

Nevertheless, the crook clung to his bluff. "I shall count three," he began. "One——"

Gently with an almost caressing movement, Garrick put his hand on the hand that pressed the revolver to his chest.

"The nimbleness of his hand muscles is a card sharper's chief asset. You, my dear, Maitland, have lost your chief asset!"

Garrick had risen on tiptoe. There was a jerk and a twist and a swing, then a nauseating crack as the sharper's wrist was broken.



There was a jerk and a twist and a swing, then a nauseating crack as the sharper's wrist was broken.

Then, with a lightning pivot, Garrick crashed his fist into the face of Lawson, who had rushed forward to attack him with the butt end of the revolver.

"Your place is by the door, Archie!" he remarked, as Lawson staggered back, blood flowing from a cut on the cheek just below the eye.

Garrick picked up Maitland's revolver and examined it—noting that the safety catch was in position. Lawson's revolver also lay on the floor. Garrick put this in his pocket.

"Drop those guns or I'll fire!" cried Dorling.

"Fire and be hanged—hanged, my dear Dorling," he drawled. "And if you aren't going to fire, and be hanged, put it down. You look a most frightful ass waving it about and not daring to let it off . . . Maitland, hurry up with that check of Alistair's. Miss Fairclough will be ready in a minute."

"Go to hell!" Maitland's face was contorted with the pain of his wrist.

Garrick sighed. He went over to the window and looked out—looked through the glass at the full moon. Then he slipped back the safety catch of Maitland's revolver and fired through the glass at the full moon.

"What the hell!" cried Maitland. "You'll have the police rushing in here."

"Undoubtedly," drawled Garrick. "Hadn't you better give me Alistair's check before they come?"

"Give him the check!" rapped out Maitland. "The key's in my right pocket. I can't use my damned wrist."

Lawson took the key, unlocked the safe and in silence handed the check to Garrick, who at once folded it over the signature. Then he took from his waistcoat pocket a little penknife, which he invariably carried as a cigar cutter, and cut the check through the fold. Half the signature dropped on the floor. The rest of the check he kept to show Alistair.

He had barely finished when Rhoda appeared in the doorway.

"What is the matter?" she asked, her face ashen. I thought——"

From the hall below came the sound of gruff voices.

"That's the police," said Garrick. "You had better wait here with me."

A sergeant and two constables were coming up the stairs.

"Shots have been fired in this room," said the sergeant, striding into the room, followed by one of the constables. "What's been going on? Now then, gentlemen! Which of you is the owner of the house?"

"That one," said Garrick, indicating Maitland. "Take a good look at him, sergeant—and these other two. I'm not bringing any charge against them tonight, but for your private information they are card sharpers."

The sergeant was puzzled. Unconsciously he took Garrick's advice and studied the faces of the three men. Then he pulled himself together.

"If you're the owner of the house, what's been going on with these shots being fired?"

"A bit of horseplay, sergeant," said Maitland, who had a certain talent for dealing with a situation of this kind.

As the police left the room Garrick took Rhoda's arm and followed on their heels. Maitland, nursing his broken wrist, stood near the door. Strangely, thought Garrick, he did not look defeated—he looked almost triumphant—which in the circumstances seemed absurd.

The police were only just ahead of them, were passing out of the front door as they themselves reached the foot of the stairs. The crooks, Garrick reasoned, would not attempt any tricks.

Even as he thought it, a narrow door on the left of the hall was opened. Through it stepped a man of appearance as striking and conspicuous, though in a different way, as that of Garrick himself.

He was, Garrick supposed, somewhere in the middle forties. He was so swarthy that he might have been a Spaniard. Big chested, of medium height, his thick arms were disproportionately long, uncannily long, suggesting the arms of a gorilla—suggesting very forcibly the strength of a gorilla.

Rhoda gasped and clutched Garrick's arm as the stranger stood right across their way.

"You go on and get into the car," said Garrick.

Rhoda obeyed, walking round the stranger. Garrick waited until she had passed through the open front door.

Then he advanced in a perfectly straight line. The eyes of the two men met and in that moment each knew that the other was without fear.

"Er—good evening!" drawled Garrick. "Will you have the goodness—er—to get out of my way."

The other bowed ironically and stood aside. Garrick passed slowly on, every nerve taut for attack from behind.

"Swell Garrick—perhaps!" There was a concentrated insult in the rasping voice that made Garrick turn round.

"I'm afraid I must disappoint you," he said slowly. "I make it a rule never to hit a man however insolent he may be. If he hits me I just—hit back. Good night!"

Inside the car was no unusual smell to warn him of their danger—the engine fired and he drove slowly forward, to find that the gate of the drive, generally left open, had been shut—presumably by the departing police.

"I shall have to nip out and open the gate," he announced. "O, there's that comic butler! Good!"

The butler was running towards the gate.

"I—I think I'm going to faint," gasped Rhoda.

"I'll open your window—there'll be a good draught as soon as we start."

He reached across her and began to wind the rotary lever, but found an unaccountable weakness in his wrist. The window seemed to be made of lead."

"Good heavens—why, I feel faint, too! I——"

He knew then that he could not open the window—knew that he could not raise himself from the position into which he had fallen across her lap.

His last certain thought as consciousness slipped away was that the car had been filled with parradine gas.

There came to him the vision of the strong, malevolent face of the man he had confronted in the hall.

Miss Del Rio, the Patrician, Goes Modern

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., June 14.—No longer is Dolores Del Rio the typically patrician beauty. Yesterday she bobbed her hair. She's taking dancing lessons from Muriel Stewart, who once was with Pavlowa. She recently had Johnny Weissmuller teach her how to swim. She's taking sun baths. And she's taking a tip from her portrait painter, Paul Manteola, Italian, and using makeup in the shades he used in painting her picture. All in all, the Del Rio girl has gotten very modern.

Helen Hayes, Joan Crawford, Wera Engels, Frank Borzage, Franchot Tone, and Harp Marx were among guests at the farewell party Mr. and Mrs. Mike Lovee gave Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Howard. Howard is leaving to reach London on July 5 to carry out a previous professional engagement before starting his string of movies under Warner Brothers here.

Ricardo Cortez, who has been so ill he hasn't been able to work in films recently announced for him, now replaces Cary Grant in Paramount's "Big Executive," Grant having gone to the hospital a couple of days ago for further mending himself. Nothing serious the matter with young Grant; in Cortez' case it was relapse from the flu.

Hollywood fan writers have been treading on each other's toes trying to get the first interviews with Elizabeth Young, actress just arrived from New York. She plays in "Big Executive."

"Just Off Fifth Avenue" is Radio-RKO's companion piece to De Mille's "This Day and Age," in that it shows the goings on at an elite girl's boarding school, while De Mille concentrates on boys in a public high school. The Radio story probably will have all the promising young girls on the lot in the cast, Frances Dee, Helen Mack, and Dorothy Wilson having already been cast.

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THE HOTEL VAN DYKE AFFAIR.

"Say, Big Shot," called Lenn Hall, one of the telephone operators at the exclusive Hotel Van Dyke, "you'd better go up to suite 608 and see if anything is wrong."

"All right, sweetheart," Murphy, the house detective, replied, shifting the big cigar in his mouth. "Why?"

"Well, Sherlock, Mr. Harmon made a call about twenty minutes ago, but the outside line has been disconnected for over three minutes and I can't get an answer from the suite."

"You've been readin' too many detective magazines," Murphy said with a good natured grin as he left the lobby.

Receiving no response to his knock he opened the door of 608 with his pass key. He wasn't quite sure whether he should or not. Mr. and Mrs. Harmon were wealthy, prominent people. However . . .

Murphy called. There was no reply. Perhaps something was wrong. He walked down the hall and through the living room. He listened. Sounded as if some one was taking a shower. He knocked loudly at the bathroom door.

"What is it?" demanded a female voice.

"Pardon me, Mrs. Harmon, but there seems to be something wrong with your telephone."

"O, just put it back on the hook, will you?"

"Certainly," Murphy replied. Sorry to have disturbed you."

He walked back through the hall and living room into the library. As he put the receiver on the hook he saw a man lying behind the large desk—a knife in his heart! It was Mr. Harmon!

"Yes," said Prof. Fordney to Murphy the next morning, "I think you are justified in suspicioning Mrs. Harmon."

WHY WAS HE?

Ruth Copeland Will Be Bride in East Today

Her Father to Wed Her Aunt Saturday.

ington in Pasadena, where she was vacationing with her mother. Day before yesterday he arrived in Chicago and will remain until after the wedding, when with his bride he will set out on a several months' trip to Honolulu.

After this the young couple will return to Chicago to make their home, for Mr. Welbourne is entering business here in the fall.

The engagement was announced quietly yesterday, since Mrs. Evans' sister, Mrs. Matthew P. McCullough of Wausau, Wis., is in St. Luke's hospital recovering from a recent operation. Her daughter, Miss Ruth McCullough, is a guest at the Evans home.

Miss Evens, a petite blonde, was one of the popular debutantes of the last season, being presented to society last Nov. 10 at a reception at her mother's apartment. The year before this she climaxed her studies at the University School for Girls at Briarcliff with a trip around the world. One of her several talents—and they are multiple—is dancing. This last winter she took part in the sixth edition of the "Huntington Hilarities" in Pasadena. Last fall she was a member of the cast of the Service club play, "Stepping High."

Mr. Welbourne is a graduate of Exeter and attended Harvard university.

Mrs. Linn to Give Dinner Tomorrow.

Mrs. Howard Linn is giving another of the delightful dinners for which she is noted tomorrow night for Miss Marion de Rham of New York, who is coming from New York to spend the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Linn at their Shoreacres residence.

Today Mrs. Linn is entertaining the Scribblers at luncheon, after which they will go to Mrs. J. Andrews King's house in Lake Forest to see Mrs. Linn, Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, Mrs. Clay Judson, and Mrs. King take part in a clever playlet taken from Beverly Nichols' book, "Down a Garden Path." The new president of the Scribblers will be announced at today's meeting, too.

One of the more recent additions to the list of debutantes for next year is Miss Marian Newcomet, daughter of the Horace E. Newcomets, who was graduated recently from the Girls' Latin school. The Newcomets and their daughter sailed last night on the Aquitania for England, where Miss Newcomet will remain until October visiting friends. Mr. and Mrs. Newcomet will return within a month. While they are away their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. Beach Clow, will occupy their apartment at 1242 Lake Shore drive.

Box Parties for Concert Tonight.

There will be box parties galore for tonight's concert at the Auditorium when Roland Hayes will be the soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. The John Alden Carpenters, prominent Friends of Music, the organization that has arranged this summer series of concerts, and their guests will occupy four boxes.

Some of the other hosts and hostesses at box parties will be Mr. and Mrs. Noble B. Judah, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers, Mr. and Mrs. Byron S. Harvey, Mrs. Frederick W. Upham, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Thorne, Mr. and Mrs. Orville E. Babcock, Mrs. Joseph B. Long, the Bruce Borlands, Mrs. Townsend McKeever, the Robert S. Piries, the Frederick H. Rawsons, Mr. and Mrs. J. Paul Welling, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Howell B. Erminger, the Harold Beacoms, the Charles Howards, the Murry Nelsons, the Mitchell Follansbees, Mrs. Grover Tagmose, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Jelke, Mr. and Mrs. Martin D. Schutze, and many others, for every box is taken.

The Carpenters are entertaining at dinner before the concert for George Gershwin and Mrs. Ernest L. Ives, who is visiting her brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson. Mrs. Stevenson is a daughter of Mrs. Carpenter. One of Mr. Carpenter's compositions is on the program for tonight, a concertino for piano and orchestra.

Society Scattered All Over House.

Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter, who will be sitting in a box tonight, heard the music at last night's concert from main floor seats, well down in front but over at one side. Society was scattered all over the huge theater to hear George Gershwin play, upstairs and down, and, although there were some familiar faces in the boxes, the golden horseshoe last night presented a more democratic front than it did last Wednesday night.

One of the few box parties whose members were dressed in formal attire was that of the junior John R. Winterbothams, whose guests were Miss Helena Adamowska of Boston and New York, Miss Dorothy Schmidt, Rollin Larrabee, and Arthur Doyle.

Among others in the large and enthusiastic audience which filled the theater were the Charles H. Swifts [she was the soloist at last Wednesday's concert], Mrs. Barney Goodspeed, the Chauncey McCormicks, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay III., Miss Ethel Dixon, the Arthur Bissells, Miss "Baby" Clow, Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr. and her sister, Mrs. John B. Drake Jr.; Miss Elizabeth Ricker, Mrs. Alfred M. Wolfe, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, the Louis K. Boysens, the Harold Pynchons, Miss Clara Lake, Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris, and the Neil Wards, former Chicagoans who are passing through the city on their way from Memphis, where they spent the winter, to their summer camp at Batchawana bay in Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Brundage entertained at dinner last night at the Century club for Gen. and Mrs. Alexander McRae of Vancouver and their daughter, Mrs. L. M. Paul. Among their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, Mrs. R. Townsend McKeever, Mrs. Chester Brundage, and Richard McSwain.

The Brundages' daughter, Miss Margaret Brundage, who has been visiting in Lexington, Ky., returned yesterday, bringing with her her younger brother, Edward Jr., who has been at school in Asheville, N. C.

Mrs. Potter Palmer and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes will pour coffee at the opening of Morocco's blue and white building at A Century of Progress Tuesday at 5 o'clock. About 100 invitations to the opening were mailed yesterday, among them those to the board of directors of the Alliance Française and to the officers of the Alliance Juniors, and to those women, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, who are sponsoring the opening.

Mrs. Fowler McCormick and Miss Margaret Chapman left yesterday in Alexander Stillman's plane to attend the New London boat races this week-end and the large week-end party that Mr. Stillman is giving. Mr. Stillman, who is at Harvard, is Mrs. McCormick's son. Miss Chapman's sister, Miss Elinor Chapman, arrived home yesterday morning from Bryn Mawr and has joined her parents, the John Adams Chapmans, in their Lake Shore drive apartment.

Mrs. Cabot Brown and Children Here

Mrs. Cabot Brown and her two sons, James Keeley and Stephen, arrived in town from their home in San Francisco two days ago and have been at the Ambassador. This morning they are moving out to the Deerpath inn in Lake Forest to be with James Keeley, Mrs. Brown's father. Mrs. Brown's two sisters, Mrs. Luther S. Hammond Jr. and Mrs. Graham Aldis, also live in Lake Forest. Dr. Brown did not come east with his wife and children. Mrs. Aldis is giving a luncheon for her sister a week from Sunday.

Willard N. Drown Jr., Mrs. Robert J. Dunham's son, did not go with the Dunhams to California, but is remaining in town until later in the summer, when he may join them.

Even the Jumper Dress Must Have Its Fashionable Wide Shoulders

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

Jumper dresses remain popular with the smart woman for general daytime wear, and today's model with its pretty caped shoulder arrangement and slightly flared skirt is as graceful as can be. A beige crinkled silk crêpe with the jumper of a brown and white printed silk crêpe would be chic.

The pattern, No. 2562, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards of 59 inch material for the dress and 2 yards of 35 inch material for the blouse.

Working Girl's Mite Now Buys Lot of Clothes

BY RHEA SEEGER.

At last the poor little working girl has come into her own.

Some far-sighted buyers and store executives have suddenly awakened to the fact that salary checks have limits, and so the business girls are now having a grand time in four or five different spots around the town finding good, wearable, snappy clothes for tidy little sums that still leave a surplus for socks and lunch money, to say nothing of the required weekly visit to the hair dresser.

One store is featuring a knockout collection of street clothes for these clothes hounds, daring, dashing things that can double for office wear as well as spectator sports wear—different little outfits with detachable capes, trick short jackets, or two piece affairs that are just nobody's business in 1933 swank, swagger, and color contrast.

Cottons, smart linen combinations, sports silks, and every conceivable color and white, each made with the knowing little details that usually appear only on perfect thirty-six sizes with price tags that overwhelm any beginner's salary check.

What you can buy for sums under $15 will make you grin with satisfied shopping sagacity, but the smart, snappy dresses and costumes that will cost you exactly one-tenth of $100 and sometimes less are the things that will leave you in a state of coma over any week-end. Good materials, well designed models, stunning color combinations, and sane prices well within the limits of a very tender and to be cherished salary are the outstanding bits of good news for any business girl.

Mother Takes All Married Son's Salary

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The in-law complications as they are reported at the moment are particularly discouraging in most cases because there is no other apparent living solution than to double up. Biding time patiently until things have improved is about the only advise possible. BUT—

Where the in-law problem is not bred of the economic conditions of the moment, where it appears in its old, time-worn, trouble-making aspect as "Mrs. T." reports, we grow a bit impatient with the injured participant.

"Mrs. T." works. Her husband works. They are both on very good salaries, too. The young wife's money has gone into the furnishing of the apartment. She pays for her husband's clothes, hers, keeps up the insurance premiums, and so on.

The husband's money is turned over in toto to his mother, who is the guest in the young folk's home. She buys the food—and that's all the financial responsibility she has. What's left is hers to do with as she pleases. And the old girl does like to cut quite a flash among her friends. She dresses better than the young wife and goes in for more entertaining. By rule of the Silver Chord what is her son's is hers! She threatens that if her son does not give her his money she'll go to his company and claim his salary.

Well, all the wife would have to do would be to beat the older woman to the salary window, for hers is the prior claim. But here's an in-law situation that should not be tolerated for a day! Provisions may have to be made for the older woman, if she has no income. With the combined salaries, this could be intelligently arranged. And arranged so that said mother-in-law's place of future abode is a considerable distance removed from the home of the young pair.

This sort of situation calls for quick and decisive action. The young woman must take the initiative, serve notice on son and mother that things can't and won't go on as they are. And stick to the decision. There'll be tears, accusations, perhaps a threatened break, but the time to strike is now while there's hope of getting the young man unloosed from this abnormal mother-hold.

BY MARY MEADE.

Does a half loaf of stale bread mean bread pudding for the family or a gift for the garbage can?

Bread puddings are good as they come—if they do not come too often in their every day garb. And have you discovered that the addition of a little spice and molasses will change these puddings to crispy, flavorsome morsels which the most vigorous bread pudding opponent will devour with gusto? For instance—

SPICY BREAD PUDDING.

1 quart milk.
2 cups stale bread crumbs.
2 eggs, slightly beaten.
¼ cup molasses.
1 tablespoon melted butter.
¼ cup sugar.
½ cup raisins.
¼ teaspoon salt.
½ teaspoon each of cinnamon, nutmeg, and cloves.

Soak the bread crumbs in the milk 15 minutes. Stir in the other ingredients and pour into a buttered baking dish. Place the dish in a pan of hot water and bake until set [about ¾ hour] in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.].

Serve this pudding hot with a hard sauce made by creaming 1 cup of light brown sugar with ½ cup of butter. This sauce will trickle down over the hot pudding when it melts as no other sauce could.

Another way to keep these bread puddings a deep, dark secret is to add 1½ squares of melted chocolate to one cup of crumbs in your favorite bread pudding recipe and serve over it.

MARSHMALLOW MINT SAUCE.

8 marshmallows, cut in small pieces.
¼ cup water.
White of 1 egg.
1 drop oil of peppermint.

Dissolve the sugar in the water and boil until it becomes a thin sirup. Add the marshmallows and stir till dissolved. Pour the mixture gradually into the white of an egg which has been beaten until stiff. Beat in the flavoring and chill.

Then, have you heard of queen pudding? Some say it's the queen of all puddings and others that it is a favorite of her royal highness somebody or other. It is created by adding the grated rind of one lemon to any bread pudding recipe and baking until it is set. Spread the pudding with raspberry jam or currant jelly and a meringue of two egg whites, ¼ cup of sugar, and the juice of one lemon. Brown the meringue in a slow oven and serve the pudding warm or cold.

COLD BLUEBERRY BREAD PUDDING.

Remove the crust from bread and cube it. Measure ½ cup of sugar for each cup of blueberries you have, place them in a saucepan and cook until the berries are tender. Next, in the bottom of an earthen bowl rinsed with cold water pour several spoonfuls of the berries. Fit some of the bread cubes closely into the bowl on the berries. As bread cubes are fitted in, pour more hot berries and juice over them, continuing the layers till all the berries are used. This recipe has a secret of success [and what recipe doesn't]—the bread must all be saturated with the fruit juice. Set the bowl in the refrigerator and chill. To serve, turn the pudding from the bowl onto your gayest plate and garnish with whipped cream. We sometimes serve this pudding with sugar and cream, too.

New Couturiere Designs a Summer Sports Outfit on More Personal Lines

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Clashing colors, little wraps, and sashes announce that summer sports clothes are getting personal. For a sporting fashion to develop such personality is not allowed in the rule book of good dressing, but they're doing it just the same. And, if this keeps on, with women high up in chic wearing personality on their sports outfits, some new rules are going to get made.

The ensemble in our sketch today shows you how far a sports suit can go from the boyish, plain suit that is okayed by the style makers. Yvonne Dangel, a new couturiere, but well known in Paris fashion circles as having come from two of the greatest Paris houses, Vionnet and Lanvin, designed this suit.

The skirt, which you're sure to notice first, is made of Bianchini's famous Globe Trotter plaid silk canvas in green, brown and white. Two panels are set on in front, and as they are cut circular half-way down, they flare the skirt at the bottom.

A very wide sash of green silk is draped around the waistline and the ends tucked under, the way the French workmen wear their cotton sashes. This makes a high-low waistline and dodges that problem neatly.

Above the sash is a knitted string sweater blouse in white, shown in the background. It has a turnover collar and short tucked-under sleeves.

The green silk bolero jacket ends its career on the ribs, and buttons over on two inter-locking triangles, or, I should say, inter-buttoned triangles. The long sleeves are split up from the wrists a little way.

Routine in Sleeping Is Vital to Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Granted, in yesterday's column, that sleep has a great influence in children's behavior and is important for their nerves and growth and general well-being let us, for the inexperienced mother, set down a few general rules to follow for the building up of good sleeping habits in children.

Every one knows that babies need the most sleep. As they grow older they need less and less sleep until they reach adolescence. Then, the second rapid growth period takes place and they begin to need much more sleep.

First comes the need for regularity in this as in other routines. A baby and little child's bed hour should be the same every night and the nap time should come at the same hour each day. Every child should have a nap, or some period of rest during the day when he is quiet and alone.

A baby or little child should have his own bed, and, if possible, his own room.

Children vary a great deal in the time it takes them to go to sleep. Also, besides varying individually, one child will vary at different times in his life. Various factors account for this, such as over-fatigue, which delays sleep, especially large doses of outdoors which hasten sleep, emotional excitement which defers sleep and so forth. Ordinarily, however, a child may be considered average in his habits if he varies from a few minutes to half an hour in the length of time that elapses before he drops off.

As to waking, children will have times—hard, alas, for sleep-hungry parents—when they will for weeks wake up at some ungodly hour without apparent reason. On the whole, however, they should sleep through, except for the time that they have to be awakened to be taken to the toilet.

A child, sleeping normally, will move about in bed. Thousands of tests of people made while sleeping prove that this movement is universal, because the body needs changes of position to equalize the circulation during sleep. So, a certain amount of moving is not restlessness.

Tomorrow, the hours of sleep that children need will be given.

For Good Swim Suit Figure Try Few Exercises

They'll Help Whittle Off the Ounces.

"West Point Exercises," an illustrated booklet outlining the series of exercises recently presented in these columns through the courtesy of the United States Military academy, may be obtained by sending five cents in coin or stamps to Antoinette Donnelly, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Or call at The Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn Street.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

For a better bathing suit figure—do this:

I'll repeat an exercise I gave yesterday, as you should include it. Stand with weight on the balls of the feet, slightly on heels. Raise the arms forward, up overhead to the highest extent, stretching the entire body upward. Inhale as the arms go up, rising on the toes. Now, lower arms to sides and forcibly exhale. Rest. Repeat ten times. If you keep this up religiously you will find a place for that bathing suit belt.

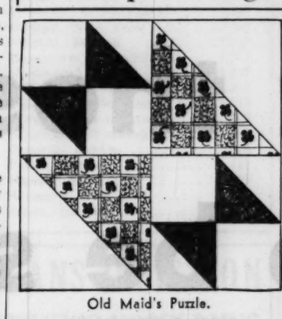
Now, this exercise [also a stretching one]. From position of attention, lunge sidewards to the right, arms at the side horizontally. Now, then, lock both arms around the right thigh, near the knee, stretching the left leg, left side of the body and arms. Recover to position. Then lunge to the left, locking both arms about the left thigh, stretching the right leg, right side of the body and arms. The value of this exercise lies in the stretching you give the body parts named. So, stretch!

I'm only going to give you three movements, because I want you to do them over and over. Three done well and every day are better than ten done not well nor regularly. And these three taken in every muscle of the body.

The third is an old love—nevertheless, due for a revived interest. Lie on the back with arms fully extended back of the head. Rise to a sitting position smartly. Touch the hands to the toes. Now, then, stretch the back and shoulders. Herein lies the real trick and value in this exercise. Not merely going through the mechanics and thinking because you can come up and touch your toes, you're good. Stretch the back and shoulders. Stretch, stretch! Return to the original position slowly. Relax completely, and repeat.

With these three exercises, I repeat you have the formula for a neater waist, hip, lower back and chest line. Or, if it's developing you need, they work that way, too. Also, they'll give you just that pep that will stir you lazy ones into hieing yourself down and getting a new bathing suit so that you may take your place among the beach fans.

Busy Bachelor Girl Will Like Simple Design



Old Maid's Puzzle.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Puzzles, it seems, must have been even more popular in other years than they are now, if the number of puzzle quilt patterns is any criterion. Today's pattern, "Old Maid's Puzzle," is a simple design to work and would be more suitable for the busy bachelor girl of today to pick up in her rare spare moments.

For a quilt pattern of this design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

If "Food Goes to Fat"
Know This Simple Method!

HOW often have you said to yourself "Everything I eat seems to go to fat"? How often have you wished for a way to retain your own normal weight—without having to deny yourself simple pleasures that others enjoy?

The systems of some people (doctors call them the "low metabolism type") turn too much food into fat, not enough into energy. It was for exactly this type of person that Marmola was designed, many years ago. In 1907 people first heard of it. Then, increasing multitudes turned to it—until today actually more than 20 million boxes have been sold.

The story of Marmola has gone 'round the world. People ask for it in California, in England—in Florida, in New Zealand. It is demanded by thousands in style centers like New York, Miami, Hollywood. Marmola has stood the test of generations, while useless fat remedies have come and gone. It supplies missing nutritional elements—the lack of which cause abnormal, excess fat. You don't have to resort to starvation diet. Simply avoid fattening food.

Discover Marmola for yourself. When you use it, remember it is designed to work gently, naturally. It is not intended to take off large numbers of excess pounds the first week—but to be used as a sane, sensible treatment until you have approached your own normal weight. Directions and formula in each package. At good drug stores, only $1.

MARMOLA
Over 20 Million Boxes Sold

ON JUNE 28TH

THIS SPRING, the Kelvinator factory announced new prices on the Standard 1933 Line. These prices were the lowest in Kelvinator's 19 years in the industry. But, they were guaranteed only until materials costs went up.

Materials costs have gone up—and prices must go up also—because Kelvinator will not cheapen the product—sacrifice quality—to meet a low price. On the above date new prices on all Kelvinator models go into effect.

We saw this price increase coming. And we placed orders at the old prices. But, dealers all over the country were doing likewise and even though April and May were the biggest months in Kelvinator history, the big factories at Detroit and Grand Rapids could not possibly supply the demand.

As a result, we haven't as many of these models—bought at the old prices—as we wish we had. We might hold back those we do have and sell them at the increased prices. But that isn't what we are going to do. We are going to sell the Kelvinators which we now have in stock at the old, low prices.

For your protection, we wish to call particular attention to the following—You may have looked at a Kelvinator—and asked about the price. The price we quoted is now withdrawn EXCEPT on models bought at the old price which are now in stock. When the Kelvinators now on hand are sold, our prices must go up.

5 ERRORS HELP BROWNS ROUT WHITE SOX, 14-1

Simmons Slips Back Three Points.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

For no reason except that they couldn't help it, the White Sox reverted to their 1932 manners yesterday. Everything they did was wrong. Consequently the St. Louis Browns picked up bargains until the nine inning rule stopped the game. The final score was 14 to 1. Eight of the Browns' runs were directly traceable to the White Sox's negligence on five occasions. It made the third victory for St. Louis in 13 games with the Sox this season.

The Sox fielding was so weak that it would have nullified even good pitching. But there was no good pitching. Paul Gregory tried to show some at the start, but he was forced to quit before the second inning was concluded. Then Joe Heving and Walter Miller were treated to some turbulent moments. Finally Chad Kimsey was given a chance against his old mates and in comparison to his predecessors he was a sensation. He yielded only one hit and nobody erred behind him in the last two innings.

Simmons Loses 3 Points.

The scarcity of Sox runs, not to mention hits, can be attributed to the presence of Irving Bump Hadley, who in his last appearance here shut out the Chicagoans on two hits. He did not surrender a hit until the fourth inning yesterday when Al Simmons broke in with a triple. Then he bogged down a bit and three hits were crowded into the fifth and sixth innings. After that he didn't permit a man to reach base. Simmons' lone hit in four attempts shunk his league leading average by three points to .378.

In view of the happenings in the first inning Gregory probably was fortunate to get away with only two runs scoring. Scharein led off with a single to center and West walked. A double play was possible on Garms' grounder, but Dykes fumbled, filling the bases with none out. Appling grabbed Campbell's drive back of second and made a quick toss to Hayes to force Garms, Scharein scoring and West taking third. The latter scored and Campbell raced to third on Burns' single past Kress. Gregory pulled himself out of the mess by fanning Gullic and getting Levey on a fly to Swanson.

It Goes On and On.

Hadley scratched a single to Appling with one out in the second and was forced by Scharein. Then the panic started. Kress picked up West's roller, but made a bad throw to Gregory who covered the base. Scharein, who had stolen second, scored from there on the error. Garms singled and followed West home on Campbell's double to left. Gregory was promptly excused. Heving took over the job and was greeted by Burns' fluke double to short center on which Campbell scored the fourth and last run of the inning.

Levey opened the fourth inning with a poke to Kress, who made another bad throw. The ball rolled away from Heving and Levey went to second. After getting to third on an out he scored on a safe bunt by Scharein. The fourth inning generosity didn't appear until after two were out. Appling then fumbled Burns' drive and Gullic hit the ball into the left field seats. Heving finished the inning before being dismissed.

Gullic Cleans Up.

The Browns broke out again in the sixth, but this time didn't require the assistance of errors. Miller walked Campbell for a starter and Burns sacrificed. Gullic singled into center and Campbell scored. After Levey had flied out, Shea singled to center to score Gullic.

Gullic's third hit did a good job of mopping up in the seventh, making the count 14 to 1. West bunted safely with one out and continued to third when Miller threw the ball into right field. Garms was hit by a pitched ball and Campbell walked, filling the bases. Burns struck out and Gullic then lined one into the farthest corner of right center, West, Garms and Campbell scoring. Gullic figured he might as well score now as later, but he was nailed at the plate.

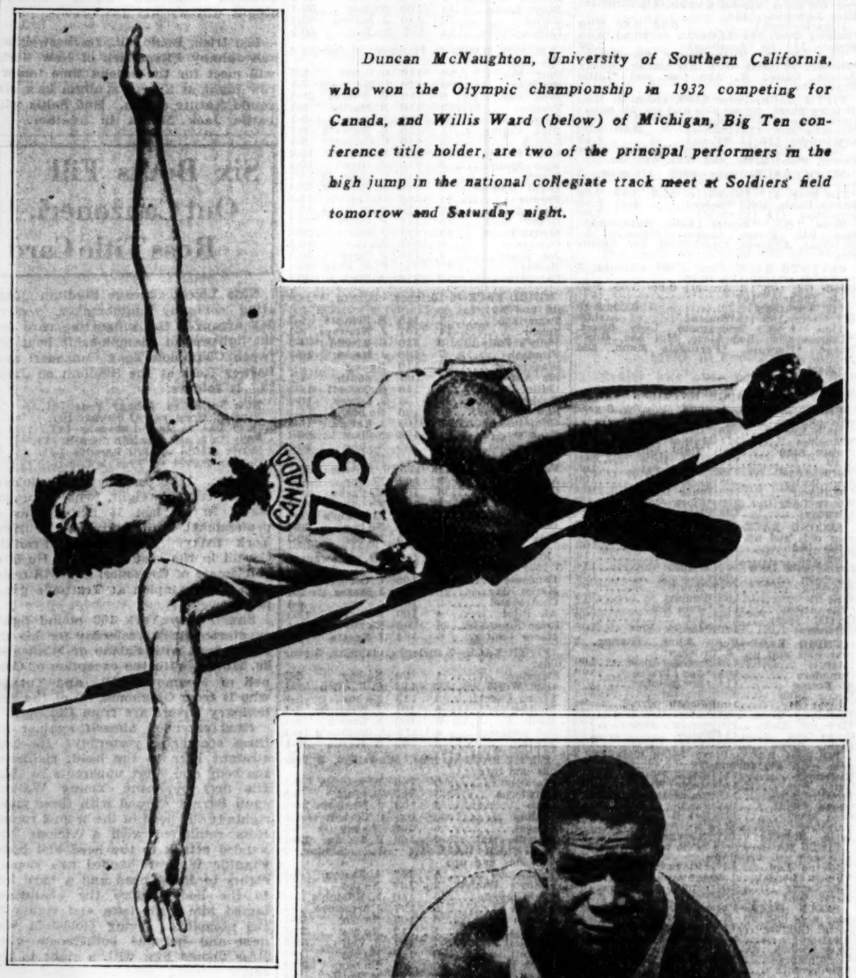
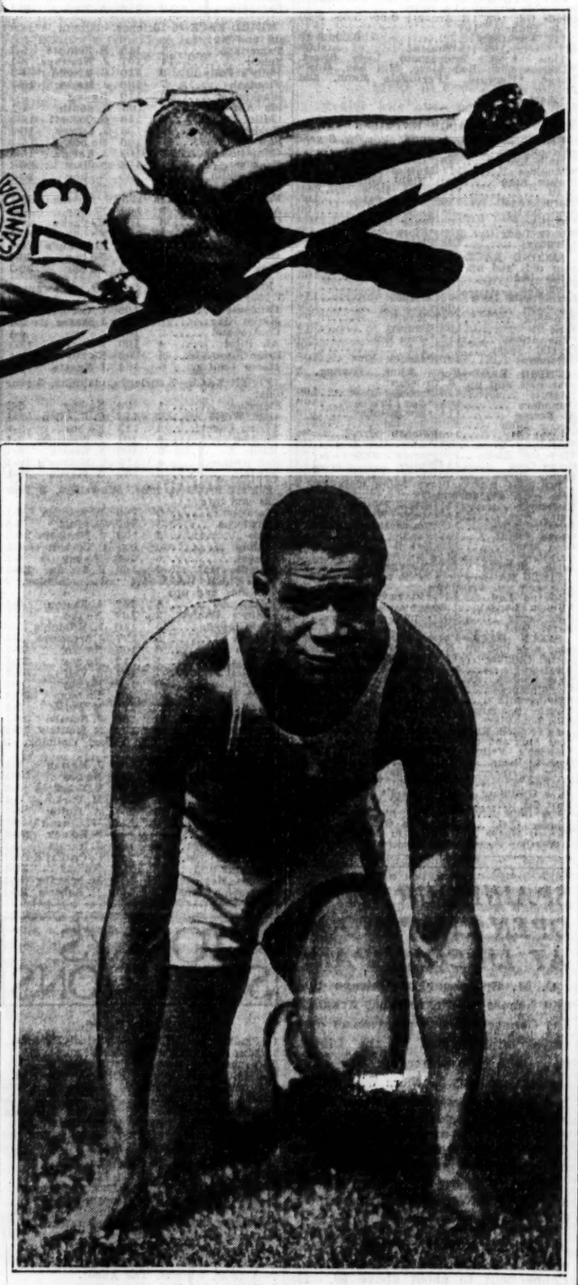
CHAMPIONS CLASH IN COLLEGIATE MEET



Duncan McNaughton, University of Southern California, who won the Olympic championship in 1932 competing for Canada, and Willis Ward (below) of Michigan, Big Ten conference title holder, are two of the principal performers in the high jump in the national collegiate track meet at Soldiers' field tomorrow and Saturday night.



Pena Wins in 15 Round Bout with Milling

Johnny Pena, New York featherweight, beat Varias Milling of the Philippine islands last night at Mills stadium in the first 15 round bout in Illinois since boxing was legalized in 1926. Pena weighed 128 and Milling 125.

Davey Miller, who hasn't officiated at a professional bout since June 16, 1932, refereed the match. It was the third meeting between Pena and Milling. They boxed two draws here in recent months, one at eight rounds and the other at ten.

Pena Forces Fighting.

Pena landed a hard right to the head in the sixth round, which spun the Filipino halfway around. Milling rallied in the seventh, but was tired as the bell ended the eighth.

Probably Milling's best round was the ninth. He scored with vicious left hooks to body and head and knocked Pena against the ropes. In the 10th the fighters apparently forgot that they had five more rounds to go. They slugged each other across the ring.

Crowd Scents Knockout.

The crowd got to its feet and cheered for Pena to score a knockout in the 12th. He unleashed a two-fisted attack near the end of the round.

Milling was almost floored by a series of lefts to the jaw in the 14th. In the 15th round the little battlers traded punches viciously until the bell, with Pena appearing the fresher.

Sampson Wins Easily.

MACK RETURNS EARNSHAW TO GOOD STANDING

Philadelphia, Pa., June 14.—(AP)—George Earnshaw, suspended pitcher of the Athletics, was returned to good standing today.

After a conference with the pitcher Manager Connie Mack said Earnshaw's transgressions were forgiven and forgotten.

"I am sure George is in condition now and will give us the brand of pitching of which he is capable," Mack added.

"He is going to pitch the first game in Boston on Saturday."

Earnshaw was suspended ten days ago and fined $500 for breaking training.

OLYMPIC STARS LEAD U. S. C. IN NATIONAL MEET

Graber Seeks Pole Vault Record.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Three members of the United States Olympic team of 1932 will lead the University of Southern California track team in its quest for its fourth national collegiate track and field championship at Soldiers' field tomorrow afternoon and Saturday night.

They will be assisted by a fourth Olympic star, Duncan McNaughton, who won the high jump in the international games, in which he competed for Canada, the place of his birth.

McNaughton's Olympic rivals and Trojan teammates are Bill Garber, Bob Van Osdel and Edgar Ablowich. These men will share the spotlight with Jack Keller, Glenn Cunningham and Ralph Metcalfe, on whom the fans undoubtly will center their attention because they have the best chance to win two events each.

Graber Seeks Record.

Graber, who shares the national collegiate pole vault record of 13 feet 10 5-16 inches [established in 1931] with Verne McDermont of Illinois, and Tom Warne of Northwestern, not only hopes to set a new mark, but already claims the world record of 14 feet 4⅝ inches. Graber cleared this heighth in the American Olympic finals last year, but Bill Miller of Stanford won the Olympic championship and incidentally set a new record at 14 feet 1⅞ inches.

This year Graber has vaulted 14 feet 2⅝ inches. Exceptionally heavy for a vaulter, he weighs 178 pounds. Graber makes the most of 6 feet 1 inch and phenominal pull-up. Vaulting is uncertain, however. In the intercollegiate meet two weeks ago neither Graber nor any other could surpass 13 feet 6 inches and five men, including Miller, tied for the championship. The Big Ten has three entrants who can better this. They are Ike Lennington and Irv Seeley of Illinois, and John Wonsowitz of Ohio State.

Osdel Is Jump Star.

Southern California's second Olympic star is Van Osdel, exponent of the modified western roll, whose tremendous spring clears the bar in the high jump at 6 feet 6 inches consistently. Van Osdel was one of four men who tied for the Olympic title, but in the jump off he finished second, the championship going to McNaughton. In the intercollegiates Van Osdel jumped 6 feet 6⅛ inches for second place. McNaughton tied for fourth at 6 feet 2 inches.

It is by no means certain that either of these men will win the N. C. A. A. championship. Willis Ward, who jumped 6 feet 7⅛ inches last year, and who brought Michigan both the indoor and outdoor conference titles in this event, must be considered. And there are several others who are in the 6-6 class.

Ablowich Faces Fuqua.

The other Trojan, who was a member of the American Olympic team, is Edgar Ablowich, who ran as No. 2 on the 1,600 meter relay quartet. The Americans set a world record of 3 minutes 8 2-10 seconds. Ablowich, however, only placed fourth in the intercollegiates. Saturday night, among other star quarter milers, Ab-

Goodman Sets Amateur Title as Next Goal

Omaha, Neb., June 14.—(AP)—Limp and weary after a hectic day of handshaking, autographs, speeches, and noisy parading, Johnny Goodman, United States open golf champion, tonight had set his eyes on the national amateur crown.

Before the clamor of "Johnny Goodman day" had died down here the 23 year old ex-caddie was eager to wrap his hands around a club and start practice for the amateur tourney Sept. 11 to 16 at Cincinnati.

"I'm starting training immediately for what I consider the hardest tournament to win," he said. "I am looking forward to those hand to hand match play combats and to having the pleasure of playing with such splendid golfers as competed in the amateur tourney last year."

Crowds Cheer Him.

A few hours before making the statement Goodman had returned home from Chicago to a cheering welcome at the Union station and later at the City auditorium and the Chamber of Commerce.

Embarrassed at first, Johnny blushed, nodded a bit stiffly to the crowd, and waved to old friends. Later he became used to the acclaim and said he was having a "swell time."

From the station to the auditorium Goodman was conducted by a mile long automobile parade. Happiest of all the cheering thousands along the route of march were ragged newsboys and caddies who, afoot and on bicycles, followed the car bearing Johnny.

Among the first to greet the new open champion was Josephine Kersigo, who boarded his train at Council Bluffs, Ia. She had previously watched his play at North Shore and returned home ahead of him. They have been friends since childhood.

Praises Ralph Guldahl.

Goodman praised Ralph Guldahl, the young St. Louis pro who came within one stroke of tying him in the open. Guldahl, he said, is a "magnificent golfer." Walter Hagen, too, in Johnny's opinion, is a "swell guy."

FANS INSIST ON FOXX'S HOME RUNS IN ALL-STAR GAME

Gehrig to Play First, So They Vote for Jimmy at Third

[This is the third of a series of sketches of players who will take part in the game of the century between American and National league stars at Comiskey park July 6.]

Jimmy Foxx is the diamond's Jack of all trades. That creates a happy situation for the American league. The big man of the Athletics who muscles baseballs over the fences at regular intervals finally has settled down to a career as a first baseman, but he's willing to vacate his place for a few hours the afternoon of July 6 when the stars of the National and American league assemble for battle at Comiskey park.

Because the baseball voting populace has decided that Lou Gehrig handle the first base affairs that day, something had to be done about Foxx, whose home run habits couldn't be overlooked. The solution was easy. Foxx once played third base for the Athletics and played it pretty well. The fans began voting for Foxx the third baseman. That's all right with him. Just so they don't vote away his privilege of batting he'll not complain. Right now he's trailing Jimmy Dykes for the third base job, but he probably will share the post with Dykes.

Breaks Into Big Leagues at Age of 16 Years.

Foxx was in the big league almost before he was old enough to lose his boyish taste for bread and jelly. He was only 16 years old, but as oversized as a truck tire when he came to the attention of Frank Baker, one time home run specialist with the Athletics, down at Easton, Md. Baker figured the youngster, who was playing the outfield, third base, and catching, had possibilities. He passed his hunch along to Connie Mack, and Connie, who always liked to get 'em

STEPHENSON'S 3 WALLOPS LEAD BRUIN ATTACK

Only 3 Cincinnati Men Reach First.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., June 14.—Charley Root, the Cubs' winning pitcher and salvage king, this afternoon put the wicked Cincinnati Reds in their place by accomplishing his fourth straight victory, 7 to 0. Charles was very stingy, allowing the Reds only two singles, one of which opened the Reds' offensive and one which came with two down in the fifth. He walked only one.

Give Him Early Lead.

It will be recalled that Charley last Saturday salvaged the final of the sad series in St. Louis, after the Cubs had given him three runs in the first inning. The early lead idea worked out so well in St. Louis that the Cubs tried it again today, making Root comfortable with a couple of markers before he had to do any pitching.

The supporting lads looked like a different bunch, both at bat and afield. They made 11 hits, including productive triples by Gink Hendrick and Gabby Hartnett and three hits by Riggs Stephenson, one of which was a double. They played errorless ball and did no wool gathering.

Charley Doesn't Need Help.

In praising the support afield one should not be too extravagant, however, for Root's work was so polished that there was not one occasion when a fielder had to exert himself or think. No one reached second and, with the exception of Adams, who reached first base twice, and Roettger, no Red saw the first station.

English Starts It Again.

English led off the third with a single to center and took second on a wild pitch. Bill Herman walked and the runners moved forward on Babe Herman's sacrifice. Stephenson then grounded to Grantham, who threw to Hemsley, heading off English. Hemsley chased English back to third after Bill Herman had arrived there, so Bill was out. Hendrick tripled to the flagpole, scoring English and Stephenson. Demaree popped to Adams.

English also started the fifth with a single to center. He moved to second on Bill Herman's sacrifice. Babe Herman tapped to Kolp and English was run down by Kolp unassisted. Babe Herman stole second and reached third when Hemsley threw the ball to centerfield.

Gabby Smacks One.

The Cubs' second triple, like the first, was responsible for two runs. Demaree walked to start the sixth and scored on Hartnett's triple to the center field flagpole. Gabby scored on Jurges' single to left.

After Frey took over the pitching job at the start of the seventh the Cubs eased off, though they did bear down enough to make a hit an inning.

BILLY SULLIVAN'S FATHER TO WED PORTLAND WOMAN

Astoria, Ore., June 14.—(AP)—Billy Sullivan, 58 years old, famous old time catcher with the Chicago White Sox, has a marriage license awaiting him here. County Clerk Clinton said he applied last Friday for a license to wed Myrtle Nash of Portland. The required time limit for issuance of the license expired yesterday. Sullivan now operates a fruit range at Newberg, Ore. Sullivan's son, Billy Jr., is a utility infielder with the White Sox now.

GOLD BASIS WINS IN A ROMP; MAYBE HE'S A CHAMPION

Runs Mile in 1:36 2-5 at Lincoln Fields.

BY FRENCH LANE.

A new bidder for championship honors in the muddled 3 year old title chase came to the front at Lincoln Fields yesterday when Gold Basis, owned by Morton L. Schwartz of New York and a stable mate of last year's champion, Gusto, went dashing to victory in the Heidelberg purse.

He breezed on to his triumph by two lengths after running the mile in 1:36 2-5, scorching time on anybody's race track. He was going so easily at the finish, with Jockey Charley Corbett laughing back at the lads who were trying to catch him, that he gave out the impression that he might go on to almost any distance.

Fair Rochester Second.

Fair Rochester, which was third in the American Derby, was second, and Sweeprush, the winner of the Illinois Derby, finished third. Trailing the three leaders home were other fashionables from the 3 year old ranks including the Nash Brothers At Top, Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Envoy, and the California speedster, Northgalls, a stable companion of the great horse, Gallant Sir.

It was Northgalls, making his first start this year, which cut out the early pace and made Gold Basis run so fast in the early stages that most of the crowd expected to see both colts wilt when the real battle started in the stretch. They had skimmed over the first half-mile in :46 1-5, and when horses run that fast they must be genuine stayers to gallop on to victory.

They Can't Catch Him.

Northgalls weakened as the stretch run began, but not Gold Basis. He went on and on. Fair Rochester, Sweeprush, and At Top tried to catch him. It was a futile bid that each made. Any time that any of them turned on some speed Gold Basis turned it on at a little greater pace. He was running in better stride than any of them when it ended.

Gold Basis was sent to Chicago early last month and was the pace maker in the American Derby. He stopped in that race as if he wasn't at the top of his condition. The crowd flocked to him yesterday and made him the favorite. He paid off at $4.40.

Dyak Beats Mr. Sponge.

The popular red and white jacket of Fred A. Burton of Chicago was carried to its first victory of the year in Chicago when Dyak, a big, lazy looking son of Dodge-Quality, turned back the odds on favorite, Mr. Sponge, and won the Lagoon purse at six furlongs.

There had been a switch in jockeys on Mr. Sponge from E. Steffen to H. Louman. The latter did not ride the huge, long striding son of Luke McLuke with the dash that Steffen did when he made Mr. Sponge win a short time ago at Washington Park.

Commuter was the early leader. Merrily On was right with him. The latter headed into the stretch in front. Jockey Wright brought Dyak up from fourth place into the lead at the eighth pole and he ran away from his field to win by two lengths from Merrily On. Mr. Sponge was third. He didn't seem to get into a running mood until right near the end of the battle.

Backers Collect $13.06.

Dyak stepped the six furlongs in 1:11 3-5, which was a second off the track record and the fastest race run so far at Lincoln Fields. With almost everybody wagering on Mr. Sponge, Dyak was overlooked and paid $13.06 to win, $5.96 to place, and $3.12 to show. Merrily On was another long shot, paying $13.16 to place and $3.94 to show. Mr. Sponge was at 1 to 5 to show.

Joe Humphries, Veteran Sports Announcer, Ill

Fair Haven, N. J., June 14.—(AP)—Joe Humphries, veteran sports announcer, who has officiated at almost every important boxing match in the last 25 years, was suddenly stricken ill at his home here today. Humphries was found unconscious in his home shortly after noon. The condition was diagnosed as trombosis of the brain, a blood clot caused by a cerebral hemorrhage. His right arm and right side were paralyzed.

New .410 Gauge Repeater Takes Heavier Shell

BY BOB BECKER.

Although this is the season of the year when the fishermen, canoeists, campers and motorists are supposed to dominate every vacation land, shotgun fans refuse to be pushed into the background. The reason is that several new shotguns have been brought out and the boys who like guns are banging away at targets testing the new weapons.

One of the most interesting gun developments of 1933 is the graduation of the .410 gauge from the toy class to the real gun class. This graduation has been made possible by two things. First is the development of a three inch shell shooting three-fourths of an ounce of shot, which is double the shot charge in the old .410 shells. The second change is the manufacture of a hard shooting .410 gauge repeating shotgun to take this long shell.

As if these developments were not enough, a bolt action .410 gauge shotgun also has been brought out this year. However, this type of shotgun does not take the long shell. Therefore, it is not in the class with the trombone action .410 pump gun which feels like a small bore rifle in weight and kick, and shoots like a .20 gauge.

With the arrival of this repeater taking a husky 3 inch shell, the .410 gauge moves into the class of the .20 for those who want a light gun which will serve as a family shotgun which everybody can shoot without worrying about recoil; as a handy gun which can drop a crow at 30 or 35 yards; as a fast skeet gun giving a fine pattern or as a repeating quail or jacksnipe gun.

SMITTY—EYES RIGHT!

OSWEGO PRINCESS rapidly bettered her position on inside in first quarter, responded to strong riding after reaching stretch, came through on inside in last eighth, and won drawing out. BILLIE'S ORPHAN forced the early pace under light rein, bore out when disposing of TRY COME, and weakened in final eighth. TRY COME had speed from start, was energetically ridden after three-eighths, and weakened in final three-sixteenths.

OUT BOUND, away slowly and allowed to remain out of it for three-eighths, caused much crowding and impeded several rivals when moving up fast rounding far turn, easily disposed of MISCALCULATE, but weakened and won under pressure. TACK suffered interference and, brought to outside in stretch, closed resolutely. SLASH, far back three-quarters, came with a rush in the stretch.

Patterson. Went to post at 3:57½. At post 2 minutes. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same.

TREY, closely in first quarter, gained a commanding advantage as a result of impeding a majority of his rivals, and tired, but stalled off SECRET TRYST. Latter, forced back when winner came over, recovered quickly and stood pressure gamely, but could not get up. GILBERT ELSTON, far back in the early crowding, could not get to leaders when urged hard, and weakened near the end.

Went to post at 4:26½. At post 1 minute. Start good from gate. Won easily; second and third driving.

DYAK, going in his best form and never a great distance back, slightly improved his position when saving ground at the turn, continued to find room on inside after reaching stretch, but came to outside for the final drive and, wearing down MERRILY ON, won easily. MERRILY ON began fast, took command when saving ground approaching stretch, and held on well, but was outmatched. MR. SPONGE, away fast, soon drooped back slightly, raced very wide throughout and, closing well, was wearing down MERRILY ON.

GOLD BASIS forced early pace under strong restraint, took command gradually, maintained fine speed to end and, not seriously threatened by FAIR ROCHESTER, won drawing out. FAIR ROCHESTER, well up from the start and on inside the first five-eighths, made a game bid when urged hard, but was outmatched. SWEEPRUSH, on outside the final half mile, bumped AT TOP repeatedly in stretch and outfinished her right at the end.

BATTLING ON, away fast and permitted to take short command, was under occasional pressure after three-quarters and, withstanding HAPPY LAD'S bid, outstayed AULANDER, but had little left. Latter, far back for first three-quarters, began moving up when saving ground at stretch turn, was in close quarters an eighth out, and closed strong when clear. Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 5:59½. At post 2 minutes. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same.

GAILLARDIA, lost much ground in reaching the lead from his outer position, was cleverly rated in the pacemaking, came away slightly under strong riding after reaching stretch, but weakened badly, yet lasted. SAMBO BROWN, under strong urging in first quarter, followed the pace under light restraint to stretch, where he failed to reach winner with a game bid, but gained fast when winner faltered near end. ED LARK saved ground early and closed fast after coming to outside. EVELINE F. had no mishap. LION HEARTED began slowly and raced wide. BEAUTY SECRET weakened in final drive. SEARINGTON did not threaten. KAPOSIA had no excuse.

Two Unbeaten Juveniles Will Race Saturday

The Debutante stakes to be run Saturday with the two unbeaten fillies Miss Patience and Mata Hari clashing, has caused many horse against horse wagers to be made at Lincoln fields during the last few days.

If the track should be fast many horsemen believe the track record of 1:05 for 5½ furlongs will be cracked.

The Debutante is a half-furlong more than the Debutante contenders have run this year and that half-furlong may cause one or both to dig in before reaching the finish line.

Miss Patience had a hard time winning her last out. She is by High Time, one of the greatest sires for early foot and speed in the last decade.

Mata Hari has not raced since winning the Bashford Manor stakes at Churchill Downs. Her trials have not indicated she was on the slow side, however. She probably will be right at her best. Her sire is Peter Hastings. Something may be among the starters in the Debutante which will run both Miss Patience and Mata Hari into a gopher hole before the end of the race.

Two horses were claimed out of the third race yesterday. C. H. Knebelkamp took Lucky Jack from Mrs. J. Grossman and Ed Haughton grabbed Sky Haven from H. Russell. The price in both instances was $1,800.

The daily double combination of Oswego Princess and Outbound paid $76.62. A man in the press box who had a double winding up on Seven Up which would have paid more than $7,000 fainted when Seven Up threatened to take the lead on the turn leading into the stretch.

William Hurley, trainer of the western division of the Bradley stable is high on Beoff, the 2 year old filly by Black Toney, out of Bessie Alix, in the list of some half dozen Col. Bradley named for the Debutante stakes. Beoff is going great guns in her trials, having stepped three-eighths in :34 2-5 recently. Other well named

Princeton and Harvard Polo Teams Enter Finals

Rye, N. Y., June 14.—(AP)—The Princeton and Harvard polo teams went into the finals of the intercollegiate polo tournament today with victories over Pennsylvania Military academy and Army. Princeton conceded a five goal handicap to the Chester, Pa., cadets and cut it down in three chukkers to win, 11 to 8. Playing without handicaps, Harvard turned back Army, 10 to 8.

Gallant Sir and Equipoise Named in Arlington Race

Ninety-nine nominations were received by the Arlington Park Jockey club for the Arlington Inaugural Handicap, to be run a week from Monday, and with an expected field of 15 of the nation's fastest horses the seven furlongs event will have a value of $5,000. The entries closed June 3.

Both C. V. Whitney's Equipoise and Norman Church's Gallant Sir are among the nominations, and when the Inaugural weights are issued late next week, they will give comparison of the two horses in the mind of Handicapper Joseph McLennan. Mr. Whitney has five other Inaugural entries, including Caterwaul and The Darb, while Mr. Church also nominated Sundot and Whizz James.

Audley Farm led the nominators with 11 entries, including Hilena, Late Date, Knight's Gal, and Trace Call. The latter two are also nominees for the Classic. C. E. Davison's No More, winner of the Washington Park Handicap, is expected in the Arlington Inaugural field, also A. Bartelstein's Polydorus, which finished second in last year's running of the event.

Other fast horses among the 99 candidates are Larranaga, Blind Bowboy, Pompeius, Brother Joe, Boilermaker, Okapi, Warren Jr., Morfair, Fairbypair, Advising Anna, Ebony Lady, Sun Archer, Sunmelus, Mr. Sponge, Tred Avon, Morsel, Crowning Glory, Sazerac, Head Play, Indian Runner, Isaiah, De Valera, Kerry Patch, Epithet, and Dark Secret.

Cubs Back Home Today; Tinning to Oppose Pirates

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., June 14.—The Cubs will be back home tomorrow for a two day stand against the Pirates. Bud Tinning, who has supplanted Burleigh Grimes in the corps of regular starters, will seek to make it 8 out of 11 for the Cubs against the Pirates. Bud has made only one start this year, against the New York Giants on May 4. He lost a tough 2 to 1 decision to Freddie Fitzsimmons as a result of ragged support.

Manager Grimm explained in benching himself today that he was doing it because of light hitting. His back isn't ailing any more.

The Cubs and Pirates will leave for Pittsburgh after Friday's game to play a contest Saturday. The Cubs then move on to New York and the Pirates go to Boston.

Boston, Mass., June 14.—(AP)—The Red Sox took their third straight game from the Yankees today as they collected 15 hits off four pitchers for a 13 to 5 victory. The Red Sox got away to a five run lead in the early innings as Rick Ferrell and Dale Alexander hit home runs. In the seventh, however, the Yanks collected five runs off Pipgras and his successor, Bob Kline, to tie the score. Then Walter Brown walked the first three Boston men to face him in the last half of the inning and with Pennock unable to stop the Red Sox, Boston scored three runs. They scored five more in the eighth when Combs, Lazzeri, and Ruth made errors on ground balls. Score:

ETHICS OF SPORT.

WISHING to dismiss the recent national open golf tourney for impending events, to forget the past for the present, The Wake's train of thought keeps backtracking to that disqualification of Paul Runyan just before the two final rounds. It was clearly demanded by existing rules, but from the facts appears an injustice.

Runyan, as you remember, himself discovered the error on his card whereby he was given one less stroke than he took and called it to the attention of officials. It probably would have gone unnoticed. He was well within the running at the time, likely to finish in the first ten or better. The rule reads:

Competitors must satisfy themselves before the cards are handed in that the scores for each hole are correctly marked, as no alteration can be made on any card after it has been returned. If it is found that a competitor has returned a score lower than that actually played, he shall be disqualified. For the additions of the scores marked the committee shall be responsible.

The error was made by the official scorer. Runyan's fault, then, was in not checking his count. He himself caught the error before play had been continued. Would not a fairer rule be that if a player reported an error in his own score before play was resumed, that error might be corrected without disqualification.

Was Runyan justified in keeping his "guilty knowledge" to himself? Apparently he never gave such conduct an instant's consideration. We think not. Why? Because one stroke in close competition might affect the placing for prizes and therefore be unjust to his competitors as individuals.

In team play, although the ethics would be the same, we might find diversity of opinion. We do not recall baseball players, playing for their team, admitting to an umpire they were actually out instead of safe on a close decision, or of a football player saying to an official "Im sorry, sir, but I was offside on that play." In fact, players often try to "beat" the rules [for their team] when officials are not looking. As individuals, we think most of them would do as Runyan did.

There seems to be some differentiation between individual honor and supposed team loyalty if you get the distinction we are trying to make. This condition may not be wholesome, but it exists.

That Game July 6.

When I was a young girl in Minnesota on a farm,
I played baseball noon and recess—
The game had much charm.

When hang-up teams were playing in towns all round about,
My brothers took me with them—
So I'd learn to "field" and shout.

Well, here I am, most forty, still love a baseball game,

'Twill always be the same.

Greatest Game Poll.

If you stop to analyze it, isn't the biggest thing about this greatest game of all time July 6 the voting for choice of players rather than the demand for seats? Naturally, fans wish to see such a contest, which with good weather promises to exceed Comiskey park's 50,000 seating capacity. But nearly 200,000 enthusiasts, most of whom live too far away to make attendance possible, take the trouble to write a letter indicating what players they think ought to take part. That's genuine interest.

Becka Wins Low Net, Evans Low Gross in C.D.G.A. Meet

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Chick Evans of Edgewater waited until the field was almost all home yesterday in the second handicap event of the Chicago District Golf association at Calumet before coming in with a 71, one under par, which was climaxed by an eagle three on the eighteenth green.

Evans was in difficulty on the outgoing nine, rounding the turn in 38, but came back in 33, equalling the course record for the last nine holes. It was his second consecutive triumph in the handicap series, since he won the inaugural at Glen View recently.

Becka Takes Lead.

Chuck Becka, youthful Calumet star led the field with a score of 72—4—68 until Evans turned in his card. Chuck's score gave him first low net prize in class A, while Evans, who played from scratch, won low gross with his 71. R. J. Donahue, of Olympia Fields, with 40—42—82, and S. E. Purdy of Calumet, with 82—12—70, were the winners in class B, while Van Lain, Beverly's president, with 47—43—90, and H. A. Bangham of Bunker Hill, 97—23—75 took the class C prizes.

The cards for Evans and Becka follow:

Par Out	544	434	435—36
Par In	443	435	445—36—72
Evans—Out	544	444	634—38
Evans—In	443	434	443—33—71
Becka—Out	654	434	434—37
Becka—In	343	544	444—35 72

Sinks 15 Foot Putt.

Evans was over par at the fifth, where he missed the green, and at the seventh, where he took a six when sliced his tee shot into the water and attempted to play out of it. He was on the ninth green in two for a birdie four, and was near the 15th in two for another birdie. Two fine shots to the eighteenth left his ball fifteen feet from the pin and he ran it down for the eagle.

Becka was in trouble early, trapping his second shot at the first and falling short of the second green. He was trapped at the ninth, but made a good recovery for a four foot putt, and a birdie. He birdied the 10th and 15th, and missed an eight foot putt for an eagle on the eighteenth.

The first of the two annual golf tournaments for the employés of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company was held at Medinah yesterday. A field of 275 members and guests played. Keith Morrison, who seems to be a perennial winner of the low gross honors in these affairs, again won top award by shooting the 27 holes in 36—39—34—109, one over par. He shot the No. 1 course.

Women employés and their guests played over No. 2 course. Miss Hazel Burns won low gross for the 18 holes with 51—60—111 and Mrs. F. J. Broderick won the guests' prize with 56—56—112. Scores:

W. Ferguson shot a 77 for low gross in the Kiwanis club tournament yesterday at the Itasca Country club. Low net was won by Howard Rotherick, 95—29—66. Other low net scores were Speed Spiedel, 102—35—67; Gene Hammons, 78—10—68; C. Psau, 93—24—69; D. S. Willis, 90—21—69; J. A. Heyer, 102—32—70, and C. Garland, 95—25—70.

The Holy Name society of Our Lady of Peace parish played golf yesterday at Olympia Fields, the Rev. T. J. Burke scoring low gross, 42—38—80. J. M. McAlvin was second, 43—39—82. D. L. Donovan, 91—20—72, and E. D. Dunn, 96—25—73, were tied for low net.

The annual golf outing of the Chicago Stock Exchange will be held tomorrow at the Bob o' Link Golf club, Highland Park.

More than 200 golfers took part in Sunset Ridge's annual "Stampede" yesterday, and the guests of the occasion captured nearly all of the awards, leaving just a few foursome prizes for the home guards.

A feature of the course was the water hole at the twelfth. The pond had been enlarged and a couple dozen ducks and geese installed. The psychological effect of this was reflected in the 7s, 8s and higher scores on that hole. Dick Payne of the home club said he hit a goose, but no one saw him do it.

N. Landon Hoyt Jr. of Indian Hill topped the field in low gross for the 36 holes with 81—78—159. Ralph Phalen of the home club was next with 84—80—164. The morning low gross went to J. W. Barton of the Chicago Golf club with 39—39—78, and Hoyt took the afternoon low gross with 37—41—78. A. O. Brett of Calumet won second in the afternoon with 80.

The foursome winners were:

Ryder Cup Team Sails to Play English Golfers

New York, June 14.—(AP)—Capt. Walter Hagen and his Ryder cup team sailed for England tonight determined to break the jinx which has followed the invading team since the international golf series was informally inaugurated in 1926.

The matches have been contested four times with the score standing at two victories each. The play at Southport June 26 and 27 is the rubber series. The United States won the last series at Columbus, O., in 1931, nine matches to three.

Hagen leads a veteran team against a comparatively inexperienced British side, all but two of the United States squad having played in the international series at least once. Five of the ten British players never have competed for the Ryder cup.

Hagen has been a member of all four United States teams; Gene Sarazen and Leo Diegel played on the 1927, 1929, and 1931 squads; Horton Smith was on the last two years, Ed Dudley was on the 1929 team, and Densmore Shute, Craig Wood, and Bill Burke played at Columbus two years ago. Olin Dutra, national P. G. A. champion, and Paul Runyan are the newcomers.

Arrayed against the American will be Capt. J. H. Taylor, English veteran, who will be a nonplaying leader; W. H. Davis, Abe Mitchell, Charles Whitcombe, Syd Easterbrook, Arthur Lacey, A. H. Padgham, and George Perry.

After the cup matches the players will compete in the British open at St. Andrews with Sarazen defending the title he won last year with a record 283.

Accompanying the team to play in the open is Johnny Farrell, United States open titleholder in 1928 and a member of three previous cup teams.

Fans Demand Foxx's Homers in Star Game

Connie took one look at his find and hurriedly figured that if the lad grew much more there wouldn't be room for him in a ball park, let alone the eight other members of a team. But Baker felt sure he knew a hitter when he saw one, so Mack decided to take Foxx on the training trip in 1925. Foxx couldn't get away from looking and acting like a born clover kicker, but instead of turning him loose Mack gave him instructions on how to become a catcher and shipped him to Providence to absorb his lessons.

He's No Catcher, but How He Can Hit!

Foxx was back the next year, 1926, and gradually it became evident that Baker might have been right about the hitting. But as a catcher he wasn't so hot. A little more than two seasons of that and Mack decided Mick

FIVE AUTOMOBILE TIRE COMPANIES INCREASE WAGES

Workers from Office Boys to President Gain.

Straight 10 per cent increases for all workers—from office boy to president—were announced yesterday by three of the big automobile tire manufacturing companies—Goodyear, Firestone, and General Tire and Rubber. The Mohawk Rubber company also increased wages 10 per cent and the Seibeling Rubber company announced it had added 5 per cent to the pay roll of June 5, retroactive to June 1.

The announcements represent the most convincing evidence yet seen that industrialists are heeding the President's plea to keep wages from lagging behind in the general upturn in business. The increases announced by the rubber companies will reach more employés than any boost made since the current business revival began.

Affects 20,000 Workers.

The Goodyear boost affects 20,000 persons, including piece workers, executives, and regular workers. It is the first wage boost made by the company in several years, except for the restoration of the temporary wage cut made during the bank holiday.

The announcement by President Paul W. Litchfield said: "Effective July 2 all salaries, all hourly rates, and all base rates for piece work operations in the Goodyear rubber factories and offices will be increased 10 per cent. This increase also will apply to all operating and distributing personnel."

The announcement of the Firestone increase was made by Harvey S. Firestone, president, on his return from a 7,000 mile trip of inspection of the companies' properties. He said that he found an "unusual revival of business and spirit of confidence" everywhere, and particularly in the farm regions.

Boost Effective Today.

The Firestone raise affects the rubber plants at Akron and Los Angeles, the products company at Akron, the footwear company at Hudson, Mass.; the cotton mills at New Bedford and Fall River, Mass., and the 400 service stores of the company throughout the country. It becomes effective today.

C. J. Jahant, vice president of General Tire, in announcing his firm's step said that the plant has been operating at full capacity since early in May and has many unfilled orders.

Another note of industrial optimism came from Toledo, where the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass company announced it was starting work on plans for a $100,000 addition to its safety glass plant. The expansion will increase the present plant's capacity by one-fourth.

Armour & Co.

Investors' Guide: I am a preferred stockholder of Armour & Co. and am interested in knowing how I shall fare under the recapitalization plan.—P. F. H.

Answer: As yet no official plan has been advanced by the company. The company has announced that the management has been authorized to prepare and submit a program for "simplifying the capital structure."

It is learned, however, that the management at present has under consideration a plan calling for the retirement of the present preferred and class A and B common stock through the issuance of new common stock.

Preferred holders would get 8 new shares of common for each share of preferred held. Class A holders would get 1 new share for each 8 shares held and class B holders would receive one new common share for each 12 shares now owned. In addition the A and B stockholders would get options to purchase the new common stock at fixed prices within the next five years as an added inducement to exchange.

The avowed purpose of the exchange is to correct the present top heavy financial setup. Officials frankly admit that the company is now overcapitalized. Average earnings for the last 10 years were approximately 50 per cent short of preferred dividend requirements. The showing for the last 5 years is even less favorable.

Dividends on the preferred stock are now in arrears $10,000,000, or $15.75 a share. The last dividend on the A stock was paid in 1926. Class B holders have never received a dividend.

It is difficult to see at the present writing how the preferred holder would be sufficiently compensated for his surrender of priority. The argument in favor of the plan is that the exercise of the purchase warrants by the junior holders will give the company cash to further reduce its funded debt and thus help the position of the stockholder. It would also make possible a reduction in property values and a consequent savings in depreciation charges.

Exercise of the options will hinge on the trend of the company's business. An upturn in earnings would help the preferred holders, however, regardless of whether the reorganization goes through or not. Prospects for some dividend on the preferred this year are good.

Important changes will probably be made in the plan before it is submitted to stockholders. As yet it is only tenative and is regarded as a "feeler" by the management who desires the reaction of the stockholders.

All classes of the company's stocks are widely held and no dominating group would stand to benefit under the plan, its proponents assert.

PLAN MAXIMUM PROCESSING TAX ON MAJOR CROPS

Tell Wheat, Cotton Scheme Tomorrow.

[Copyright: 1933: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., June 14.—(AP)—A decision to levy the maximum processing taxes of around 4 cents a pound for cotton nd 28 to 30 cents a bushel for wheat in order to bring smaller acreages for those crops has been reached by the Roosevelt administration.

This was disclosed authoritatively today as Secretary Wallace completed his program for applying the farm adjustment act to the nation's two biggest groups. He was reported to have won the approval of President Roosevelt and will announce his policy on Friday.

Wallace and his administrators of the farm act today made every effort to keep secret the details of their program. It was said that some features will be left undecided until the last minute.

However, as the program rested upon his desk today it called for the highest possible processing taxes to refinance retirement of acreage of both crops, which long have suffered from surplus production.

Ten Million Acre Cut Asked.

Even as the plans were drawn agricultural commissioners of southern states forwarded to the President a proposal that at least 10 million acres, or, better still, 12½ million acres be taken out of production in the cotton belt this year. They opposed, however, the levying of the processing tax.

Wallaces' announcement on Friday will specify the time the taxes are intended to go into effect. The act authorizes him to employ them at the start of a marketing year for a commodity.

Aug. 1 is by tradition considered the start of the cotton marketing year and July 1 for wheat. It was understood, however, that he will propose that the taxes on both commodities go into effect at the same time, Aug. 1 being contemplated.

If maximum taxes are levied the act provides that no public hearing is necessary before ordering them into effect. If less than the maximum is levied a hearing is necessary. Wallace, it was reported, is of the opinion that hearings requiring ten days' notice and a period of time for the study of conclusions are unnecessary and would produce delays which he is anxious to avoid.

Congress Votes $200,000,000.

The industrial control-public works bill sets aside 100 million dollars for paying rentals to farmers, thus retiring lands from the production of basic crops. Another 100 million dollars was provided in the Bankhead amendment, making 200 million dollars available for getting the plans under way.

Wallace's determination to use a processing tax is based, it was reported, on statements made by President Roosevelt and himself that any plan of adjustment must be self-supporting and not financed from the public treasury.

The plan by agriculture commissioners of southern states which was forwarded to the President was drawn up by Senator Smith [Dem., S. C.] and a group of southern cotton millers.

In suggesting that 12,500,000 acres, or at least 10,000,000 acres, of cotton be taken out of production this year, they proposed two alternative plans. Under on the planter would be reimbursed at the flat rate of $10 for each acre of growing cotton he put to the plow. Under the other the planters would be paid $6 for each acre taken out of production, and would have in addition the right to obtain options on 2,500,000 bales of government cotton at 5 cents a pound, each planter to be limited to an amount equal to one bale for each three acres of land taken out of production.

Bonuses for Wheat Growers.

The wheat program contemplates the payment in advance of bonuses to farmers who agree to reduce their output next year.

Maximum processing taxes will represent the difference between the average current farm price of a given commodity and the "parity" price based on prewar averages. Thus, the average farm price of cotton in May was 8.2 cents a pound and the parity price, or the average from 1909 to 1914, was 12.4 cents.

For wheat the May average farm price was 69 cents a bushel, compared with the prewar average of 88.4 cents.

Bankers Assail Glass-Steagall 'Reform' Bill

Sisson Urges Veto

New York, June 14.—(AP)—Francis H. Sisson, president of the American Bankers' association, urged member banks today to request President Roosevelt to veto the Glass-Steagall bill because of its deposit guaranty provision.

This section of the measure, approved yesterday by congress, was termed by Sisson "unsound, unscientific, unjust and dangerous."

In a telegram to member banks he said:

"The overwhelming opinion of experienced bankers is emphatically opposed to the deposit guaranty, which compels strong and well managed banks to pay losses of the weak.

"This legislation has not had approval of the federal reserve board, the treasury department, nor the sympathetic coöperation of the President."

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Both surprised and dismayed by what—to them—was the unexpected passing of the Glass-Steagall banking "reform" bill by both houses of congress, Chicago bankers yesterday hurriedly perused the bill to discover what it was all about.

Some of them had been watching the bill rather closely, but the majority several days ago had come to the conclusion that the bill would not pass at this session of congress and had practically forgotten about it.

A number of the city's leading bankers were interviewed yesterday on the bill. Without exception these men were opposed to the bill and predicted that it would lead to trouble.

Opposition centered on the guaranty of deposits feature. There was no particular objection to the other proposed changes in banking practice which Senator Glass has been trying to effect for several years.

None of the executive officers of loop banks would consent to be quoted.

"What I'd like to say about the Glass-Steagall banking bill would burn through the sheets they were written on," said one well known banker.

"This bill, together with the industrial control bill and the securities bill have got everything tied in a knot. Everybody was feeling better, business was good and bankers were reassured after the moratorium. The currency program seemed to be working out well.

"Now these new elements of uncertainty are injected into the business picture. Banks don't know whether to lend money. Investment houses hesitate to sell bonds because of the uncertainties in the securities bill. And business men don't know whether the old rules hold or whether they are part of a sovietized system. Business won't know for two months what it's all about.

"All this is likely to slow up the recovery. The declining markets of the last two days have been the nation's answer to the new legislation.

"The trade association executives, of course, are in the seventh heaven, but they have nothing at stake but their jobs."

One of the uncertainties plaguing the banks yesterday was whether or not the bill prohibits payment by banks of interest on demand deposits. These deposits comprise balances carried by business concerns at the banks. In Chicago alone the total of such deposits is close to one billion dollars. Bank officials were frantically wiring Washington for information on this point in order to notify their customers.

"The thing we don't like," said the executive of another loop bank, "is the way the guaranty of deposits will drain the strong to help the weak.

"Banking history during the last few years has been far from sweet, but the big majority of the banks now in existence have done a good job for their depositors and their stockholders. Now contributions are to be exacted from blameless institutions to cover the future indiscretions of fly-by-night mushroom bankers.

"The fact that a banking institution has been in business with a good record for forty, fifty, or sixty years means nothing. It must still pay for the speculations of the fellows who can't run a bank properly."

The head of a third bank declared that the guaranty experiment is not sound because bank deposits are not insurable risks. It had been tried in eight states and had always failed, he said.

A clearing house official said that the initial tax on Chicago clearing house banks under the guaranty fund plan would be approximately 6 million dollars and that that would be "only a starter."

The bill's provision for divorcement by national banks of their affiliates will mean much locally. The First National Bank of Chicago has already taken steps to complete the absorption of the First Union Trust and Savings bank and its First-Trust Joint Stock Land bank is being sloughed off.

The Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company several months ago arranged to divorce its security affiliate, the Continental Illinois company, and the completion of this divorce awaits only legal details.

The third largest national institution, the City National Bank and Trust company, has no security affiliate.

Dollar Again Turns Down Against Pound

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 14.—The dollar executed another turnabout in the foreign exchange market today and lost ground against the principal European currencies.

The dollar opened here a cent higher against the pound, but turned weak as the trading progressed. At the end of the day the pound was bringing $4.12⅞, a gain of three cents over yesterday final price.

Franc Gains Six Points.

French francs opened slightly lower at 4.75 cents, but recovered almost immediately and closed 6 points higher at 4.81.

Yesterday's sensational rise in the dollar and the abrupt reaction today were said to be the result of a raid against the French franc on rumors that France might be forced off gold because of the refusal of the American delegates to the London conference to agree to the stabilization of the dollar while the sessions are being held.

British Reënter Market.

Exchange market traders asserted today that there are indications that the British treasury had intervened by selling sterling and buying francs in an effort to drive the pound down from its recent high quotation, which may have held down its gain. The British, it was said, were encouraged to reënter the market by the drop in the pound yesterday.

In London traders were inclined to attribute the temporary strength in the dollar to developments in the war debt situation, which were expected to assist the currency negotiations at the economic conference.

U. S. to Sell $100,000,000 in Treasury Bills Monday

Washington, D. C., June 14.—(AP)—Secretary Woodin today invited tenders for $100,000,000 of 91 day treasury bills, to be sold to the highest bidder next Monday. The bills will be dated June 21 and mature on Sept. 20. The money will be used to retire an equal amount of maturing bills.

TREASURY FACES BILLION DOLLAR BUSINESS DAY

Washington, D. C., June 14.—(AP)—Another day of billion dollar business faces the treasury tomorrow, when the government perfects its June financing, pays interest on the public debts, pays off maturing securities, and collects its quarterly income tax payments.

The treasury will sell tomorrow $500,000,000 or more in five year 2¾ per cent treasury notes and probably more than $400,000,000 in nine month ¾ per cent certificates of indebtedness. The total is expected to reach the billion dollar mark.

At the same time it will collect the quarterly income tax payments, which are expected to amount to more than $100,000,000 and will pay off $374,000,000 of treasury certificates of indebtedness and $104,000,000 in interest on the public debt.

STOCKS ERRATIC AS THEY FOLLOW BOBBING DOLLAR

Turnover Is Heavy; Usual Leaders Sag.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 14.—Stock price movements were extremely erratic today. The market opened fairly steady, declined abruptly, rebounded around noon, and then skidded lower again. Late in the last hour, however, the bulls had managed to put a rally under way which resulted in a highly diversified mixture of moderate gains and losses.

Declines were somewhat in the majority, but, as was the case yesterday, there was no solid group movement. Long established industrial leaders appeared again out of favor, while low priced speculative favorites continued to receive the best play. It was plainly a field day for in and out traders. Turnover continued active in a broad list of shares, with a turnover of 5,550,000.

Electric Power Output of U. S. Rises to New Record for Year

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 14.—Production of electrical energy in the United States totaled 1,541,713,000 kilowatt hours, a new high record for the year and a gain of 7.4 per cent over the figures for the corresponding period a year ago. The gain is a continuation of the improvement which began several weeks ago and which has been consistent with the exception of the week in which the Memorial day holiday came.

Compared to the preceding year, the gain was the sixth consecutive weekly improvement.

Again due to weather condition, the Pacific coast area reported a greater drop in production compared with a year ago, the decline being 5.3 per cent, against a 2.3 per cent decline in the immediately preceding week.

All other areas, however, showed improvement, with the total percentage gain for the United States being 7.4 per cent over the like period of last year, as compared with 5.8 per cent last week and 4.8 per cent two weeks ago.

The New England states led with a 14.5 per cent gain. The southern states came next with an advance of 10.9 per cent, while the central industrial region showed an increase of 10.9 per cent over a year ago, as compared with an increase last week of 7.3 per cent.

The regular weekly report issued by Commonwealth Edison company on electricity output for the Chicago district for the week ended June 10 was not released yesterday. No explanation was given.

N. Y. EXCHANGE SEAT SELLS AT $250,000, NEW TOP

New York, June 14.—(AP)—The price of New York Stock exchange memberships has risen to $250,000, the highest since 1931, when seats sold as high as $322,000. The low for 1933 is $90,000.

Arrangements were made yesterday for three membership transfers—two at $225,000 and one at $250,000. The latter represented an advance of $35,000 from a sale on Monday, and also meant that the theoretical value of all exchange seats had increased $220,000,000 in the last three months.

RAILWAY UNIONS SAY THEY WILL FIGHT PAY CUTS

Cleveland, O., June 14.—(AP)—A. F. Whitney, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives' association, representing 21 railroad labor organizations, today said, "We have just decided not to take a cut." The railroads, it is reported, will present their demands for a reduction to the unions on Friday.

Whitney, who also is president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, said a meeting of the Labor Executives' association has been called in Chicago Friday,

STEEL OUTPUT RISES TO 47% OF CAPACITY

Chicago Area Makes Sharp Advance.

Steel ingot production has advanced to 47 per cent of capacity from 44 per cent last week, an increase of 3 points, the Iron Age reports. At Chicago the output has risen from 42 to 46 per cent, and gains were also announced at Pittsburgh, Buffalo, in eastern Pennsylvania, and the south. Further blast furnace resumptions in the Pittsburgh district during the week will intensify production.

It was also learned yesterday that steel operations at Youngstown has moved up 2 points since the beginning of the week, with the latest rate computed at 52 per cent of capacity. The higher rate was caused by increased operations of Carnegie and the resumption of Bessemer output by Sheet and Tube.

Tin plate specifications, according to the Iron Age, are the largest in over three years, with production sustained at 90 per cent. The backlog has been

BUTTER AND EGGS STEADY

Butter and egg futures closed about steady on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, butter being ⅛c lower and eggs up ⅛@¼c. Hedging sales in butter were active, but the market was well supported. News was mixed. The four markets stored 300,000 lbs more butter than last year, but the Land o' Lakes reported production off 8 per cent. Eggs again received active new support. Octobers were quiet but relatively firm. Receipts dropped slightly and the movement into storage also fell off. Sales: Butter, 56 cars; eggs, 51 cars. Deliveries: Eggs, 1 car. Prices follow:

STOCKS ERRATIC AS THEY FOLLOW BOBBING DOLLAR

Turnover Is Heavy; Usual Leaders Decline.

denced in the fact that the rallies kept close harmony with recessions in the dollar. Confusing the speculative situation was the Washington legislative imbroglio and unexpected developments at the London economic conference. Traders were bewildered by the rush of news, unable to interpret it in relation to stock prices.

Contributing to the unsettlement at the opening was an announcement that the exchange had suspended trading in Continental Motors. The action was not specifically explained, and much mystery attached to it.

As stocks went through sinking spells and mild rallies speculators were kept in a state of tension. The declines were sharp enough at times to touch off stop-loss orders, as well as to bring in fresh buying.

London Holds Interest.

With the London conversations dominating the financial picture, the magic spell of inflation promises and business improvement seems to have been dissipated as a market factor, at least for the time being.

Most of the pivotal industrials reflected a dearth of support, United States Steel closing off a large fraction and American Can more than 1. Utilities fared little better, with small gains only in American Telephone, International Telephone, and North American, among the leaders.

Heaviness dominated the railroads, and among active issues the late recovery benefited only Delaware and Hudson and New York Central.

Good buying of building shares was noted, however. Johns-Manville closed more than 4 points higher and Otis Elevator was strong.

Chrysler Up; Other Motors Off.

Chrysler appreciated on the day, but other motors ruled lower. Auburn dipped 2½ net. Aviation corporation, United Aircraft, and other issues in that group were active but soft.

The Massachusetts repeal vote brought fresh demand for alcohol shares, with Commercial Alcohol and National Distillers notable strong spots.

With the tendency of wheat and cotton to sink, farm implements had alternating weak and strong moments. Case was a speculative shuttlecock, and closed unchanged on a large turnover.

Oils began well, but soon lost their vigor. Declines were the rule in coppers, foods, tobaccos, and chemicals.

BIG SUPPLIES OF HOGS DEPRESS LARD PRICES

Heavy receipts and lower prices for hogs induced holders of lard to liquidate and there was selling on stop loss orders. Weakness in grains also had a depressing influence. At the close lard futures were off 12½ to 15 cents on the most active deliveries and 15 to 20 cents on those receiving limited attention. Buying was attributed to shorts and packing intehests.

Cash lard was in limited demand with prices 12½ cents low on regular loose, and leaf, the former being $6.17½ with loose $5.55, and leaf $5.62½. Bellies were 15 to 20 cents lower, the latter on September, while cash lots were unchanged at $7.25.

WOOL MARKETS

BOSTON, Mass., June 14.—Wool prices showed a strengthening tendency today, with dealers finding it necessary to ask more money on wools now arriving which were purchased in the west at prices relatively higher than those in the Boston market. This was especially true of territory wools, which wer in fairly good demand.

Well posted dealers estimated that the domestic clip will total 300,000,000 lbs. against earlier estimates of 325,000,000 lbs.

GAIN IN RECEIPTS OF LIVE STOCK REDUCES PRICES

Hogs Exceed Estimates by 12,000 Head.

An increase in receipts of live stock took the trade unawares yesterday and sent prices into rather disorderly retreat, despite the favorable news from wholesale markets for fresh meats which responded buoyantly yesterday to the influence of cooler weather, after some hesitancy at the opening of the week. Some classes of live stock suffered the sharpest setback of the season, with most of the gains marked up on Monday's light supply rubbed out.

Hog receipts were posted at 36,000, exceeding the advance estimate by 12,000 head. It was the largest Wednesday run since January, 1932, barring the two day total following the Tuesday holiday two weeks ago. Prices were unevenly weak to 20 cents lower, the bulk of the good to choice grades falling 15 to 20 cents in value, while packing sows sagged 10 to 15 cents.

Top Price Off 15 Cents.

Yesterday's top price showed 15 cents decline at $4.70. The average was off 10 cents at $4.45, standing within 5 cents of the lowest mark in five weeks.

Cattle prices broke 25 to 50 cents under the heaviest Wednesday receipts of the year. The run at 12,000 compared with 8,927 a week ago and with 6,461 a year ago. The decrease at leading markets Monday has been made up, the three day total at seven leading markets at 111,000 being exactly the same as a week ago, when supplies ran largest of the year.

Only a few steers of the "upper crust" sold above $6.50, one consignment making the $7.00 line in midsession, while bulk of steers of beef merit sold at $5.25 to $6.50. Cows and heifers slumped again.

Lambs Also Drop.

Lambs tumbled mostly 50 cents soon after a 25 cent lower opening, with closing sales off 75 cents to $1.00, considering the severe sorting. Packers bought closely sorted native lambs at $7.50, with as many as 25 to 40 culls rejected from a carload and sold at $5.00. Such kinds were selling almost without sort at $8.00 earlier in the week.

City butchers hand picked a few selects as high as $7.75 to $8.00, and small lots of native yearlings at $6.25. Packers bought sorted yearlings at $6.00 and below, against $6.50 Tuesday.

COTTON CONSUMPTION EXCEEDS LAST YEAR'S

Cotton consumption in the United States, as given by the census bureau, for the month of May was 620,909 bales, compared with 332,372 bales last year. The consumption was largely in the cotton growing states. Exports in May were 591,647 bales, compared with 500,871 bales last year. Stocks in consumers' hands at the end of May were 1,394,607 bales, against 1,463,126 bales last year. Spindles active last month were 24,571,498, against 21,633,036 last year.

Trading in cotton was liberal, largely between professionals yesterday. At times the market showed strength but there was no great buying except on the weak spots. Prices moved within a range of 15 points and at the close futures in Chicago were 2 points lower to 2 points net higher. New Orleans 1 point lower to 1 point higher, and New York 1 point higher to 2 points lower; spots in the latter were 5 points lower to 9.35 cents. New Orleans unchanged to 9.25 cents; Galveston, 9.10 cents, and Houston, 9.15 cents. Prices follow:

COAL INDUSTRY MEETS TO CHECK PRICE SLASHING

Hope to Halt Cutthroat Ruling Under New Law.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

A meeting at which the nation's bituminous coal industry will discuss measures to lift itself out of its difficulties will open at the Drake hotel this morning when some 400 members of the National Coal association will assemble for their fourteenth annual convention.

Leaders in the coal association say that their industry has suffered as much from price slashing, cutthroat competition and overproduction as the garment makers of New York City and the petroleum producers of Texas and Oklahoma. If they can get together in solving their problems, they say, such a successful outcome will augur well for other American industries.

Outlook Best in Years.

The coal men say that at the moment their prospects for bettering their conditions are better than they have been for years. First, they have behind them their victory in the decision of the United States Supreme court which upheld the sales agency plan developed by Appalachian Coals, Inc. Second, they have ahead of them the application of the government's plan for coöperation with industry to the bituminous coal business.

When the meeting opens the two most important subjects for consideration will be:

1. Federal control of industry.
2. The regional sales agency plan—an instrument which the industry has been seeking for years.

The control of industry plan developed by the Rosevelt administration has been viewed with alarm by many industrialists who fear it means complete unionization of labor—the closed shop. This aspect of the President's plan for partnership of the government and industry has been viewed with special concern by the bituminous coal industry, which, except for the Illinois fields, is almost entirely nonunion in operation.

Hope to Retain Present Status.

Therefore, one of the problems facing the coal men will be to set up a plan which will conform with the provisions of the industry control bill and at the same time protect their interests. They hope to accomplish this through enforcement of the law in such a way as will maintain the status quo of the various fields. The unions would be retained for the Illinois fields and those fields which are not now unionized would be kept so.

Coal leaders said yesterday that they look to the adoption of the sales agency plan—patterned after Appalachian Coals—as a means of saving their industry, which they say has been ruined by overproduction and destructive competition. A dozen sales agencies are now in process of organization within the association.

The convention will be given a code to study this morning. One point will be the establishment of minimum prices. Other provisions deal with unfair competition, the standardization of sales contracts and standardization of sizes.

STEEL OUTPUT RISES TO 47% OF CAPACITY

Production in the Chicago Area Rises Sharply.

swelled by an export order of 200,000 boxes of tin plate.

"The effect of the pending industrial control legislation is entirely conjectural," declares the Iron Age. "While a general wage advance seems a certainty and at least moderate price increases are regarded as inevitable, the iron and steel industry is marking time for the present. It is possible that when new prices are named they will be limited to current orders, or to 30 day commitments at the most.

Defer Action on Prices.

Pending the final enactment of the industrial recovery bill steel companies have been deferring action on prices for forward delivery, according to the Iron Age. Producers of sheets and strip have withdrawn third quarter quotations, but in some cases they have accepted orders for delivery until July 31, subject to price changes in the event labor costs increase. The larger tin plate consumers are covered for their major requirements until autumn. While producers' unwillingness to take forward business has worked against speculative buying, says the Iron Age, some of the tonnage now being taken against second quarter contracts may exceed present needs.

While "demand remains unbalanced, with little support coming from the railroads, construction, or the oil industry, there is no gainsaying that steel consumption is still increasing," declares the review. No signs of a seasonal letdown have developed, adds the Daily Metal Trade of Cleveland, and "the belief is held in important circles that the summer letdown this year will be comparatively small."

Buy for Better Cars.

The Iron Age reports that more steel tonnage is now being placed by makers of medium and high priced cars, and "mills believe the flow of business from the automotive industry will remain at a fairly high level until at least the middle of July."

Preferred Stock Convertible and Participating

Preferred as to cumulative dividends at the rate of 40c per share per annum, and as to assets at the rate of $4.00 per share and accrued dividends. Participates fully with the common, on a share for share basis, in further dividend distribution after the common has received 40c per share. Callable after January 1, 1936, on any dividend date, on sixty days' notice, at $4.50 per share and accrued dividends. Quarterly dividend date, first day of January, April, July and October of each year, beginning April 1, 1934, on which date all dividends accrued from date of issue shall be payable. The Preferred Stock is protected by adequate provisions against the issuance of additional shares, changes of privileges, or preferences, creation of mortgage obligations, etc. The Preferred Stock has no voting right unless the company should be in arrears in the payment of four quarterly dividends after Jan. 1, 1934, whether consecutive or not, when it becomes voting on a share for share basis with the Common Stock.

The Kaspar G. Schmidt family has been engaged in the brewing industry since 1860, when Kaspar G. Schmidt (now deceased) established a brewery in Chicago. In 1892 he purchased the brewery at Logansport, Indiana, on the site of which a brewery had been operated since 1862. The K. G. Schmidt Family operated the Logansport brewery from 1892 to 1919, under the name of the Columbia Brewing Corporation. Since 1919, due to prohibition, the brewery has been inactive and will have no income until rehabilitated. The K. G. Schmidt Brewing Co., Inc., was incorporated under Indiana law in 1933 by George K. Schmidt, Ernst R. Schmidt and George K. Schmidt Jr. to acquire and operate this property. Logansport, Indiana, is located approximately 125 miles southeast of Chicago in the heart of a good industrial and agricultural territory.

The property is located two blocks from the main business section and four blocks from the Pennsylvania Railroad station. Upon completion of additional improvements and installation of new equipment contemplated by this financing, the plant will have a capacity of 100,000 barrels annually, with ample space for further expansion.

The K. G. Schmidt Brewing Co., Inc., has license number 3 in the State of Indiana which is restricted to 21 breweries under the present law, on the basis of present population. There is no other brewery within a radius of approximately fifty miles, and this territory alone, based on historical data, should consume substantially more than 200,000 barrels annually. This, together with the near-by Chicago market gives the company a potential market largely in excess of its initial productive capacity. Based on 100,000 barrels annually at an estimated net profit of $2.50 per barrel, earnings should cover preferred dividend requirements more than 7¾ times, or in excess of $1.00 per share on the total Preferred and Common Stocks to be outstanding. At this rate of operation a net profit of approximately thirty-two cents per barrel, or less than three cents per case, would meet annual preferred dividend requirements.
